Santa's friend is busy again

CANTON—One of Santa's closest associates, is looking for a bit of help again this year.

For the past 10 years, Gene Reaves, a Canton Township constable has been helping Santa in the collection of hats, scarves and mittens for the kids at the Plymouth State Home. This year Reaves has rounded up approximately 120 sets of knitted winter wear which he plans to deliver during the first part of next month.

But he needs a few extra goodies to go along with the warm clothes. His goal is to match the knitted gifts with coloring books, crayons, and dolls.

Reaves already has received a shipment of candy canes from area Lions Club members, which he knows will help bring a little extra cheer into Santa's visit in the next few weeks.

Some of Reaves' helpers include women like Mickey Milton of Canton and 93-year-old Clara Cleland of Lathrup Village who have knitted sweaters and mittens during their spare time throughout the past year.

Reaves said he is hopeful this year's visit will bring smiling faces to the 120 blind, deaf and retarded children that Santa will visit at Plymouth State.

Those coloring books, crayons and dolls can be delivered to Reaves at Royal Holiday Mobile Home Park, 39500 Warren, Lot 424.

Master plan takes priority with planning commission

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—The new master land use plan may not be far away. At a planning commission meeting Tuesday night it was assigned top priority and the Dec. 5 meeting will be devoted entirely to explaining the proposed plan to the new township board.

Many of the recent rezoning proposals to come before the planning commission have been tabled until the new plan is assembled and ratified, although the township has been operating with the old master land use plan devised in 1967.

Parkins and Rogers, a consulting firm, prepared the original document but citizen pressure in recent times and the changing mood and complexion of the township has made it obsolete, according to officials.

TOWNSHIP PLANNER Mike Manore, an employee of the consulting firm of Wade, Trim, and Associates, has been working on the new plan for sometime, but concern has been voiced in the township that the new administration will demand significant changes in his rough draft.

However, Manore hopes that the new plan will be completed in three to six months. Manore thinks there will be a radical difference between the old plan and the new one.

In particular Manore feels that with the increased desire on the part of residents to save agricultural land, the ultimate population of Canton will be reduced significantly. Estimated population under the old land use plan was 200,000 by the year 2000.

Manore is quick to point out, however, that whatever the new plan entails, it will be only a guideline for the planning commission. The tools to implement the plan will be zoning ordinances, and these will be subject to ratification by the township board.

AMONG OTHER topics discussed at the meeting, the commission voted to write a letter to the Plymouth school board voicing concern about the lack of safety features at three proposed elementary schools. One school will be constructed in Windsor Park, and two will be built on Haggerty Road.

The planning commission asked for more parking space at these schools as well as sidewalks.

Two items were tabled. The expansion of a landfill at Michigan and Hannah was deferred until more information on the operation and completion time of the landfill could be presented. Waste Management Co., the owner of the landfill, has 57 acres in the area already functioning and they are asking for an additional adjoining 40 acres for the landfill.

As in the last planning commission meeting, there was discussion about assurances that the landfill would, upon completion, be turned into something the township wanted. Legal measures were discussed, but nothing was decided upon. Waste Management has talked about making the completed landfill into a golf course. Site plans for two office buildings were also tabled because of lack of information. The buildings were to be constructed north of Hanford on Canton Center.

The next planning commission meeting will feature a change in personnel. Grant Campbell, outgoing township treasurer and representative of the board of trustees on the commission, will be replaced by a member of the new township board.

Radio show host found dead in park

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—The body of a newly hired WXYZ radio personality was found in a car on Hines Drive near Woods Drive late Tuesday afternoon.

A Wayne County Sheriff's spokesman said the body of Alan Douglas, 50, who was living with a stepson in Plymouth, was discovered at 4:45 p.m. by Wayne County Road Commission workers.

Cause of death was awaiting a report from the medical examiner. The sheriff's spokesman said there were cuts on the man's arms.

A spokesman at WXYZ said Douglas had been hired Nov. 12 to do a nightly radio talk show. He started work last Monday night, doing one show.

He was born in Detroit but gained his radio-television reputation working at WKYC, Cleveland, and at Channel 5 in that city.

Douglas had been doing a talk show on WNBC, New York, up to a few months ago, the WXYZ spokesman said.

He had been living with his stepson while seeking employment in this area. The sheriff's department is withholding the relative's name and Plymouth address.

The radio station spokesman said Douglas had built up a big following with his television talk show in New York.

The station reported it was swamped with telephone calls from the New York and Cleveland areas when news of Douglas' death reached those cities.

Relatives are reported to have told the sheriff's department that Douglas "had been despondent" in recent weeks and was worried about his career.

The radio station said it was informed of the death by the sheriff's department shortly after the body was discovered.

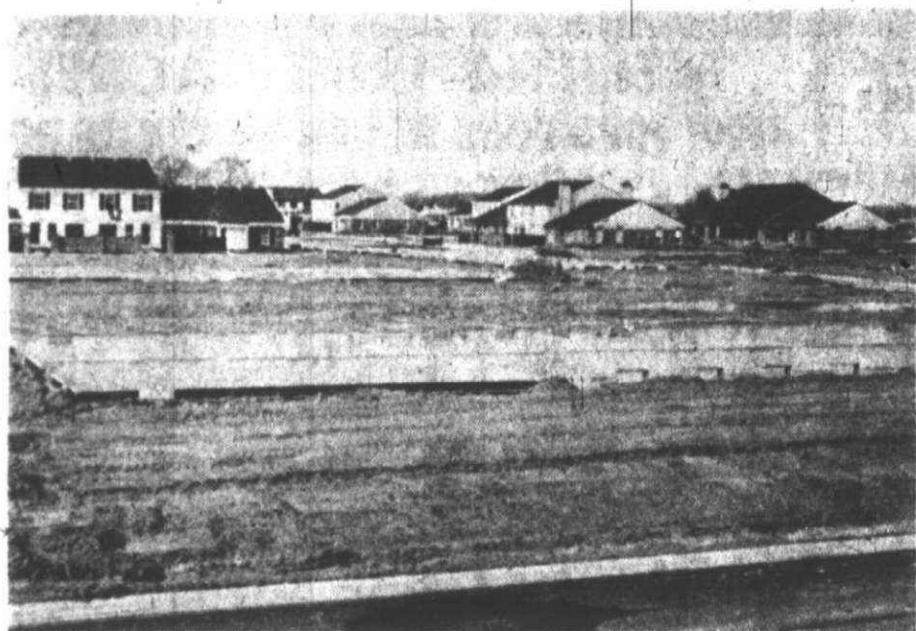

Douglas was to have done a show on radio Tuesday night.

Building for the future...

Growth in Canton: People speak out

By RICHARD GOLD

One of the biggest issues in Canton Township today is growth—what direction it will take, how long it will go on, and what it will ultimately entail for residents.

There are many different opinions concerning the development of Canton. Residents, builders, township officials and the planners all have different notions, but the decisions that are arrived at in the near future will effect residents for a lifetime.

"The decisions we make today are critical," says township planner Mike Manore, "they are irrevocable and we will have to live with them a long time."

This reporter talked to two parties interested in the direction and growth of Canton: one, a builder, and part owner of Practical Homebuilders, Dick Lewiston; and, the executive branch of the Northwest Canton Homeowners' Association.

THE HOMEOWNERS association has been very vocal for the last two years about what they consider the "lack of adequate planning."

"We don't mind growth," says Clarence Partin, resident of the homeowners group, "but what we do find offensive is the lack of planned growth. We would like to see controlled expansion in this community, not just random growth."

Complaining that the township government and planning body has been too growth oriented, Partin said, "the rationale behind the old administration has been that 'big is good' and the real meaning of progress is constant expansion."

Consequently, the homeowners are disturbed by the current master land use plan, a document in which they find many faults.

"There is too much in the way of commercial property, especially the way it is spotted all over the township. We would rather see a central location in Canton for business and government. Let's centralize the civic and social activities in the township," said Bob Miller, vice president of the homeowners group.

The homeowners would also like to see more agricultural land saved—a move they think makes aesthetic and economic sense.

ONE OF THE biggest gripes of the association has been the lack of participatory government. They feel the planning commission has been, for the most part a rubber stamp for the builders.

"They don't listen to the citizens. They cut out a lot of the things we decided on in the advisory board," explained Partin.

The Citizens Advisory Council met from March to August in 1973 and was designed to make recommendations for land use in the township. Comprised of the seven township officers, and all of the township planning commission, membership on the council totaled 25. There were 12 members representing various homeowner and resident groups. However, Partin claims that many of the consensus decisions of the group were deleted by members of the planning commission in closed door sessions after the council completed its work.

Commenting on the commission's "lack of imagination," Partin claimed, "they aren't a planning commission, they're a rezoning board. They never suggest comprehensive programs, they just attack the problem a piece at a time with rezoning appeals."

Most infuriating to the association and Partin has been the "lack of diversity in housing" offered to prospective homebuyers. They are particularly concerned about the abundance of 60-foot lots.

ACCORDING TO PARTIN, one of the serious problems of the 60-foot lot subdivision is density. The homeowners want to avoid "overly dense subdivisions."

"We would like to see all kinds of different housing available to people who would like to buy a home in Canton. There is just no diversity here," claimed Partin.

The homeowners are concerned about the lack of multiples and apartments as well as the unavailability of high income homes.

Reflecting on possible criticism they were using their arguments to hide snobbish interests. Partin commented, "all we want is a balanced and integrated community. We want a mixture of people but it is true we don't want 200,000 people down here by the year 2,000."

Secretary of the group John Cojei added, "we work with other homeowner groups all over the township—if we were snobs we wouldn't care about them."

Dick Lewiston is a land developer, and has been a proponent of the 60-foot lot subdivision. As a land developer and businessman, he views the growth of Canton primarily in economic terms. He looks at the people he must satisfy, the builders and the potential home buyer.

"RIGHT NOW, the market in Canton is for 60-foot lots and the kind of home you find on that size lot. People buying in Canton are usually purchasing their second or third home. They are growing families and they want more house space, the lot is not as important," he claims.

He continues, "if we impose artificial constraints through zoning and are forced to build on bigger lots, people just aren't going to be able to buy. The market is already in bad

Report writing essential

Pittman teaches course vital to good police work

BY MAURIE WALKER

One of the police officer's most important functions, and at the same time one of the most difficult, is the written report that must be turned in for every incident or call in which he is involved.

Since many officers are not natural writers, this job of reporting an incident can and often does prove to be one of the most difficult tasks he faces.

In an effort to assist law enforcement officers in preparing accurate and clear reports, Madonna College in Livonia is offering a course in "Technical Report Writing" taught by Loren Pittman, Wayne County undersheriff.

EACH SATURDAY from 9 to 11:30 p.m., 34 students comprised of officers from Westland, Detroit, Wayne, Inkster, Dearborn, Trenton and the sheriff's department attend the three-hour credit course.

This is the first time the course has been offered to police officers.

Pittman, a 30-year law enforcement veteran and holder of several degrees, was asked by Madonna College to teach the 16-week course.

"I have been teaching part-time at the college for 10 years, principally law enforcement courses," Pittman said.

It was the sisters at the college, where law enforcement courses are continually being taught, who discovered the need for a class on report writing," the undersheriff said.

"It is encouraging to see so many officers devoting their own time to gaining additional formal education," he added.

"I spent all summer preparing the course which is being taken by 28 men and six women, five of the six are fulltime college students."

3 lose, one gains tax rebate

Three area communities are feeling the pinch from decreasing State Motor Vehicle Highway Fund (MVHF) revenues but Livonia has received more income.

Collections from motor vehicle fuel and license plate taxes are funneled into the MVHF which returns more than 50 per cent to the counties and cities for work on major roads.

FOR THE first time since 1951, quarterly income for the MVHF decreased in comparison with the same period, July through September, a year ago, according to the State Highway Commission. Distribution of the fund's income decreased by 3.1 per cent.

Communities which received less income this year for the quarter than

He admits he is disappointed that not all of the class members are police officers.

"I could get more into the technical and police-oriented factions if all of the class members were policemen," he said.

His course consists of discussing issues and possible incidents followed by the writing of a one-page essay on what has been discussed.

He explained the importance of properly prepared reports.

"THESE REPORTS are often carried into court where an officer's integrity could be questioned by a defense attorney should the report be misinterpreted."

Pittman said that often misspelled words or abbreviations can cause an officer's report to be questioned.

"We stress correct English, spelling, ethics and complete identification of persons involved in any incident an officer writes a report on. This way we can determine where, if any, faults arise in an officer making out a report."

THE IMPORTANCE of complete and correct incident reports is stressed by various police officials.

6 win cash in lottery

Six area residents have identified themselves as winners in the Oct. 31 state lottery $1 jackpot game.

Livonia residents taking top prizes were Reva Potterpin, $10,000, Lawrence Schweiger, $4,000 and Robert J. Carey, $3,000.

Thomas Smolen of Garden City won $3,000, John Morrissey of Plymouth, $2,000 and Donald Rogowski of Westland, the $1,000 prize.

last year are: Garden City, nearly $2,500 less; Plymouth, nearly $1,000 and Westland, nearly $4,000 less. Wayne County's income from the MVHF decreased by more than $420,000.

Livonia, bucking the trend, received a $2,000 increase.

TAXES GENERATE the fund's major revenue source for construction and maintenance of the state highway system, and provide financial assistance for road work to Michigan's 83 counties and 531 incorporated municipalities.

According to a formula established by the Legislature, 44.5 per cent of the collections goes to the Department of State Highways and Transportation; 35.7 per cent to the counties

Redford's Deputy Chief Michael Manoo said the report is the basis of all investigations.

"From the officer's original report, all future investigations are handled. If a report is not complete, we can't get a warrant. We must have all the facts of an incident clearly and correctly explained."

Manoo, who taught report writing in the Detroit Police Academy, said neatness, correct spelling and accuracy are vital elements of a report.

"Often a report is reviewed by an attorney, a judge, a private citizen or the news media. It is vital that it be clear and correct," he added.

CAPT. JAMES MOGAN of the Livonia Police Department said reports are very technical today compared to those in the past.

"With the computer age upon us, a report must be clear and accurate. If not, it won't be accepted by a computer."

The Capt. added that police are constantly updating their report writing to keep pace with modern law enforcement.

"This is one of the reasons police agencies stress additional education for its officers," he said.

Chief Timothy Ford of the Plymouth Police Department said incident report writing "is so vital it is beyond description to explain its worth."

"FOR EVERY CALL, an officer responds to, there is some type of report required. It cannot be stressed strongly enough that these reports must be written with clarity and brevity."

Without all the facts, complete names, dates, time and any evidence obtained written into a report, it is useless.

"Without a complete report, a case can be lost and a potential criminal freed."

and 19.8 per cent to cities and villages.

Funds are allocated to counties, cities and villages based on a ratio of population and miles of roadway within the jurisdiction in comparison with state totals.

Third quarter MVHF collections dropped by nearly $3 million or 2.9 per cent from the same period a year ago.

"It is clear that the decrease can be attributed to Michigan motorists driving less and slower, using less gasoline," said John P. Woodford, director of State Highways and Transportation.

"Unfortunately, our decrease in revenue comes at the same time that highway construction costs are escalating by a rate of 36 per cent a year."

"We would encourage comments from people interested in programs of the Department of Natural Resources," said Hilary F. Snell, commission chairman.

"We have no established agenda for these meetings and the format is very informal. At previous meetings all those who wished to speak were given an opportunity to appear before the commission."

DNR responsibilities include protection and wise use of natural resources, water and air pollution control, oil and gas drilling, wildlife management and operating state parks.

Comments, both pro and con, are invited and encouraged.

Counseling groups propose merger

By DARLENE STINSON

PLYMOUTH—Two youth-oriented social agencies are planning to bridge the one city block that separates their facilities in a consolidation move.

Our House, a community crisis center and free medical clinic, and Plymouth Youth, Inc., which offers youth-oriented recreational programs, have agreed to the merger, according to directors of both, but fine details of the move have not yet been worked out.

"We're trying to centralize functions that are duplicated," explained Tom DeMott, director of Our House, 185 S. Harvey. "In the past, we've been seeing a good many of the same people they (Youth, Inc.) have. We'll be able to work with that kid all the way through now. That's the primary advantage I see—offering that comprehensive service, so a person doesn't have to go to a myriad of places to get what he needs."

Dale Yagiela, director of Youth, Inc., 271 S. Main St., sees the consolidation as a move benefiting the community and the two agencies.

"I think it will benefit the community, because it gives a broader base for involvement," Yagiela said. "It enables us to deal on a broader base with individuals."

"We also feel the consolidation will aid us in getting financial support from the community," he said. "In this community there's a lot of groups trying to raise money. It seems the larger units have more visibility, and it's easier to raise money. There's the potential to compete with Our House, but there's no need to."

AFTER THE MERGER, Yagiela hopes to expand the services currently offered by Youth, Inc. The center currently offers activities ranging from ping pong to pool to meeting places for art and photography clubs. Young persons are also encouraged to implement new projects.

On the drawing board, Yagiela said, is a tutoring center to help young persons in school and a job referral program, services which are currently offered on a limited basis.

Both Our House and Youth, Inc., face financial difficulties.

"The financial situation (at Youth, Inc.) has never been good," Yagiela said, "but we seem to find ways to continue on."

Funds are needed to pay salaries of Yagiela and a part-time employee and to cover the maintenance and utility costs of the rented building, owned by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Our House, which has for the past 18 months received 80 per cent of its funding from the National Institute for Drug Abuse, must now look elsewhere for financial assistance.

Our House dropped the grant in September, DeMott said, because of changed guidelines demanding that grant recipients be drug-oriented and counsel persons for long-term drug abuse problems.

But, DeMott said, only about 30 per cent of the problems the center encounters are drug-related. Two full time persons and trained volunteers counsel walk-in and telephone clients for such problems as pregnancy and contemplated suicide.

OUR HOUSE also offers a free medical clinic, each Monday night, where a volunteer doctor and nurses test and treat patients for venereal disease, pregnancy and disseminate birth control products to women over 18.

"In the middle of our grant year, the government came in and said 'No, we don't want you to do it that way anymore,'" DeMott said. "We felt the new Institute guidelines were inappropriate to the needs of the people of Plymouth."

DeMott said, assistant director of Our House, added, "We'd have to concentrate our attention so much in the areas they wanted, that it wouldn't be feasible for us to get into other areas."

Our House has received a total of $4,000 each year from the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township as well as individual contributions to finance salaries, rent and the cost of supplies.

DeMott said the center is searching for another grant to help finance Our House and Youth, Inc.

"I THINK the merger will help, because we'll be able to get a grant for the entire agency," he said.

In the meantime, Our House needs all the volunteer manpower and donated supplies it can get.

"We're always looking for volunteers," DeMott said. "Most are fairly young and tend to stay here about six months. The main thrust is to get people to be paraprofessional counselors."

Our House currently employs about 35 volunteers, who have taken a training program at the center in drug, suicide, venereal disease and personal growth counseling, DeMott said. Patient advocates, who assist the doctor and nurses in the medical clinic, take an 80-hour medical assistance training program, in addition to the counseling training, from a certified nurse.

DeMott said the consolidation of the two agencies will probably be finalized by the end of this year.

DENISE CHANDLER, assistant director of Our House, a community crisis center, counsels a client over the phone. The center is planning to consolidate with Plymouth Youth, Inc., an agency that sponsors and coordinates youth-oriented activities.

Loop Road study set

PLYMOUTH—With official approval forthcoming, the city may be finally moving towards the first real steps in development of a downtown loop road.

City commissioners voiced their tentative approval Tuesday night to a preliminary six-point traffic study by Reid, Cool and Michalski, Traffic Engineers.

The study will cost the city an estimated $3,300 and will be completed by Dec. 31.

In discussions following a meeting on the city's audit report, the commission heard recommendations by City Manager Fred Yockey to go ahead with the study after approval at the next commission meeting.

Commissioner Harold Guenther expressed concerns over whether the proposal by the engineers would include a study of parking facilities, stating "this study cannot be dissociated from parking."

He also questioned whether the proposed study would provide the necessary information for the commission to reach a decision on the project. "I just want to make sure we don't come back with just half the story," Guenther said.

Yockey noted he had seen the firm perform when he was city manager in Midland, adding that they will bring "professionalism" to the study of the road's feasibility.

Yockey assured commission members that the firm does not tell their clients "what they want to hear" but are very factual in their analyses.

The six points of the study include:

—Given the objectives of the loop road, determine the adequacy and practicality of the loop road.

—Determine if it is feasible to test the loop road using the existing street system.

—Determine the feasibility of staged development of the loop road.

—Recommend the compatibility of a bike route with the loop road.

—Determine the need for a signal at Ann Arbor Trail and Union Street.

—Determine if detailed study of any part of the loop road is warranted.

With no members voicing any negative comments on the proposal, Commissioner Norbert Batterman suggested the item be placed on the next meeting agenda for the commission's official consideration.

It's goodbye to 'Pinky'

By W. W. EDGAR

PLYMOUTH—One of the most popular and most knowledgeable combinations in county and township government was broken up, officially, this week when Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes, Plymouth Township treasurer for the past 21 years, retired and turned the keys over to her successor—Joe West.

For the past 15 years Mrs. Holmes was the leader of a trio that included Mrs. Helen Richardson, present township clerk, and Mrs. Janice Birkelbaw, and it was considered the finest group in any one office in the suburbs.

Aside from their duties as treasurer and clerk, Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Richardson sat on the board of trustees where they served with distinction for more than a decade.

With due respect to the men who held the supervisor's post, it often was said in the township, "When you have a problem or want anything done, see 'Pinky,' or Helen. Mrs. Holmes long has been known by officials and friends as 'Pinky' and the nickname became a token of esteem and the signal that her treasurer's door always was open.

MRS. HOLMES took the treasurer's position upon the death of her husband who had been elected to the post. She served in the interim and finally was appointed to the post. She has held it ever since.

When she took over 21 years ago the salary was limited to fees. But in the years that followed the position became more and more important with the growing community and it became a salaried position.

Six years after Mrs. Holmes was on the job, Mrs. Richardson came on the scene and served under the treasurer until she was named to the clerk's position seven years ago.

Meanwhile Mrs. Birkelbaw also joined the clerical staff in the township office and the trio became almost inseparable.

Now, with Mrs. Holmes gone, there seems to be a void and some even have commented, the place won't be the same without 'Pinky.'

Asked why she had decided not to run for re-election after serving more than two decades, Mrs. Holmes calmly stated,

"I just thought it was time for a change."

At present she holds a real estate license, but has no intention of going into business.

"I'm out looking for a job," she said calmly as she turned over the keys and walked out of the township office as private citizen again.

shape with tight money and inflation."

According to Lewiston, currently there is no market for big and luxurious houses on large lots.

Lewiston notes, that as a land developer, he must wait for the sale of homes before he recovers his money. "We have to install sanitary systems, water mains, storm sewers, streets, and see that electrical lines and gas mains are installed." Then we sell this improved land to the builders. But we don't get paid until the houses are completed and sold. So we have to be very conservative, especially in hard times."

As a result, Lewiston contends that land developers must go where the market is. "It is proven," he claims, "that the market presently is for homes in the $35,000 to $50,000 range. These are the homes you find on a 60-foot lot."

AS FOR SAVING agricultural land, Lewiston is opposed to the Northwest Canton Homeowners Association. He says, "the land that is being farmed now is on a tenant basis. The owners rent it out by the acre to farmers and it helps defray their property taxes." He explains further, "farming is just not economically feasible here when you consider that the cost of the land has risen radically because of the value it has for builders and developers."

Lewiston also argues that people should not be prevented from buying the kind of house they want in Canton because the residents who moved in ahead of them want fewer 60-foot lots.

He says, "economically it doesn't make sense and we must temper these emotional arguments with economic realities."

"If you keep people out of Canton you're forcing them to go elsewhere. This was the case in Plymouth. People that wanted to move into the Plymouth area couldn't find housing that was cheap enough so they were forced to move to other areas such as Westland and Livonia."

Both the homeowners group and Lewiston look forward to the Greenstein administration with interest. (Greenstein was the first president of the Northwest Canton Homeowners Assoc.) The associations think that Greenstein will be more responsive to their viewpoint, and yet Lewiston is sure he will be able to work with Greenstein. "I'm sure we can adjust," he explains.

RU program studied nationwide

REDFORD—Educators from all over the United States are learning about the Redford Union Parent Readiness Education Project (PREP), which this year was named a Developer-Demonstrator Project by the United States Office of Education (USOE).

PREP was one of two innovative educational projects in Michigan and 31 nationwide that have received grants to become part of the USOE national information network of exemplary educational projects. They were chosen from more than 500 projects reviewed by non-government professionals on the USEO review panel. The Developer-Demonstrator sites were chosen because the review panel found them to be programs which worked and which could serve as models for projects to meet similar needs in other school districts.

During the 1974-75 school year, PREP will continue to serve 48 pre-kindergarten children, their families and 12 high school students in Redford Union. The goals will be to train parents to supply enriching educational experiences to their four-year-olds at home; to identify youngsters who are deficient in essential learning skills; and to provide high school students with direct experiences in child-parent relations and child development. The project will also continue to publish the PREP Preschool Press for Redford Union children and parents, and arrange preschool round-ups at all RU elementary schools.

As a Developer-Demonstrator Project, PREP will extend the concept of its services to statewide and national scope. Mrs. Diane Bert, project director, and Mrs. Harriet Hartman, program coordinator, will seek school systems that are looking for a successful preschool model and they will provide information, materials and assistance to those which might adopt PREP.

During the coming year, the staff will contact school districts throughout the state and country to provide information about the PREP preschool model. As part of their federally-funded activities, the staff will participate in local, state and national meetings to disseminate information about the RU program. Information sessions will be presented for interested people.

The PREP staff will work closely with Project Inform, a state agency which is part of a national clearinghouse of information about educational programs. Project Inform will provide information about exemplary Michigan programs to school districts all over the nation, as well as find programs within the national information network to fill the needs of schools in Michigan.

PREP representatives will arrange workshops to assist schools who are setting up programs modeled completely or partially on PREP. The service will include providing materials developed in PREP, as well as in-service training and technical assistance to new preschool programs patterned after PREP.

A final service of the demonstration staff will be assistance to people of any discipline who are interested in preschool-parent education. One of the first activities of PREP this fall was a presentation before Dr. John W. Porter and the State Board of Education in a committee study session by Mrs. Bert. The state board is considering developing a parent-child center for Michigan similar to PREP and is studying successful pre-school projects.

In October, the State Advisory Council of General Education Services held a public meeting at Westland School to learn about PREP. A new filmstrip presentation of the PREP preschool model was shown. Local educators and Redford Union families who have participated in PREP attended the meeting.

A recent demonstration meeting drew people from all over Michigan who have expressed interest in PREP.

Visitors from at least 40 states have observed the program since 1971 and several observers have visited from foreign countries. Even more are expected since the developer-demonstrator designation.

The project began in 1971, based on a plan designed by RU educators and parents to meet the needs of the RU community. "Redford Union showed foresight in providing a preschool program, which was ahead of its day in 1971," said Mrs. Bert.

In its first three years, PREP was completely funded by the United States Government under Title III of the ESEA for innovative educational projects. In its fourth year, a substantial portion of the budget for services to RU preschoolers, parents and high school students has been assumed by the Redford Union School District. The cost of services to other school districts in the developer-demonstrator program have been assumed by the USOE.

"The people of Redford Union deserve to be proud of their contribution to the nationally recognized success of PREP," Mrs. Bert declared.

"PREP was designed with the advice of parents as well as educators in Redford Union. PREP has worked because the people in Redford Union have shown they care about children during every phase of the program.

Santa is arriving at Mall with a pacer and sulky

Santa Claus is coming to the Livonia Mall Saturday morning and thousands of eager youngsters are expected to gather early (9:30 a.m.) to see their favorite bewhiskered gentleman arrive for his annual month's stay.

This time Santa will appear before the kiddies in an altogether different manner than ever before in this area... he's going to make his trip through the Livonia Mall via a pacer and sulky, thanks to the cooperation of Jackson Harness Raceway which is holding a winter meeting at Northville Downs.

The horse, Corker Bill, an eight-year-old owned and driven by Jayne Weller, one of the nation's top woman drivers, won as late as Monday night when it came from far back in the final quarter to win by a head.

This time Miss Weller and Susan Fogt will lead the horse and sulky through the Mall after Santa takes his seat in the sulky.

Student record access

School districts step ahead of law

A new federal law that allows parents access to their children's school records apparently is late in coming as far as area school districts are concerned.

A poll of local school superintendents indicates student files have been open to parents for as long as five years in one district.

The Family Educational Right and Privacy Act of 1974, which goes into effect this week, cuts off federal funds to any school district that denies parents the right to inspect and review all materials in their child's school records and to challenge the contents they feel are in error. The law also gives students age 18 or older the same rights.

The act also provides that schools no longer may release student records or a portion of records to any agency or individual outside the district without written consent of parents. Schools, however, may send records to another district upon a student transferring there.

PERHAPS the leader of open school records is the Plymouth district where Supt. John Hoben says student files have been open to parents for the past five years.

"We don't feel threatened by the federal ruling," Hoben said. "We've told our teachers to write reports as if parents were looking over their shoulders."

"There's nothing in our files which parents don't receive at home in the form of reports anyway."

If Hoben has any objection to the federal ruling it's because of what he feels parents may read into the records.

"People's interpretation of records are going to vary. IQ and test scores—what do they mean? Nothing. There's more to a child than the way he measures up on standardized tests."

Deputy Supt. Dr. Earl Hogan, who heads student records in Plymouth, said school files contain "basic information by means of typical child accounting."

"We don't keep teacher comments for any period of time and they are not in the permanent records," Hogan said.

Parents in Plymouth who wish to review their child's records should contact the building principal.

IN LIVONIA where an open record policy was enacted last year, teachers were asked to purge student records of statements which were not supported by evidence, according to Dr. Aram Vosgerchian, coordinator of counseling, records and testing.

"Basically what we did was introduce a different set of ground rules concerning records."

"Under the old rules teachers could insert comments like, 'Watch out for that kid,' which really weren't substantiated."

"Now we tell teachers to really mean what they say when they're writing records."

"WE WENT through a period of a month when we asked teachers to clean the records."

"Now we're in accord with the federal regulation and I think it's a good policy because it raises the level of professionalism in the records departments."

"If parents do not agree with what is in the records they should challenge them and they can even insert into the files a counterstatement."

Parents have the right of appealing the records beginning with the building principal and can carry their case to the school board if dissatisfied with administration action.

Vosgerchian said the only problem which cropped up was handling comments by a teacher who had left the district.

"We're leaving these cases up to the counselors. If comments seem to violate our new ground rules it is up to the counselor to make the professional decision of cleaning up the records or keeping them in tact."

Since the ruling went into effect, Vosgerchian said the district has not faced a rash of parents demanding record changes.

"We've had no problems whatsoever," he said.

WAYNE-WESTLAND is a district which revised its record keeping policy following protest from parents who objected to experimental teaching programs which included personal questionnaires about student's home life, racial and sexual attitudes.

According to Denny O'Neil, Wayne-Westland administrative assistant, teachers and administrators have to be more definitive in what they have included in a student's files.

"The teacher better be able to substantiate what he puts in the records," O'Neil said.

A shortcoming of the district's record keeping system, he said, is that much valuable information which could aid in student in seeking employment after graduation is destroyed after the student leaves the system. Included in such material are sports and extracurricular activities.

PERMANENT information consists of basic information such as date leaving or graduating from the system, schools previously attended, grade levels, attendance records, scores on intelligence tests and health data.

But while the student is in the system a more complete record is on file. Temporary records include reports of recurring behavior problems, teacher and counselor ratings, co-curricular activities, honors, hobbies, interests, educational and occupational plans.

In Wayne-Westland all anecdotal reports concerning students must be dated and signed by the observer.

"These reports are cumulative in nature. A single instance may have little value but related to a student's other reports over a period of time, may provide significant insight relative to a student's behavior," according to the district's policy statement.

BOTH REDFORD Township school districts have had their records open to parents for the past two years, according to the districts' superintendents.

In South Redford Supt. Joseph Rzepka noted in the past few years record keeping has taken on a new direction.

"We keep standard records which contain only pertinent information. Staff notes and communications from parents are not for the files."

Rzepka indicated South Redford was in compliance with the new federal regulation but said the administration would probably draw up new guidelines which would be more specific in nature spelling out the provisions of the federal ruling.

Redford Union (RU) Supt. Robert Juhnke feels his district will have to make no policy changes because RU records were purged of teacher comments two years ago.

Mail routes reduced by most area branches

The face of the mail carrier seen each day may have changed in some neighborhoods.

Because of changes in postal procedures, some post offices have reassigned mail carriers and assigned more homes to the routes of remaining carriers.

At least one post office has lost three mail carriers, another might lose some before mid-December, and a third would reduce its work force only through attrition.

THE BEECH BRANCH of the Detroit Post Office at 26050 Plymouth Road, Redford Township, has dropped three routes with other carriers increasing their delivery load.

The main reason is postal clerks are starting to mark the mail — a function previously done by the mail carrier. The changes, however, won't affect mail delivery.

As far as personnel goes, those who resign aren't being replaced. Of the three affected at the Beech Branch, one has resigned, one was transferred to downtown Detroit, and the third transferred to the City of Wayne.

Redford Heights Branch at 18840 Woodworth, Redford Township, hasn't reduced its work force and is waiting for word from the Detroit Post Office on how to handle the Christmas rush.

JOHN SHIVNEN, postmaster in Garden City, has a staff of 63 and hopes there won't be any personnel reduction.

The only time Shiven hires is when someone quits. "And no one is quitting now because of the tight job market," he adds. Any work force reduction would depend on the mail volume, he explains.

"If the volume holds, the staff will stay. We have no plans for expanding because of the nature of the community which is different than others, such as Westland, which are still growing."

LIVONIA POSTMASTER Donald Majkowski said the union contract prohibits any layoffs during the life of the contract, which expires July 19.

He expects a "lean year" for the Christmas holiday volume because of the Detroit area economic situation and layoffs. Persons aren't spending 25 cents for a card and 10 cents for postage to mail a hundred greeting cards this year.

Majkowski added there would be "very few, if any" extra carriers hired for the holiday period.

WAYNE POSTMASTER Bill Stottlmyer, whose post office serves Westland, says he has no problems and there won't be any layoffs, loss by attrition or any other type of workforce reduction.

Emile Asa, Detroit postal director, says the national union contract prohibits layoffs. There is an annual adjustment in routes, he adds, and sometimes boundaries of routes are changed to account for population and neighborhood changes.

Carriers are also having their number of stops increased to increase their time "in the field" and reduce the time they must spend in the post office. But all this is done, he emphasized, within the carrier's eight-hour day.

IN PLYMOUTH, the number of carrier routes has been reduced from 40 to 38 but nobody lost a job.

The change in Plymouth was also due to the centralized marking system with clerks marking mail instead of carriers. This process replaced two carrier hours with one clerical hour and caused a reduction of 13 carrier hours, or 1.5 carriers.

The Plymouth office, however, was understaffed and adopted the new system without any reassignments. Plymouth Post Office delivers to City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township residents and has 13 carrier routes in Canton Township.

Grant given to library

The Wayne County Federated Library System is one of 48 public library systems to receive a portion of $478,120 in federal funds to improve services for the disadvantaged and increase inter-library cooperation.

The $700 grant to the Wayne County library is to be used for participation in the State Library Interloan Network.

State Supt. of Schools, John W. Porter, told the state Board of Education that the federal funds help libraries reach people in remote areas, reservations, ghetto neighborhoods, hospitals, penal institutions, youth camps and schools for mentally and physically handicapped.

Porter explained: "Michigan is unique in many ways in that it has not only Black disadvantaged but also migrant Mexican-American workers and a great many American Indians who have never had materials to support their cultural background."

Eight library systems in the state received the $700 grants. Others ranged from $1,000 to $30,700.

Energy saving measures still are on the books

Last winter's energy scare has made a deep imprint on decision-makers at some businesses, schools and industries which report energy-saving programs instituted last year were no passing fad.

Classroom and office thermostats in the Livonia School District are still set at 68 degrees, a measure introduced last year in the midst of the energy crunch, while hallway temperatures hover around the 65 degree mark. Thermostats are lowered to 50 degrees during night-time hours, and blinds and drapes are drawn during cold weather.

The list of energy-saving measures, formed by an energy crisis committee, must be followed in all the district's buildings and schools, according to Ben Ray, business manager and chairman of the district's conservation committee.

"AT THE PRESENT, there does not appear to be a fuel crisis," Ray said.

"However, there is still a shortage of energy supplies in the country. We have to exercise conservation methods in order to insure the orderly operation of schools."

Ray said this year's program is a "little more relaxed" than last year's. High school swimming areas are kept warmer, he said, and thermostats are set back later in the day to reach the buildings' cooler night-time temperatures.

Although no formal program governs energy consumption in the South Redford School District, Jack Salvatore, assistant superintendent for business, said thermostats are lowered to about 70 degrees and unnecessary lights in offices and schools are turned off.

"WE CERTAINLY watched our usage closely last year," Salvatore said, "and we got through the crisis all right. I would say we'll follow it this year just as if we were in a crisis. I think it's good practice to continue."

Salvatore said a study to convert five of the district's schools from oil to natural gas heat is underway. Those study results will soon be presented to the South Redford School Board, he said.

The picture is much the same in the Wayne-Westland School District, where thermostats are set at 68 degrees and persons are reminded to turn off unnecessary lights.

"We implemented programs sometime last year, and we're following the same routine now," said Cleo Chambers, secretary to the assistant superintendent for physical plants and operations. "Anytime we come up with new ideas, we try to implement them."

ENERGY-SAVING programs used in local shopping centers paint a similar picture.

Joseph Spino, manager of Westland Center, said the thermostat in the mall is still set at 68 degrees, a measure introduced last year during the energy crunch. Outside Christmas lights, whose absence darkened the mall's festivities for the first time last year, will be missing this year also.

Spino said unnecessary lights in the center's corridors are still off, and the dial of the mall's air conditioning system, set at 70 degrees during most summers, was turned to 80 degrees this past season.

"That means less consumption of electricity and fuel," Spino said. "We're keeping the same schedule as last year, because most of the people aren't uncomfortable. We're going to hold on to these to save as much energy as possible. Even though we've cut down by about 25 per cent, it's been eaten up by rate increases."

FRANK JADZINSKI, resident manager of Livonia Mall, said his mall has cut electric and fuel consumption by 35 per cent since last winter's energy panic.

AMPLE FREE PARKING

What draws people?

THE EXPANSIVE PARKING LOT at the new Meijer Thrifty Acres at Canton and Ford Roads, Canton Township, was jammed Tuesday morning for the grand opening. Earlier, cars en route to the opening were backed up from Canton Center Road east to Wayne Road. As the morning passed, traffic cleared on Ford Road but the Meijer parking lot remained full throughout the day. (Staff photo).

Sumeracki retires as auditor

After serving 26 years, Arthur A. Sumeracki has retired from the elected three-member Wayne County Board of Auditors.

A Detroit Democrat, Sumeracki, 58, quit two years short of completing his present six year term. "My wife Charlotte and I want to do some traveling while we still have our health and energy, and I am now eligible for my full pension," he explained.

Jacob P. Sumeracki, who died Nov. 1 at age 83, established the name upon being elected county treasurer in 1932.

The elder Sumeracki was elected to the Board of Auditors in 1942 and retired in 1968. He was instrumental in getting Arthur Sumeracki interested in politics.

The younger Sumeracki was elected to the Board of Auditors in 1948 and was known as the "swing vote" in the midst of various strong-minded individuals who served with him over the years.

Under state law, the person to fill the vacant seat on the board of auditors will be selected by a committee consisting of Prosecuting Attorney William L. Cahalan, County Clerk Joseph B. Sullivan, and Presiding Probate Judge Willis F. Ward.

The two present auditors are Richard T. Kelly, just re-elected this month, and Leonard D. Proctor.

Saab cars sold by Livonia firm

Livonia Volkswagen Inc., 34501 Plymouth Road, Livonia, has been appointed as a regular dealer for the Swedish-built Saab cars by Saab-Scania of America, Inc.

The new dealership is headed by F. Harry Auffenberg, president, and Davis VanDoomik, vice-president. Auffenberg also has two VW dealerships in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Two Saab models will be made available through Livonia Volkswagen — the Saab 99 and the WagonBack Sedan. The 1975 Saab is one of the few autos sold in the U.S. without catalytic converters or thermal reactors. It is powered by a mechanically fuel-injected engine of 119 horsepower and has an exhaust gas recirculation system to meet the 1975 emission standard.

Barriers are a MUST on Schoolcraft -- NOW

Came the first snows of the winter, with many more expected before spring arrives next March, and suddenly it dawned on drivers going east and west on Schoolcraft Road that the partially finished highway has many dangerous spots that should be eliminated before any more snow or freezing rain.

Why do we mention this? The answer is simple. We have a firm belief that the Schoolcraft Road contractors and the State Highway Department have an obligation to make the road safe for travel. We don't think they are doing it now, and we believe there will be numerous serious accidents before the end of the winter.

In so many words, we feel it's high time steps are taken to erect barriers such as those between Middle Belt and Inkster Roads where driving isn't a quarter as dangerous as it is between Middle Belt and Merriman Roads and is rapidly becoming between Farmington and Levan.

THIS ISN'T a personal matter. It's a fight for safety that is getting the attention of more and more drivers, many of whom have decided it's better to take a longer route than take a chance on Schoolcraft.

In the first place, there is a 20-year-old in St. Mary Hospital in Livonia following a near fatal accident. His condition is still serious, and the accident happened three weeks ago when he missed a turn and skidded down the steep embankment while going westbound.

True enough, he was in an ambulance and en route to the hospital in a matter of minutes, but he suffered injuries that will have him idled for a long time.

The question arises, "Would this accident have happened if there had been a stout barrier of some kind there?" The answer is probably not, and the young man most likely wouldn't be as seriously injured.

Of course this is all conjecture but leads one to wonder just why the contractors and the State Highway Department saw fit to construct permanent concrete barriers along Schoolcraft between Middle Belt and Inkster where very little excavation has taken place.

One wonders if it was because of the race track traffic in the spring, summer and early fall when hundreds of cars were going in and out of the Detroit Race Course. Should it be brought out that the horse races return a pretty penny to the state treasury in the taxes on mutual wagering and that dangerous driving conditions might cause many to stop attending?

R. T. Thompson writes

THOSE DRIVING WEST on Schoolcraft beginning at Middle Belt are principally workers at the many plants in that section of Livonia and at the Ford, Burroughs and Western Electric plants in Plymouth. These drivers are interested in getting to work safely and on time; many are in a bit of a hurry when they leave home a wee bit too late and they often take chances.

But those days are becoming a thing of the past as more and more motorists look to their rigorous left, depending which way they are traveling on Schoolcraft and see a long drop within a few feet of the edge of the road.

Many have skidded on the muddy, sloppy going in heavy rains caused by the huge trucks dropping earth as they move away from the excavations. Many cars have come dangerously close to rolling over the edge, that's the information being relayed to us, and all are plenty scared to think of what could happen on icy, slippery conditions.

Schoolcraft Road needs barriers to protect the drivers, the cars, trucks and school buses that pass these excavations daily. The barriers aren't needed after someone is killed. They are a MUST right now when driving conditions are still reasonably safe.

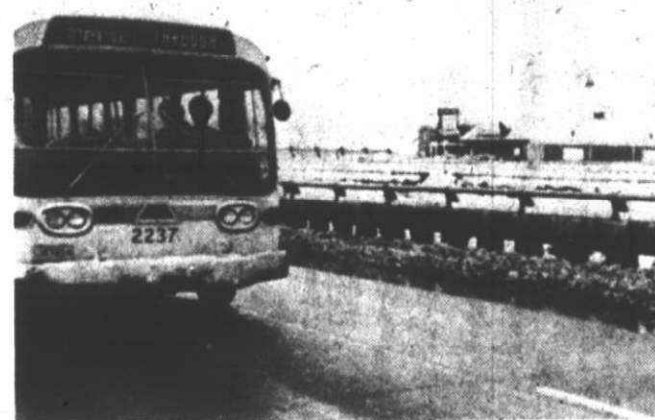

THE LIVONIA TRAFFIC Commission, which actually doesn't have that much control over Schoolcraft, because it comes under the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Road Commission, believes they are needed.

The Livonia commission is writing to the Road Commission, the State Highway Department, the governor, state senators and state representatives appealing for help in making Schoolcraft safer by the construction of barriers.

"The complaints from Livonia residents and a check of some of the gaping holes made us realize that action should be taken and taken soon," a member of the traffic commission said.

"Our job is to make road conditions safer for all residents of Livonia, and even though we have no jurisdiction over Schoolcraft, we are asking others to get in the act and help resolve the situation quickly."

Our reply is Amen, and the quicker the better. If you feel the same way, let us know by your letters to the editor. Let's join in making the Highway Department and the contractors get on the ball and quickly.

Victory vs. desire to excel

Fred DeLano writes

But extremism really is not their bag; respect is.

I THINK the proponents of "win at any cost" have missed the boat in semantics when they advocate this as a philosophy to be pursued by the agents of our educational institutions. I suggest a substitute approach, equally compelling, by which we can be sure classes WILL meet, and the sun WILL rise tomorrow, even if we lose today.

There is nothing — repeat, nothing — more important in the educational process than cultivation of the DESIRE to excel. All necessary energies of student and teacher alike should be expended in that direction, even though conceding that some will make it and some won't.

"It is a wretched taste to be gratified with mediocrity when the excellent lies before us," wrote Disraeli, and Leon Uris, in one of his novels, spoke of those whose sole mission in life is to attain the goal of mediocrity with the words:

"They sail into a safe harbor, button up and conveniently and quietly sort their paper clips, avoiding responsibility and decisions. I can't explain, but I can't run or plug my ears or close my eyes or turn my back. I often envy those who can."

As I look back, education means the total experience gained from life, not just what is absorbed in the classroom between bells.

This is why I am such a headstrong advocate of millages that keep TOTAL programs going in our area — the bands and orchestras, choirs, debating teams, publications, drama clubs, broadcasting, art, sports, shop mechanics, science and all the rest. Underscoring it all, individually and collectively, should be the quest to be the best.

It may turn out that those OSU and U-M debaters will become leaders in this country, too, along with the guards, tackles and centers from the gridiron. They merit the chance, once instilled with desire. Now, Go Blue! Smash those decadent monsters of Ohio, and then greet the dawn with distaste only if we didn't try our best.

Pressure group gloats

Last week, I deplored the tendency of certain politicians to act horrified at businessmen's contributions to political campaigns and look the other way when organized teachers got into the act.

As additional evidence, I herewith offer a news release from the National Education Association, parent organization for all our area teachers' union. The release is printed intact, without comment, addition or deletion.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 6—"For the teachers of America, this was their finest hour," James A. Harris, president of the National Education Association, said today as election returns showed a successful sweep for most NEA-supported congressional candidates.

"The education profession has proven in this election that it is a first-rate power in the political arena," Harris declared.

Looking ahead to 1976, he said that "we consider our successes at the polls yesterday a mandate to put a friend of education in the White House."

Returns show that 247 of the 310 candidates for the House of Representatives and the Senate backed by the association's political action committee (NEA-PAC) have been elected and results are incomplete in nine other races. In both houses, nearly 80 per cent of NEA-supported candidates have won: 22 successful candidates in the Senate out of 28 that were backed (2 incomplete) and, in the House, 225 winners out of 282 (seven incomplete).

"THIS IS A SWEET victory, a victory for responsible teacher power," Harris commented. "But it is also a victory for the nation's schools and for more than 50 million students."

"The muscle that teachers have exhibited on the hustings has been translated into a more pro-education Congress, one which will, we're confident, strengthen the federal government's commitment to the public schools. Only through re-ordering Congress could we re-order the priorities of a government that has commonly treated education as an unwanted child."

Harris paid special tribute to the tens of thousands of teachers who were politically active in this campaign.

Tim Richard writes

"Our political operation, like that of no other organization, is a grassroots endeavor," the head of the 1.5 million-member NEA declared. "We are a part of every community, every precinct, in the nation."

BUT THE VAST network of the country's largest professional association was only part of the success story, the Des Moines teacher pointed out. Even more important was the calibre of people involved.

"This campaign worker is a new breed of teacher, one who, believing that education and politics do mix, has taken up political activism and transformed it into political clout in behalf of the nation's schoolchildren," Harris said. "Educated, sophisticated, dedicated, they contribute more than even their large numbers might indicate."

Harris emphasized, however, that teacher campaign workers didn't insist on choice jobs—"they did whatever needed to be done, from making phone calls and canvassing door-to-door to stuffing envelopes."

Cash contributions, as well as endorsements, were given many of the candidates through NEA-PAC—more than $225,000 compared with about $27,000 in the 1972 national elections. In addition, the association's 50 state political units spent an estimated $3.5 million on federal, state, and local campaigns this year.

Despite the modest effort in 1972, candidates supported by teachers won in 128 of 165 House contests and in 13 of 19 Senate races.

"Sometime in this decade, the NEA is going to have more political resources, including volunteers and other campaign contributions, than any other single union—even more than the AFL-CIO," says Stanley J. McFarland, director of NEA Government Relations. "We may even do it by 1976."

How Grinch stole government

The fine art of political fund raising must be reformed. Nobody can honestly deny it.

Years ago we bemoaned the fact that the high cost of running for office meant that only the very wealthy could participate.

At least the rich man was free from outside pressure because he used his own money to get elected.

Today many of the "poor man's" candidates have discovered a way to raise great sums of money for campaigns and compete with the wealthy.

THEY LOOK around and see who is interested in governmental action and solicit funds from these special interest groups.

So now instead of government by the rich, we have government by special interest.

The new lieutenant governor elect got into trouble because some land developers contributed to his campaign for the state legislature.

Judges still solicit campaign money from the attorneys who have to appear before them everyday. Obviously, an attorney who has contributed a large sum is not going to get any special consideration from a jurist who has to run again for office in the future and will need more money then.

GOVERNMENT HAS closed the door by law for big, mean corporations giving money to political campaigns.

But no one seems alarmed that labor unions who are lobbying daily for all sorts of new laws are contributing in some cases more than 50 per cent of the campaign funds needed by would-be and incumbent congressmen or state legislators; plus additional personnel to help.

Eccentricities

BY HENRY M. HOGAN, JR.

I have not figured out why a corporation or land developer is bad and a labor union is all right when condemning special interest, unless of course, they have contributed enough to enough office holders that they can pressure for this protection.

WHILE I HATE to see the federal government finance elections, we must prevent special interests from buying elections and elected officials.

There must be limitations set on the amount any person or organization can give and they must be strictly enforced.

The lesson of Watergate and related fund raising schemes has to be that government can be stolen from the American people unless we have campaign funding reform.

Jailing teachers is no remedy

EDITOR:

I am a teacher in the Livonia public school system and have carefully followed what is happening in Garden City. I find that Judge Kaufman's decision to send 11 teachers to jail to be a very ineffective punishment. I realize that defying a court injunction cannot go unnoticed, but there seem to be more effective ways of handling the situation.

Let me compare the "principles" of Judge Kaufman's job and mine. As a high school classroom teacher, I cannot let the misbehavior or defiant acts of one of my students go unnoticed. I have a number of alternatives. Condemning or isolating the student to "sit in a corner" or suspend him from class will not solve the problem. It will only prove that no one is going to defy my classroom rules. Perhaps my classroom rules are out-dated and need changing!

What is most important is to come to an understanding of the problem, then to remedy and solve that particular problem so that we can conduct an orderly class. More effective than the disciplinary punishment is to discuss the problem at hand until an agreeable compromise is reached. The misbehavior is irreversible, no why spend time pondering over why a particular act was committed?

I hope you are beginning to see my point: Judge Kaufman's jail sentence is not going to remedy anything. It will probably make matters worse.

He could have found a more effective and meaningful form of "punishment" — perhaps locking both sides into bargaining. The students are the ones suffering.

His action shows he is not immediately concerned with getting students back to school. What is Judge Kaufman trying to prove with his decision to send teachers to jail?

Perhaps it is time for all of us to write our government representatives in order to have meaningless laws changed.

Drivers lack common sense

EDITOR:

Put up barriers around all excavation sites along Schoolcraft Road? Come off it, now! After all, this road is under construction.

I travel Schoolcraft from east to west and cross it at many intersections in my line of work. I also use other construction routes. In most cases, I find that the contractors and State Highway Department do a good job in keeping those routes open for the convenience of the public, to use with care and caution. They could close the road down completely.

I also note that a great many drivers barrel along the two-lane service drive of Schoolcraft like it is an expressway. Very few going less than 45 mph, just because of the 45 mph sign. Darkness does not slow them down. Wet, slippery, icy or muddy pavement does not register on their minds.

Skidding on wet, muddy or icy pavement, running off the road, etc., are in 99 per cent of cases the driver's own fault because he was not using common sense or paying attention to his driving. A driver who cannot keep a seven-foot wide car on a 30-foot-wide road will not only run into an excavation but one of the telephone poles, trees or houses along this route. With luck he might run into a barrier, too.

The answer to safety along Schoolcraft remains with the driver: Common sense.

1. Drive according to road conditions. 2. Slow down on wet, slippery pavement. 3. Don't overdrive your headlights. 4. Be able to stop in the assured clear distance ahead. 5. Have your vehicle under control.

One other answer to the problems along Schoolcraft: No one must travel Schoolcraft. If the construction along Schoolcraft unnerves a driver to the extent that he cannot control his vehicle, then use another route.

Accept the responsibility of a driver. Don't put your poor judgment off on someone else. Remember, you're driving the car, not the contractor.

EDITOR:

I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of the Wayne County Health Department to extend our sincere appreciation to you for publicizing the free immunization clinics, which were conducted Oct. 27.

As a result of the overall publicity effort, 2,500 children were immunized with more than 5,000 doses of vaccine to protect them against measles, rubella and poliomyelitis.

We feel the clinics were very successful, and we would like to thank you for assisting us in getting the word to the people and subsequently protecting the lives of many Wayne County residents.

Phone first before visiting Social Security

Residents should phone first before visiting any of the Social Security Administration's (SSA) 19 southeast Michigan offices.

This can be done by using the new Teleservice Center in northwest Detroit.

William Grendon, the center's manager, says residents can get information (toll-free) that might make the trip unnecessary, or might get suggestions that could shorten the trip.

The center, connected electronically with SSA's seven program centers around the nation, offers fast service, on reports of address change, non-receipt of checks, and the resumption of checks to persons who have stopped them due to work.

The phone number for Wayne County residents, except for the Plymouth area, is 493-1111. Plymouth area residents should call 459-9700.

Grendon says the most frequently asked question is: "How much will I get?" His 42-member staff is prepared with information on Medicare, how to estimate retirement, survivor and disability checks, and suggestions on how to prove age. The staff can also inform callers on how to document claims.

By handling up to 6,000 calls daily, the center helps free local offices to meet with the public who must go to them. It is part of a strategy to cope with Social Security's rising workload.

In Michigan's five southeast counties, this means adding about 20,000 persons to the combined social security and supplemental security income (SSI) rolls this year.

Nader to speak in Dearborn

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader will give a public lecture on the economy and consumerism at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Salvation Army nears fund goal of $1.5 million

The capital fund drive of the Salvation Army is nearing its end with $1.3 million being raised for a major building program in Detroit. The goal is $1.5 million.

The drive began July 1 this year under the chairmanship of Dean E. Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit. Solicitations, which have closed, resulted in 87 per cent of the goal being reached in the three-month period. Additional contributions will continue to be received during the coming months.

THE EFFECT of the funds collected has already become visible. The seven-story Architect's Building on Brainard on the near west side has been purchased and renovation is under way. The building expands existing facilities and will be used to treat alcoholics and drug addicts.

Plans for a $1 million nursing home on Park Avenue near downtown Detroit have been finalized, and ground will be broken in the spring.

A swimming pool and bath house at the Echo Grove Camp just outside Detroit, which serves less privileged children, mothers and the visually handicapped, is nearing completion.

THE PROCEEDS of the campaign will also finance an Emergency Lodge and Welfare Center on Peterboro and the Harding Corps Community Center on the near east side.

Funds will also be used to finance projects in Royal Oak and Mt. Clemens.

In this area, Salvation Army operates a resale store on Ford Road in Garden City and a place of worship in the City of Plymouth.

High school smokers

Why do they light up?

Where? What's the law?

How are non-smokers affected?

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Sheltered by a corner of the building, 17 students at a Livonia junior high school were smoking during their lunch hour.

On the same day the air in two lavatories in a Garden City high school was blue with cigaret smoke.

At Thurston High School in South Redford, students were smoking openly outside the building in an area designated by school authorities.

To these students, smoking is cool. To the schools, smoking is a problem.

To non-smoking students, smoking is a pain in the neck.

THE CRIMINAL STATUTE of Michigan states that no minor may purchase or possess cigarets. It also says that any adult encouraging the assembly of minors for the purpose of smoking on property held by him is guilty of a criminal offense.

But in an effort to deal with the realities of the present era, Michigan Department of Education guidelines soften this somewhat.

In a publication in 1972 it recommended that: "No person shall be allowed to smoke in the school building or on the school premises, except in prescribed areas."

In addition, state law asks that all schools teach in their health classes that not only is smoking dangerous to health, but alcohol and drugs as well.

EACH OF THE AREA school districts deal with the smoking problem according to the dictates of its school board and its citizenry.

All junior high schools forbid smoking on either school property or in the building. Two of the six districts surveyed also declare that smoking is absolutely a no-no in their high schools and in high school property. These districts are Garden City and Redford Union.

The four remaining districts outlaw smoking from their high school buildings and from most of the school property. However, they have each designated a special area outside that can be used for smoking.

These districts are South Redford, Plymouth Community School District, Livonia and Wayne-Westland.

IN GENERAL the students using these areas deposit their cigaret butts in containers and the area is otherwise cleaned by custodians.

In both Ladywood and Bishop Borgess Catholic high schools, smoking is also forbidden in the school and on the grounds, and like the public schools the penalty is suspension.

Suspension at Bishop Borgess is unlike that at most other schools. The student is not sent home. Rather, he spends his time in a special detention room doing extra school work, after which he must also do his regular assignments or receive a reduced grade.

In Bishop Borgess about 20 have been suspended so far this year for smoking. In Ladywood about four. At Redford Union about 45 have been suspended.

AN EIGHTH-GRADE student from Burger Junior High in Garden City was expelled recently for a fourth smoking violation. Last year in the same city, 231 students were suspended for their first smoking offense, 36 for a second offense and nine for a third.

There have been one or two suspensions this year at Plymouth-Salem High School, according to Pat Fitzpatrick, area coordinator.

At Churchill in Livonia, there has been one. At Dickinson Junior High in the same city, Bill MacFarland, assistant principal, noted, "There have been very few suspensions this year and there has been a reduction in smoking this year over five years ago."

At Thurston there have been no suspensions this year, said Martin Brosnan, assistant principal.

BROSNAN SAID the plan for using designated areas, instituted last year, is "a wise policy."

"We are not encouraging smoking," he said. "The kids smoke outside and leave the lavatories as lavatories. With this rule the kids don't have to be constantly looking over their shoulders."

"Now the lavatories are a lot cleaner with hardly any butts around. When you walk in you can see where you're going. It's about a 95 per cent improvement."

Dr. Robert Schramke, principal at Redford Union High School, feels differently. "We don't feel we should encourage students to smoke or to sanction it in any way," he said. "The community feels the same way. We are acting under board policy. Knowing what we know about cigarets, we don't want to give in to student pressure for a smoking lounge.

"Sometimes it seems we are batting our heads against a stone wall but that doesn't mean we okay it."

JACK COMSTOCK, principal of Churchill, where students may smoke outside in two designated areas, feels this method of dealing with the problem is working, although not perfectly.

The new plan was put in effect in 1972 and so far this year there has been little trouble.

"Sometimes when it gets cold they finish their smokes inside the building and we catch them," he said. "Last year they sometimes smoked in the johns when it was cold. But we haven't had that problem yet."

Dr. Paul Johnson, deputy superintendent of Livonia schools, noted that the Livonia method "was very effective in reducing smoking in the lavatories," adding, "it has reduced it markedly."

"Before this they were not fit for others to use."

GERALD GOULD, principal of Garden City East, feels his school district has to consider the practical and legal aspect of smoking.

"It is not legal for kids to smoke," he said pointing out that the teachers in his school "hit the lavatories throughout the day" on inspection tours.

"Smoking in the lavatories depends on when they were hit last by the teachers," he said. "I'm not happy with it. Students ought to be able to use the lavatories without being inundated with smoke. But the only way to get rid of smokers would be to hire lavatory attendants as they have in Dearborn."

GOULD SAID there are two main reasons for not going the designated-smoking-area route. "It would be a caretaking problem. The kids always say they would keep it clean but they don't."

"Also such an area is a natural spot for the passing of drugs. No one has worked out a solution yet."

Dennis O'Neill, assistant to the superintendent of the Wayne-Westland school district, is another who thinks designated areas for smoking is a better system.

"We have gotten away from the patrol system of three or so years ago," he said. "It is demeaning to ask teachers to patrol the lavatories. This way we are more realistic."

"Part of the problem was that we had to protect the non-smokers who couldn't use the lavatories, and while they are not completely free today of smoke, there is a 90 per cent improvement."

BILL BROWN, principal of Plymouth-Salem, said that when he was working at the old high school, "I used to be sent across the tracks to the coal yard to find smokers."

Which way is right, he asked? "The school house reflects what the public wants," he said. "Parents send in youngsters who smoke anywhere in the community and they think in school something magic should happen to stop them."

"We have 3,608 kids here and on a day with good weather you might see 50 or 60 kids out smoking."

Ed Philipps, the assistant principal of Wayne Memorial, which permits outdoor smoking, believes that crowds of students in the lavatories sometimes led to vandalism but "they no longer are gathering places for smokers."

But will this change when the weather becomes colder and the students try to smoke inside?

"In winter we are going to have a bunch of cold smokers," he declared.

IN THE JUNIOR HIGHS smoking continues "just about as much as before," according to Richard Buerk, assistant principal of Westland's Stevenson Junior High and Robert Bogner, principal of Burger Junior High in Garden City.

Is there a move toward loosening up the junior high policy?

"We tell the students the smoking policy is not debatable," said Buerk. Bill MacFarland of Dickinson Junior High in Livonia, reported that three girls recently volunteered to help the school with its smoking problem.

"They were turned off by the smoke in the lavatories, plus the effect of smoking on their friends," he said.

While it seems clear that no school district has found the one, the only, definitive solution to the problem of tobacco, most district educators would probably agree with Martin Brosnan of Thurston.

"You'll never eliminate it completely."

As the smoke clears The students speak

"The smoking situation is getting out of hand," said one student non-smoker about the problem in his school. "Either they should crack down on it or let the smokers smoke outside. Other schools do it."

His remarks were backed up by most student smokers and non-smokers interviewed. However, one male student was eager to have his opinion placed on the other side of the ledger.

"If I hadn't been allowed to smoke at school I would have given it up long ago," he said. "I wouldn't go to the johns to smoke if it was not allowed."

THE NON-SMOKERS experience many problems with both smoke and smokers. "Here you have to push smokers out of the way to get to the lavatories and then they look at you as though you were strange to be there and not smoke," said a non-user.

"I have asthma," said another. "I find it nauseating to go into the lavatories with all that smoke."

"They put out their cigarets by pushing them into the toilet paper and it makes holes in it," said a third. "I always go home to go to the bathroom," stated a fourth.

A senior observed that some students at his school really craved cigarets. "They shake and have to leave the room," he said. "Most kids smoke just to be cool and in, with the crowd."

One youth estimated that at least 50 per cent of the student body at his school are smokers. "But you can't kick out half the school and you can't control it."

AS MIGHT BE expected, smokers had strong opinions on the subject of a place for them to smoke "legally."

"We need a smoking lounge," said one girl through the haze of the lavatory where she puffed away with both eyes on the door, ready to drop her cigaret in the toilet the moment anyone entered.

"Half our parents let us smoke," she added.

Another smoker believed "it's not fair to smokers or to non-smokers that we don't have a smoking area," adding, "non-smokers don't want to come in here."

Standing outside in a designated smoking section a student lit up and said, "it's better here than in the johns because we have fresh air."

A SENIOR GIRL noted that people get rowdy sometimes in the lavatories.

"Here you can come out with your friends and sit on the grass," she said. "It makes you feel more responsible."

Another said that before outdoor smoking came along, the only place the girls went to use a toilet was to the girls' locker room.

"But now the lavatories are clean and we don't have to worry about smoke," she said. "I've heard a lot of students say they are glad the smokers have gone."

She mentioned that last year, members of the students council in her school cleaned up one of the girls' lavatories after it was vacated by the smokers.

"We really scrubbed the floor and we painted the walls and ceiling and covered the graffiti," she said. "It was total improvement. We now have hot and cold water that works, a new sink fixture and new paper towel holders."

"It was such an improvement we are thinking of doing others."

Livonian creates her own pinatas

By SHERRY KAHAN

When Mrs. Sonia Perez of Livonia was considering taking up a hobby 15 years ago she remembered the Mexican festivals she had attended in which a group of laughing children tried to break the pinata (peenyata) that hovered over their heads.

Bang! Pow! With a stick each child took a turn trying to smash the clay surface and when one was successful a shower of candy fell on his head.

DECIDING that her future lay in pinatas, Mrs. Perez rejected the traditional clay pinatas, preferring to make hers out of papier mache.

However, having a kind heart she made her first ones very thin so that the children could break them easily.

But some time later she had a surprise. No one wanted to smash her pinatas. "The children didn't want to break my Snoopy pinata," she said.

Nor did their mothers want to break the swans she made for bridal showers, nor the donkeys, bulls and alligators she made for decorative purposes. She began to receive many orders for purely decorative pinatas.

"Several women once wanted me to make a replica of a sailboat they owned," she said. "They wanted it the same color as the boat, with its name on it and everything. They were going to place it on display."

BELIEVE IT or not, when Mrs. Perez starts to make a group of pinatas she first buys a package of balloons.

"I blow up the balloon and then begin to cover it with strips of newspaper dipped in flour and water," she said. "If I want it strong I add many layers."

For example when she began her series of mariachi dolls, Mexican musicians, each form took 120 strips of newspaper. "That's where the work came in," said Mrs. Perez.

Once the basic form is made, Mrs. Perez then can go to town with her own creative ideas. But this too requires time and patience.

After buying the tissue form of gift wrapping paper, she goes through a long process of cutting it into strips, folding it and cutting it again, making what she calls bubble strips.

By using different colors of this paper, she works up a complete wardrobe for her dolls that is full of frills and distinction.

WITH OTHER materials, mainly paper, Mrs. Perez will humanize her creations by providing them with the customary amount of eyes, eyebrows, eyelashes, moustaches, mouths, and hair including sideburns.

For her mariachi dolls she also made musical instruments.

Mrs. Perez will be taking her pinatas to an art show in St. Gabriel Church, Detroit, Nov. 23 and 24.

"But I don't want to sell my mariachis," she said. "They do something for me. But I will sell my alligators, donkeys and bulls and traditional pinatas."

Not only does Mrs. Perez feel very protective about her works of art, she also feels very personal about them. Once she made a seven-foot Mexican man in traditional costume. It took her three months of work and when she finished they were practically old friends.

But while he was on exhibit at a yacht club party, he was stolen by pranksters. Luckily he was found on a yacht and returned to Mrs. Perez in a somewhat damaged form.

She took one look at him and asked, "Well, what happened to you?"

Golden years for Kukulas

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kukula of Livonia celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, Nov. 3, with a mass of thanksgiving in St. Edith Catholic Church and a reception hosted by their children.

The Kukulas were married Nov. 4, 1924, in St. Stephen Catholic Church in Detroit. They have two sons and two daughters and six grandchildren.

Museum lures younger set as patrons, exhibitors

There are different types of museums in this area, ranging in subject matter from natural history to cars to historical events.

But perhaps no museum has had a special exhibit quite like the one prepared by the students at New Morning alternative school in Plymouth.

Parents and friends of the students came, cameras in hand, to see and record the exhibits prepared by the students. Currently the school students range in age from 5 to 11.

Each visitor received a museum "guidebook" prepared by the exhibitors and telling about each of the projects.

Most of the younger students worked together to make a papier mache stegosaurus.

The guidebook proclaims that "Dinosaurs lived a long, long time ago. Dinosaurs were dangerous."

Another page of the book tells that "Dinosaur means terrible lizard. Tyrannosaurus Rex was the king of the dinosaurs and he was a meat eater."

But in addition to the dinosaur display, there were displays about submarines, Indians, space, and trees.

Most of the displays were inside boxes and easily moved. Since the school uses facilities of Epiphany Lutheran Church, 41390 Five Mile, the displays had to be easily movable.

Each child seemed to be delighted with his or her own project and just as proud of the work of fellow students.

Bradley's submarine project was a wonder to behold. His exhibit "was electric so you have to be careful" the guidebook said, and Bradley had wired the electricity himself.

Dinosaurs had the largest following and the corrugated cartons containing the miniature clay replicas of the prehistoric animals. Each had its own personality.

Nicky's shadow demonstration of the constellations was a last-minute replacement for his display of the planets. The planets formed of clay had disintegrated but the stars were a happy substitute and Nicky had a busy evening rolling his constellations back and forth.

The idea for the museum came when the students returned from a visit to the Ruthven (natural history) museum in Ann Arbor.

Each child planned his own display, with notes detailing the plans posted for everyone's inspection.

The result was a fascinating conglomeration of interests and creativity.

St. Aidan setting for nuptials

Barbara Ann Hayward and Thomas J. Sacharski were united in marriage in a recent ceremony in St. Aidan Catholic Church of Livonia.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Hayward of Livonia and Mr. and Mrs. John Sacharski, also of Livonia.

The Rev. Alex J. Brunett officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silk organza gown with rows of appliques and a Juliet cap with a fingertip veil. Her flowers were white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Susan Mayville of Windsor, cousin of the bride and maid of honor, wore a pale green halter gown with matching long-sleeved jacket.

The bridesmaids, all in similar dresses in pink, were Patricia Jo Hayward, sister of the bride, Eileen Heidehoff, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mary Lou Quennell of Windsor, also a cousin of the bride.

Gary Sacharski was his brother's best man and the ushers were two other brothers, James and David Sacharski, and Richard Hayward, brother of the bride.

After a reception in the Thunderbird-Hilton of Plymouth the couple honeymooned in Toronto. They are living in Plymouth.

In a recent candlelight ceremony in St. Paul Lutheran Church of Northville, Diana Lynne Parlette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Parlette of Robinwood Avenue, Plymouth, became the bride of John Joseph Lubinski.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Julia Lubinski of Detroit and Harry J. Lubinski, also of Detroit.

The Rev. Charles F. Boerger officiated and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Her gown was ivory sateen with chantilly lace trim. With it she wore a full-length mantilla of illusion and lace. She carried a nosegay of deep red silk roses and dried white statice. Carol Parlette, as maid of honor for her sister, wore a floor-length berry red polyester knit dress with long sleeves and a lace bib. She carried pink silk roses and dried white flowers.

Linda Finley of Plymouth and Donna Lubinski of Detroit, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They were dressed like the maid of honor.

Assisting the bridegroom were his brother, David Lubinski of Utah, as best man, and John Merle of Drayton Plains and Ron Rzepka of Plymouth as ushers.

A buffet dinner for 120 guests was served in the church parlor following the ceremony.

The couple went on a short honeymoon in northern Michigan before re-

Town Hall revives razzamatazz ragtime

BY SHERRY KAHAN

By the tapping of their feet you could tell who had rhythm at the Northville Town Hall lecture-concert of William Albright at Madonna College.

Both an organist and pianist, Albright, on this occasion, was exhibiting his talents as a razzamatazz ragtime piano player. With both music and commentary he drew his audience into the post World War I era when musicians like Scott Joplin and James P. Johnson were shocking the public with what could be done with the stately Steinway, if you just had a little soul.

It was the era of colorful song titles like "Carolina Shout," "Snowy Morning Blues" and "Mule Walk Stomp." It was a time of rent parties when a person who was broke would invite his friends to his endangered apartment to pay to hear a piano player play the new ragtime.

"The jazz styles that came along later grew out of ragtime," said Albright. "In jazz everyone developed his own style. There was no printed music. Everyone learned by listening to other performers either in person or on records."

Playing works of both ragtime and jazz musicians, Albright also included a selection from his own work, "The Grand Sinata in Rag," which he calls "Ragtime Turtle Dove."

He then carried his audience up to the boogie-woogie period of 1939-40 with the work of the man Albright considered the best boogie-woogie of the bunch, Meade Lux Lewis, a man who sat down at his piano weighing 350 pounds. "Many of his pieces were inspired by train travel," said Albright, who then played Lewis' "Honky Tonk Train Blues."

Albright, who is organist of the First Unitarian Church of Ann Arbor and gives about 40 concerts a year of organ music, discovered ragtime with a friend. Both composers, they began mailing their own rags back and forth to each other.

"Ragtime style as a piano style was not so well known and was much more obscure than Dixieland," said Albright. "But I found a lot of joy in it."

Ragtime is a kind of hobby to Albright, who is known also as an interpreter of recent organ music. He was featured organist and composer at the national convention of the American Guild of Organists.

But plainly Albright is interested in all kinds of music. "I followed the rock music of the '60s," he said. "In fact, I almost started my own group. It was rather exciting music at the time. But it's not so exciting now. Musicians have retreated to hyper-commercial sounds and hard rock sounds mannered."

Albright said he had a soft spot in his heart for the Motown groups. "They had real personality, style and a real hard core rhythm and blues sound," he said, adding that two of his favorites were the Supremes and Martha and the Vandellas. As he headed back to Ann Arbor, the versatile Albright noted that he is currently returning to his interest in the organ works of Johann Sebastian Bach. "I am relearning Bach pieces I haven't played in years," he said.

Felicians mark 100 years in America

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the Felician Sisters (Congregation of St. Felix) in America will be celebrated in the chapel of the Motherhouse of the Livonia province, 36800 Schoolcraft, Sunday, Nov. 24.

Mass for 800, including delegates and guests from throughout the world, will be celebrated at 4 p.m. by John Cardinal Dearden, Catholic archbishop of Detroit, and will be followed by a dinner for 1,300 persons in Raleigh House, Southfield.

Concelebrating the mass will be Bishop Joseph Breitenbeck of the Grand Rapids diocese, Bishop Francis Reh of the Saginaw diocese, and Bishop Arthur Krawczak, auxiliary bishop of Detroit. Joining in the celebration will be 26 other monsignors and priests from the dioceses in which the sisters minister.

THE LIVONIA GROUP is the oldest of the order's nine provincialates and vice-provincialates in the United States, Canada and Brazil. It was first established in Polonia, Wisc. on Nov. 21, 1874 to work among the Polish immigrants at the request of Fr. Joseph Dabrowski, pastor of Sacred Heart Church.

In 1882, Mother Mary Monica, the first provincial superior, transferred the growing community to a more central location in Detroit. From its center at the corner of Canfield and St. Aubin, the Felician Congregation operated a seminary for the education of teachers, a school and an orphanage, and conducted other works of mercy until the property was sold to the archdiocese in 1964.

Among the international delegates at the centennial celebration will be the order's general superior, Mother Mary Virginette, and the vicar general, Mother Mary Gonzaga, both from Rome. Mother Mary Aniela, delegate for the superior general in Poland, where the order was founded in 1855, will represent the sisters in Poland.

Representatives of the general council in Rome and provincial superiors of each province will be guests of Mother Mary Columbine and the Presentation Province in Livonia, and will participate in the Eucharist liturgy.

AMONG THE OFFERTORY gifts to be presented during the mass are the flags and soils of America and Poland, the chalice of Father Joseph Dabrowski, the icon of Our Lady of Czestochowa, a Bible, the first register of the final vows of the sisters, the rule, constitution and emblems of the Felician order.

choir of 80 Felician Sisters, representing each diocese in the Livonia province, will sing the liturgy of the mass, accompanied by Sister Edith Marie, organist.

They have been directed in their four-month rehearsal by Sister M. Francilene and Sister Mary Caroline.

A brass and percussion ensemble, under the direction of Francesco Di Blasi, conductor of the Oakway Symphony Orchestra and instructor at Ladywood High School and Madonna College, will provide instrumental accompaniment.

AT THE CENTENNIAL dinner, the guest speaker will be Rev. Richard Jozwiak, pastor of St. Stanislaus Church in Bay City, the first parish served by the Felicians in Michigan.

Others on the program are the Rev. Walter Ziemia, rector and president of Orchard Lake Schools, the Rev. John Hardon, SJ, research professor of the Jesuit School of Theology, Chicago, and Mayor Edward McNamara of Livonia.

THE FELICIAN SISTERS, in their brown habits, are well known in the Detroit metropolitan area, where they have staffed parish schools since 1878, including St. Albertus, across from the original motherhouse, and St. Michael's in Livonia. At one time their schools in St. Florian in Hamtramck and St. Stanislaus in Detroit parishes each had more than 3,000 students.

In the Livonia area, where the motherhouse was relocated on a 320-acre site in 1936, they have developed Ladywood High School, Madonna College, Maria Nursery and St. Mary Hospital. There are plans for further expansion in the health care, education and social work fields in the future.

The congregation continues its works of mercy among the underprivileged and less fortunate in homes for children, for the aged, the emotionally disturbed, and the retarded; in home visiting; in counseling programs for youth groups; adults and prison inmates; in hospital care and pastoral ministry.

There are currently 4,128 members of the order throughout the world with 530 in the Livonia province.

Mother Columbine looks back

BY SHERRY KAHAN

When the Felician Sisters first established their Provincial House 37 years ago in Livonia, there were about five houses on Schoolcraft between Grand River and Levan.

"We didn't even have our own mailbox," said Mother Mary Columbine, provincial superior. "We had to pick up our letters in Plymouth."

The architectural firm of Magula and Quick designed the Mother House in the European tradition with red tile roofs, copying to some degree architecture of the monastery of the Franciscan Fathers in Assisi, Italy.

"When we first came there were no utilities out here so we had to be self-sufficient," said Mother Columbine. "We generated our own electricity from 6 a.m. until 10 at night, then we switched to the Edison line."

"WE HAD OUR own wells and buried our septic tanks under the woods north of the convent. However, we did manage to have a telephone."

Mother Columbine explained that the original structure cost about $1 million, but because it was built so well, 10 years ago it was appraised at $10 million.

"It was built during the depression when work was scarce," she said. "We got the best. Today we still have no cracks in the walls or ceilings. You just can't get this type of building any more."

"Our ceilings are about 10 feet high and we have the only building around with the red tile roofs, except for St. John Seminary in Plymouth."

The building which has a library, a recreation room, a dining room, sleeping quarters, lounges on each floor and a laundry, is four stories high, stretching to five stories at the dome. It was designed in the shape of an H.

BUILT TO HOUSE 350 sisters, the Mother House has 203 residents at present, most of them retired sisters. It is also used five times a year and in summer to bring in Felician Sisters from around the country for workshops, symposiums and education activities carried on in connection with Madonna College.

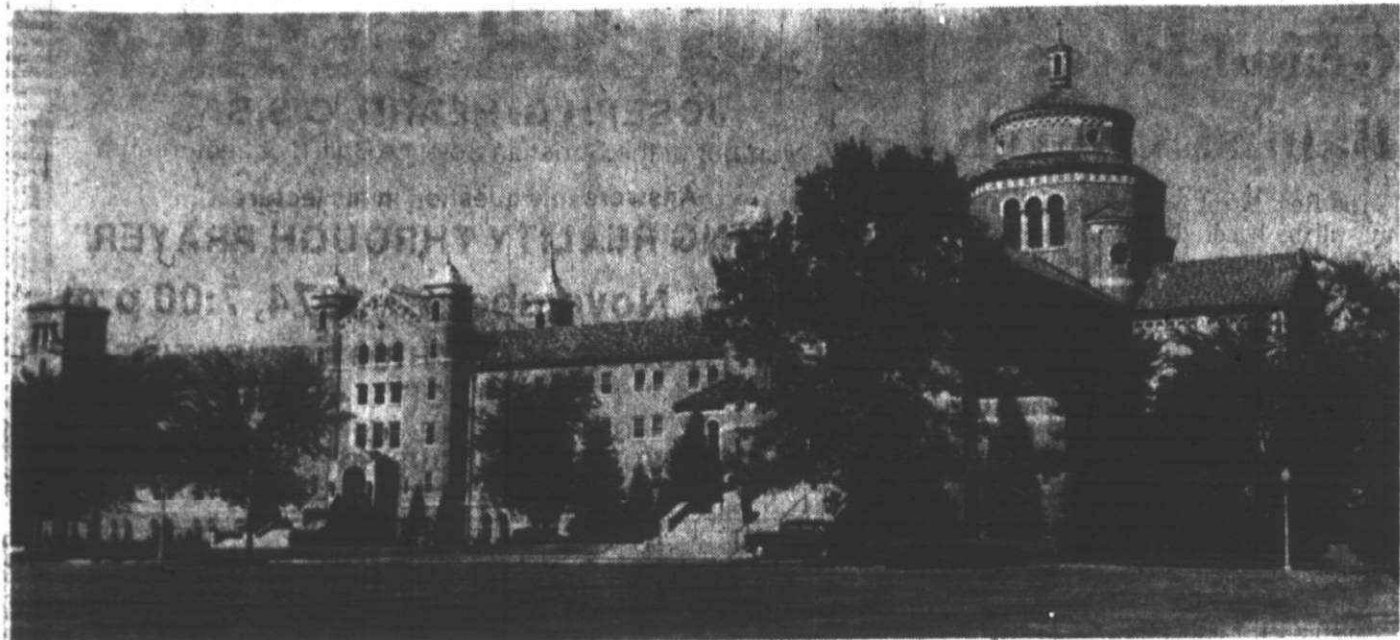

The Mother House also houses the provincial administrators who serve as the boards of St. Mary Hospital, Madonna College, Ladywood High School and Maria Nursery, all founded in Livonia by the Felician Sisters. They also administer St. Joseph Home for Children in Jackson.

For their centennial celebration, the sisters have prepared three books concerning the activities of their entire order but emphasizing their work in Livonia. The contents of these books will be mostly newspaper clippings describing their accomplishments.

ONE OF THE oldest residents of the motherhouse is Sister Mary Pachomia, who has lived and worked there for more than 60 years.

MOTHER MARY COLUMBINE

BUILT IN 1936, the Felician Sisters Mother House will be the focal point of a celebration in honor of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the order.

Help wanted: Teens for mission work

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Following her graduation from Churchill High School last summer, Joyce Andres of Livonia left on a trip to the Caribbean country of Haiti.

There was no plush hotel or room service waiting. She was there to work.

She arrived with a small group of other young people under the sponsorship of Teen Missions Inc. Their assignment: Help build an orphanage for 25 children.

"We carried logs, dug ditches, worked with cement blocks and had a great time," said Miss Andres, who would like to travel with a mission group again next summer. "It was both a spiritual and a fun experience."

She added: "I enjoyed the chance to go to another country and see what missionaries did and how they lived. We also saw how people lived and that they didn't have many things we had."

TO RECRUIT more young people like Miss Andres for mission work, a youthful seven-member team representing Teen Missions Inc. visited Ward United Presbyterian Church in Livonia last week.

Led by Ronnie Morgan, the team attempted to contact young adults to inform them of the opportunity to travel under the sponsorship of this mission organization.

"Our purpose is to get young people involved in missions overseas because that is where the bulk of the people are who have never heard the gospel," said Morgan.

"We feel that through a personal relationship with Christ, we have answers to the basic questions of life such as who am I, where am I going and where do I come from," he added. "If people hear this message they can respond and have the hope of eternal life."

His wife, Vickie, added: "There are signs that Jesus Christ is coming soon. People have to have a personal relationship with Him because when Jesus comes again and they are not ready, they will face eternal death in hell forever and ever."

THE OPPORTUNITY being offered to teen-agers 13 and over is to spend a summer in a foreign land, either in Central or South America, the Caribbean Islands or Europe. Or they can stay in the U.S.

Those who opt for a foreign land will be engaged in erecting buildings needed by local missionaries. Those who want to stay in this country may go as a member of an evangelical team to carry the word to teen-agers in various corners of the land.

Last summer Dave Fore, 18, left his home in Plymouth Meeting, Pa. to hit the gospel trail as part of the Rocky Mountains national parks mission.

"We went into the parks and campgrounds to share our faith in Christ with the campers," he said. "We were received very well. We approached them with leaflets and personal contacts and invited them to our campfires at night. It gave me the opportunity to put my faith in action."

TODAY, INSTEAD of working or going to college, Fore is a member of Teen Missions Inc., on a tour into Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Michigan and Canada to sign up teenagers for summer mission projects.

Fore explained that while one might think that teen-agers would hold back and let others do mission work, that has not been the case.

"In 1973 there were 189 youths involved throughout the world with teen mission teams," he said. "During the summer of 1974, there were 463 working in 18 different evangelistic and work teams."

LOOKING FOR TEEN-AGERS interested in working in foreign missions are these members of Teen Missions Inc. On top of the van are Cindy Hart and Dave Fore. Below them

Madonna receives arts grant

Madonna College has received a mini-grant of $900 from the Michigan Council for the Arts which will bring together the Oakway Symphony Orchestra and the Livonia Civic Ballet on the Madonna campus Feb. 16.

Accepting the award, Sister Danatha, Madonna president, said the objective of the college in applying for the grant was to "sponsor and support local performing groups within the immediate Livonia area, to foster a stronger cultural climate for all residents, and to encourage local talent."

Because of the council's support, Madonna will be able to offer complimentary tickets to senior citizens, handicapped persons, service organizations, and keep cost of admission low for students.

Sister Francilene, administrative assistant to the president and instructor of music, is coordinating the projects.

'Two By Two' in Redford

The Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford will open its musical comedy "Two By Two" this weekend in the guild playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly in Redford Township.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 7:30 on Sundays. Other performances are scheduled Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1, 5, 6, 7, and 8. Seating is limited and reservations are suggested. For tickets or information call Mrs. David Tucker, 11414 Auburndale, or Mrs. C. Foster, 16772 Country Club Drive, Livonia.

"Two By Two" is a Richard Rodgers' musical production based on Clifford Odets' poetic retelling of the legend of Noah's Ark. "The Flowering Peach."

Wayne-Westland offers three one-act comedies

The Wayne-Westland Civic Theater will present three one-act comedies Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22 and 23 at 8:30 p.m. in St. John Episcopal Church, 555 S. Wayne Road, just south of Cherry Hill in Westland.

Featured will be "The Potboiler," by Alice Gerstenberg, a satirical spoof that involves the rehearsal of a horrible play, and "Footsteps of Doves," by Robert Anderson, the story of a married couple who face a crisis of whether to buy a double bed or twin beds.

Also included will be a cutting from Neil Simon's "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," the story of a man who loses his job, has a nervous breakdown, and how his family "helps" him.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for students and senior citizens. Season tickets are also available at reduced rates.

The trio of one-acts is the theater's second offering of the 1974-75 season. Three other shows are slated later this year.

Lipizzan show comes to Cobo Nov. 29-Dec. 1

The Wonderful World of Horses, featuring the Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show, will be in Cobo Arena for four performances Friday, Saturday, and Sunday Nov. 29-Dec. 1, with two evening shows and two matinees.

Evening performances will start at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday while the matinees will be at 2:30 Saturday and Sunday. At the matinees children 12 years old and under will be admitted at half price.

This equine extravaganza, has toured the United States for four years and will feature Cossack riding and a salute to the French Riding Academy at Samur.

The show includes palominos, Arabians, andalusians, saddlebreds, thoroughbreds and America's finest breed, the morgan.

The white Lipizzaners, a rare breed created for the Hapsburg family of Austria in the 16th century, will perform their famed balance movements and great leaps.

Tickets at $6.50, $5.50 and $4.50 are available at Cobo Arena and at Hudson's and Grinnell's stores.

'Up with People' in Westland

"Up With People," a young people's group traveling throughout the country with a musical revue, will present a free preview concert Thursday, Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Westland Center's East Court.

The troupe is promoting their concert in Ford Auditorium, Friday, Nov. 22. Tickets are available at Hudson's ticket office.

Musicians meet

The Detroit Musicians League will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 10 a.m. in the Women's City Club, 2110 Park.

A panel discussion entitled "Accompanist Challenge" will be presented, followed by a program by Joseph Mazzolini, tenor, accompanied by Fontaine Laing.

You have to go back 200 years for this family-style dinner.

In Early America, robust farm dinners were the order of the day. Platters brimming with golden fried chicken. Or honey-basted pork roast. Or succulent Yankee pot roast. Now, the Dearborn Inn once again brings it all together—along with sage dressing, Bishop's bread, apple brown Betty. Served family-style Saturdays and Sundays in our famous Ten Eyck Tavern. A family adventure in good eating.

Chorus wins state title

The Wonderland Chorus of the Wayne Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America (SPEBSQSA), out-sang nine other Michigan choruses recently and will participate in international competition in June.

The group will represent the Pioneer District which includes Michigan plus Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

The Wayne chapter is one of five in the Detroit area and has members from Livonia, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and other communities in western Wayne County, and parts of Oakland and Washtenaw counties.

The Wonderland chorus is directed by Gordon Limburg of Plymouth and choreographed by Tom Pollard of Livonia.

The Wayne chapter will celebrate its 30th birthday later this month.

The barbershop quartet society has 15 districts in the U.S. and Canada, and is affiliated with the British Association of Barber Shoppers in Great Britain.

The Wonderland group has won the Pioneer District award in 1964, 1967 and 1971.

Barbershoppers in the U.S. and Canada support the Institute of Laryngology in Wichita, Kan., which is dedicated to the cure and rehabilitation of children with speech defects. The group has contributed more than $1 million to the institute.

Student violist looks toward pro career

By SUE ROSIEK

At 16, Scott Woolweaver of Garden City is on his way to becoming an accomplished violist, and he has no intention of quitting now. He's a firm believer in the old adage, "practice makes perfect," and his participation in area orchestras is proof of that.

Woolweaver is currently a member of the Garden City West High School Orchestra, Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Livonia Youth Symphony, Michigan Youth Symphony and the Performing Arts Ensemble of Redford Township. He also has played with the Oakway Symphony, Scandinavian Symphony and several church groups and concert choirs as guest violist.

He's been playing the viola, which is larger than a violin and smaller than a cello, since the fifth grade.

WOOLWEAVER says he didn't actually select the viola, it chose him.

"A group of high school musicians were visiting all the elementary schools in Garden City giving demonstrations. I wanted to play an instrument and they suggested the viola—there was a shortage of violists," he recalls.

Garden City Orchestra director Douglas Marsh recognized the youth's talent and suggested private lessons.

Woolweaver studied for four years with Mrs. Jean Braun of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and is presently studying under Francis Bundra at the University of Michigan school of music.

He spent eight weeks the last two summers at the Interlochen Music Camp and has been offered a partial scholarship to return next summer. He was first chair violist for four consecutive weeks last summer, which is considered a display of high talent among fellow student musicians.

BESIDES MUSIC Woolweaver enjoys drama and "anything that has to do with the arts." He's a member of the Garden City West drama club. He also gives viola lessons and presently has two students.

Woolweaver likes to play solo viola but points out there aren't a lot of musical scores that feature the viola. "The viola just sort of fills in," he adds.

Woolweaver is planning a career in music but he's not sure what direction he'll take.

"I haven't decided whether I want to perform solo or with an orchestra. Whatever I choose I will continue teaching," he says.

He has already started compiling a list of music schools he would like to attend. They include Juilliard School of Music in New York, Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore and the University of Michigan.

Woolweaver devotes at least one hour every day to the viola, besides the time spent practicing with the various orchestras. Like any young musician he has his favorite tunes, which he admits get more practice time than others.

IF PLAYING with an orchestra he enjoys "The Planet Suite," by Gustav Holst and for a solo he enjoys "David," by Guyfa.

Woolweaver would like to see more concertos written for the viola. "Music for the viola has been neglected. It might help the viola to come out from under the shadow of the violin," he adds.

In the orchestra the viola's primary purpose is to accompany, he explains. "It's an important instrument because of it's sad, sort of melancholy tone," says Woolweaver as he picks up "Penelope," (his viola) and starts to play.

Woolweaver's fingers move deftly across the strings and he makes playing look easy, but says it isn't so.

"String instruments are difficult to master. There are no frets to tell you where to place your fingers. And it's all very precise. Your fingers have to be in the exact spot to produce a certain sound."

"PLAYING WAS getting pretty rough for me in the second year, but I just kept playing and now I wouldn't give it up for anything."

Besides the sheer pleasure of playing, Woolweaver says music has given him an opportunity to travel.

He's performed with orchestras in Flint, Monroe, Chicago and Florida and hopes to visit other cities via his viola.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Woolweaver, and his brother and sister have attended a few concerts but as he points out "they can't possibly be in the audience for every show."

HE IS THE ONLY musician in the Woolweaver family and his mother is quick to add Scott doesn't get his musical ability from her. However, she has offered lots of encouragement and at times a firm hand.

"It was my grandmother, Mrs. Marcie Woolweaver of Plymouth who really pushed me. She was cellist with the Plymouth group and always wanted me to play," he says. "And Mrs. Peggy Bunge, co-director of the Garden City Orchestra, (who Woolweaver refers to as "my godmother")—they really pushed me."

The teacher strike in Garden City has given Woolweaver a lot of time to practice, but his mother adds, "like any other 16-year-old sometimes it's like pulling teeth."

The Stroller

A chat with father time

By W. W. EDGAR

The old gent with the long white beard stole quietly into the room. As he slid gently into the big easy chair he put aside his scythe, unrolled a calendar with a big circle around Nov. 19 and said: "Happy Birthday!"

Sure enough, it was old Father Time paying his annual visit to The Stroller to reminisce a bit about the many birthdays of the past.

"You're looking fine," he said with a sly twinkle. "And you're one of the luckiest fellows I know. You never seem to change and you keep right on going, day after day. Gosh, I can't even recall the last time you were sick. What a lucky fellow!"

These visits with the old gent always are happy moments for The Stroller for they bring back many memories of the chats we have had before this 77th get-together.

THE OLD GENT stroked his beard and then recalled the day he walked with The Stroller on his fifth birthday to enroll in the old Second Street school building back home in the foothills of Pennsylvania.

"Remember," he said, "how glad you and your Mother were that you were placed in Mable Weisley's class because she long had been a friend of the family?"

How well The Stroller recalled that day for it so happens that he was born on his mother's 21st birthday and she was celebrating, too, as she was taking her first born to school.

Then we recalled another birthday—the 13th—and that wasn't too happy an occasion. The Stroller's dad had died and the burden of raising a family became so great he had to go to work—even at that early age.

It seems like it was happening just this morning but The Stroller still can see and hear his Mother as she choked back the tears and said in a consoling tone, "Never mind, son, you're going to learn a trade and what you have in your head no one can steal from you!"

So, it was off to work to learn the machinist trade and to spend a few years in the muck and grease of a machine shop.

"WILL YOU EVER FORGET your 15th birthday?" the old gent asked.

"Never," The Stroller replied "and for a good reason."

That was the year he was dressed in long pants for the first time. It was a sign that a fellow was going from boyhood to the status of a young man when he graduated into long pants. And no one was prouder when he appeared in them for the first time.

"Your 21st birthday was the one I always remember," the Old Gent chuckled as he leaned forward a bit in the big chair.

It always had been the promise in our humble home that each of the children would be given a gold watch on the day of graduation from high school. But our lot was such that The Stroller couldn't finish his first year in high school let alone graduate. And Mother always felt bad about that.

On this 21st birthday, The Stroller was a bit chipper when he returned from his all night stint in the machine shop of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

"I think I'll take a trip downtown after breakfast," he said, "and see if any of the old gang are around."

MOTHER JUST SMILED. A bit later as The Stroller attempted to put his foot in his dress shoe he struck an object and he couldn't get the shoe on his foot.

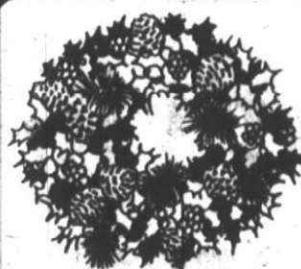

Reaching in, he found a small rectangular box and gulped in surprise. It was a jeweler's box and inside was one of the very latest veri-thin watches.

His mother hadn't forgotten. She baked many a pie and scrubbed many offices, to save the money for the keeping of a promise. Her boy got his watch.

No wonder neither Father Time nor The Stroller will forget that 21st birthday.

With that memory Father Time arose, walked toward the door, and said: "Good luck to you. Hope I'll be back again next Nov. 19. In the mean time Happy Birthday!"

It sure was.

New Library Books

In three volumes divided by historical period, "The American Heritage History of Antiques" presents a combination of intriguing social history and authoritative guidebook to the changing modes of American life during three centuries of its development. The antique buff will find a vast collection of artifacts—with the added dividend of sparkling historical commentary. For the history buff, the set is fascinating off-the-beaten path Americana set in a showcase filled with the furnishings that set the stage for the early years of the American Dream.

"Mission to Malaspiga" reveals Evelyn Anthony writing at the top of her form to create chilling suspense and human drama. Moving from New York to Rome and the loveliness of Florence and the Tuscan hill towns, here is a riveting novel of a beautiful young woman who sets out to pay a debt of love to a dead brother, only to come face to face with her own heritage—one of passion and death.

Marilyn Baker stalked the back alleys and Maoist communes of Berkeley and Oakland, pointing the way for police and other reporters assigned to the task of finding Patricia Hearst. "Exclusive" relates the inside story of Patricia Hearst and the SLA. The author scooped the FBI and the police in uncovering the membership of the SLA, the names of Patty's abductors, and identified Patricia Soltysik as the brains behind the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Lester David knows his subject well. He has written the stories of Ethel Kennedy and of Ted Kennedy. Now, in "Joan, The Reluctant Kennedy," he talks about another Kennedy—who does not feel like a Kennedy—athletically accomplished, politically sophisticated, and a person of unique identity—yet who may be called upon at some point to reign as queen of a restored Camelot.

Suppose we knew who we had been in our previous lives. Where we had lived and what we had done and whom we had loved and how we had died. What then? Max Ehrlich introduces the thoughts in "The Reincarnation of Peter Proud." Peter in his dreams uncovers clues to a former identity and begins a compulsive search which draws him inevitably into relationships with the people he knew during his other life, until the incidents of his two lives merge inextricably into an unearthly circle of mystery and terror.

In "The Memory Book," Harry Lorayne and Jerry Lucas give you their answer to improving observation, conquering absentmindedness, never forgetting what you want to remember. The basic memory principles are not magic, but a proven method which can be taught to children.

Kay Martin's "Vanessa" is a Gothic tale of terror, romance, and adventure spiced with the narrowing occult rites performed by a bizarre, larger-than-life magician.

County renews jail funding plea following suicide

Robert E. FitzPatrick has renewed his plea for a state loan to finance new jail facilities in the wake of a young mental patient's suicide in the overcrowded Wayne County Jail.

FitzPatrick, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, repeated his request following the suicide of a 17-year-old Dearborn man who hanged himself with bedsheets from the bars of his cell.

NEARLY A YEAR ago, FitzPatrick sent a letter to the State Senate Appropriations Committee requesting a loan to finance an out-county jail facility and downtown jail expansion.

"Until this proposal is approved by the Legislature, conditions in the Wayne County Jail will continue to hover at the edge of tragedy each day," he forecasted.

The youth was being held until the overcrowded state forensic center at Ypsilanti was able to admit him for psychiatric evaluation. He was arrested after escaping from Northville State Hospital for the second time earlier this month.

LEGISLATIVE LEADERS recently reported the request for a $29 million loan was still alive, but there wasn't yet sufficient support among legislators to ensure approval.

FitzPatrick said the suicide "tragically underscores the need for new jail facilities.

"Instead of wasting time in trying to pinpoint the causes of this regrettable incident, I repeat my request now pending before the Legislature for a low-interest loan to enable us to begin construction of the two new jails — one downtown and one in western Wayne County."

crowding for the incident.

Frank Wilkerson, jail administrator, said because all 39 seventh-floor cells were occupied the victim couldn't be placed where mental cases get special attention.

The FitzPatrick proposal was made in 1972 after voters denied a board of commissioners millage request to finance construction of the new jail facilities.

He proposed the state advance the money as needed over a three-year period, with the full amount, plus interest to be repaid by 1981.

The loan would be repaid from receipts for the purchase of a county water supply plant by the Detroit Water Commission and with county funds to become available upon state assumption of the expense of court probation services.

On the day of the suicide, the jail's inmate population was 904 — 105 more than a court-ordered limit.

PREP GRIDDER OF THE YEAR is Franklin High's Dan Quinn who was the sparkplug in the Patriot's 9-0 record, picked up 1,068 yards on the ground and 1,854 yards in his three year career that saw him score 174 points, 19 touchdowns, 36 extra points and eight field goals. (Staff photo)

1st place Livonia Vikings smother Ecorse Big D, 6-5

The Livonia Vikings were bright in their Michigan Junior B hockey showdown but flat note against an opponent they should have beaten with ease.

After a tuneup 18-1 victory over Westland, the Vikings who hold first place, topped Ecorse Big D, 6-5. Then it was letdown time against St. Clair Shores, a club they had beaten earlier in the year, 8-2. Livonia fell behind, 5-1, and failed to overcome that deficit in a 5-4 setback.

But Livonia is in first with a 13 win and three loss mark with Ecorse second at 12-2.

The 18-1 onslaught over Westland saw Grant Judd slap in four goals and Dan Laird, Ron Griffin and Steve Morrison score three apiece.

Then came the the victory over powerful Ecorse.

After Bob Rathernel got Ecorse off to a 1-0 lead, Livonia skated back with three goals by Steve Hodgkins, Curt Pauline and Grant Judd to take a 3-1 before falling behind, 5-3 midway in the final period.

The Vikings came to life and Judd made it 5-4 at 11:22 into the third, Dan Lerg tied it at five-all at the 13:34 mark and Rick Pauline scored what proved to be the deciding goal at 14:24.

The disappointing defeat from St. Clair Shores saw it tied at one-all after one period and 3-1 in favor of the Saints after two periods.

St. Clair Shores jumped on Livonia goalie Rudy Varari in the early moments of the third to take a 5-1 lead.

Goals by Paul Reed, Grant Judd, and Reed again sliced it to 5-4 with 3:53 remaining but the Vikings ran out of gas and goals. Livonia did outshoot St. Clair Shores, 47 to 38 but fell one goal short in the scoring column.

Livonia has Ecorse on tap again this Saturday at Ford Ice Rink, face-off slated for 8 p.m.

Plymouth Rock gals crush Allen Park

Plymouth Salem upended Allen Park in a girls' basketball clash and that coupled with a win over Belleville pushes the Rocks to 18-3 overall.

Salem jumped off to a 17-4 first quarter lead and led at the half, 31-11, enroute to a 60-36 victory over Allen Park.

Peggy Moore popped in 14 points and Julie Shearer and Doréthy Spitz 12 each for Salem.

The 63-24 win over Belleville saw the Rocks explode to a 14-0 first quarter margin and it was no contest the rest of the way. Barb Croci scored 18 and Sherry Ahland 10.

Salem drew a bye in the first round of the district at Milford and will play the winner of the Walled Lake Western-West Bloomfield contest on Monday, Nov. 25, at 8:30 p.m.

It was the "Year of the Sophomore" for area swimmers in the third annual Michigan High School Athletic Association Girls' state swimming and diving championships.

Stevenson High's Carol Eggers and Bentley's Vicki Brown — both sophomores, did it all in the water.

Miss Eggers at 5-foot-6 and 125 pounds led her Stevenson team to an overall fourth place finish in the state with two first places.

The Stevenson sophomore won the 100 backstroke in state record time in 1:02.41 and took honors in the 50 freestyle in :25.439.

Stevenson's 200 yard medley squad of Liz Hatfield, Laura Klout, Lori Tobis and Eggers finished second in the state in 1:57.375.

Birmingham Groves won in 1:57.149.

The Spartans who won the Inter-Lakes championship for the second straight year and had a 13-0 dual mark, also boasted a fourth place finisher in Miss Kloote in 1:02.880 in the 100 yard butterfly.

Bentley High's sparkling Vicki clocked in at 1:12.468 in the 100 breaststroke to take state honors. The 5-foot-1 120-pound 10th grader was also one of four Bullfrogs who wound up taking a forth in the 200 medley relay. Karen Sibert, Merrille Hawes and Lisa Bowman joined Miss Brown in 1:59.940.

The Bentley team of Hawes, Andrea Coyle, Bowman and Brown also pooled their efforts to take a sixth in the 400 yard freestyle event in 3:57.413.

Bentley finished seventh overall with 58 points. East Lansing won the meet with 139 points and Stevenson was fourth with 101.

Churchill's plight in the state meet saw junior Debbie Nickolls have a first place gold medal for about 30 minutes before meet officials at Adlai Stevenson High in Sterling Heights took it away.

The 5-foot-3 118 pound junior was awarded a total of 321.05 points in the diving competition and given the first place award.

Bloomfield Hills Lahser's Martha Hassard was next best with 320.95 points but after a 30 minute span, the officials changed their minds and gave Miss Hassard a total of 321.35 points to top the Churchill lass by .30 points.

This was only the second year for diving competition for Miss Nickolls who commented "I couldn't swim at all last year as a sophomore so I decided to take up diving." Other Churchill finishers in the state meet were Mary Reid with a seventh place in the 100 freestyle in :57.895 and a ninth place in the 100 backstroke by Rene Cox in 1:05.83.

It's U-M vs. Ohio State

By W. W. EDGAR

This is the week of the most dramatized collision in college football and the most dyed-in-the-wool Michigan followers are keeping their fingers crossed hoping that the struggle with the Ohio State Buckeyes in Columbus on Saturday will bring an undisputed Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

The Wolverines, conceded to have the fastest backs in the conference, will be seeking some solace for not being selected for the bowl last year following the 10-10 deadlock with Ohio in the Michigan Stadium.

The lone shadow over the coming collision is the question of which team "Bo" Schembechler, will send out to do battle in the ancient horseshoe field in Columbus.

For the past month, Michigan has been somewhat of a disappointment after a fast start.

Against teams like Indiana and Illinois, which they were chosen to conquer easily, the Wolverines played dull and uninteresting football to win. In fact they barely escaped defeat.

Then, last Saturday, with Quarterback Dennis Franklin in top form until he was injured in the third period, they buried Purdue, 51 to 0; as a signal to the Buckeyes that they were ready.

After the game Coach Schembechler admitted it was the first time in several weeks that his boys "Had got it all together" and that they now were ready for the big one.

"M" followers, however, are a bit skeptical concerning Franklin, the engineer who will guide the Wolverine machine. His weakened ankle was twisted again, but coaches feel that he will be in condition for the opening kickoff.

So, the question among the "M" followers; still, is "Which team will Michigan use — the one that faltered in all of its road games or the one that ran over and around Purdue last week?"

Michigan will hold a big edge in speed with fellows like Gordon Bell, Robert Lytle, and Gil Chapman along with Chuck Heater to match strides with Ohio's Archie Griffin and Green.

It will be a matter of springing these speedsters loose and in the final analysis the game may be won "up front" where Michigan's forward wall is facing the real test of the year.

At any rate it looms as a great battle with all the chips on the table.

RU girls win 12th

Redford Union girls' basketball squad dumped Livonia Churchill, 53-33, for its 12th win against one defeat.

It was 18-2 RU after one quarter, 32-10 at the half, and 46-14 heading into the final eight minutes. Amy Gierak paced RU with 19 points, Linda Kosovac added 14 and Cindy Rossi pumped in 10.

Stevenson High hosts

Livonia Stevenson is the site of the No. 1 crucial basketball district in the area for the girls.

Redford Union, Franklin, Bentley, Churchill and unbeaten host Stevenson will be in competition for the right to move on to the regionals.

Franklin, Redford Union and Bentley drew byes first round with Stevenson and Churchill doing battle tonight (Thursday), starting at 7:30 p.m.

RU and Franklin kickoff Friday action (tomorrow) with a 6:30 p.m. contest with Bentley facing the winner of the Stevenson - Churchill match at 8 p.m.

The district finale between the two Friday night winners has been set for Monday, Nov. 25, tip-off set for 7:45 p.m.

Area dogs win in 'B' match

Two area dogs were among four winners in the Alaskan Malamute sanctioned "B" match in Westland.

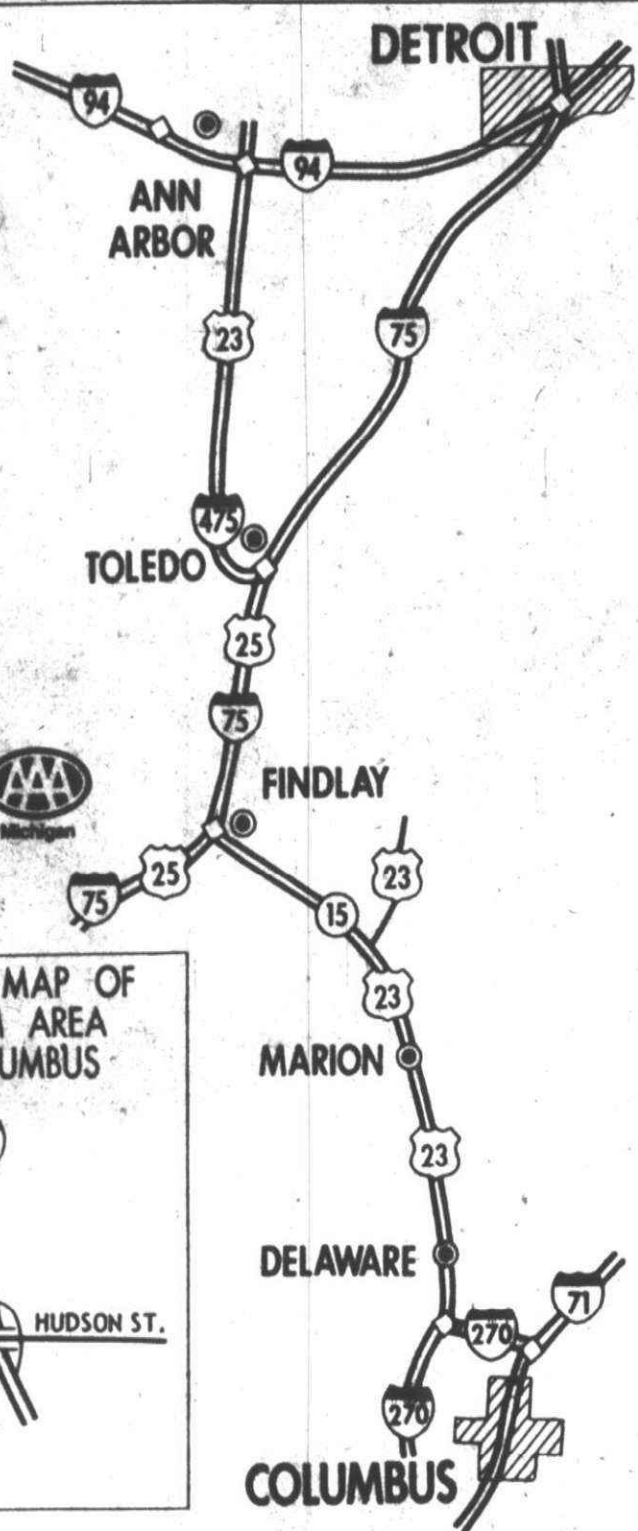

With an entry of over 62, Larry and Jackie Robinson's Bold Savages Thunder of Detroit won the best in match and Detroit's Silver Wolf of Alaska, owned by Gary Wendel was top puppy in match.

Plymouth's Nakipa Star of Silver Frost, owned by Janie and David Al-lain was selected best of opposite sex adult and Livonia's Nikia owned by Tony Gliner was chosen best of opposite sex puppy.

Redford Stars win 6th, 10-1

The Redford Stars remained on top of the seven-team Seaway hockey loop with a 10-1 victory over the Harrow Chargers of Ontario, pushing the record to 6-0.

The Stars play host to the Detroit Red Wing Oldtimers at the Redford Arena on Dec. 3, starting at 8:30 p.m.

WOLVERINE FOOTBALL FANS who plan to travel to Columbus, Ohio, Saturday (Nov. 23) for the University of Michigan-Ohio State clash should allow a minimum of four hours driving time from southeast Michigan to the Ohio State campus. Columbus is 208 miles south of Detroit and 191 miles from Ann Arbor.

His Rocks are state champs

Salem's Moshimer is No. 1

"The low man seeks a little thing to do, Sees it and does it; The high man, with a great thing to pursue, Dies ere he knows it." (From Robert Browning's "The Flight of the Duchess").

The 1974 "high man" of the area prep gridiron had his flight of pursue and did it all.

A tip of the hat to Plymouth Salem's Tom Moshimer.

The 39 year-old Moshimer in his eighth season behind the No. 1 Rock whistle directed his gridders to a Suburban Eight championship, a perfect 9-0 season and a State Class A championship as recognized by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Moshimer had that "great thing to pursue" and he accomplished it with his Rocks outscoring opponents, 177 to 55 in the nine wins.

This makes it 22 wins in the last 27 games over a three year span for Moshimer and now an overall Plymouth mark of 39 wins, 26 losses and three ties.

The eight years before Plymouth saw Moshimer direct a Dundee High School to an overall mark of 43 wins-21 losses and three ties and in that string was a 25 game winning streak.

"You know, this was going to be my last season in coaching," commented Moshimer who at one time had set a goal of coaching 25 years.

"But this team, this championship squad, changed my thinking.

"I decided I wasn't ready to quit. I just can't say enough about this group. Having a group like this was one of the greatest things to happen to me," added the Salem coach.

Moshimer graduated from Northville High School in '52 where he played four years of varsity football, checking in at 5-foot-9 and about 155 pounds.

It was then into the United States Marine Corps for two years and off to Michigan State University where he was graduated in '59.

Dundee High School then had Moshimer for eight years and now Salem for eight.

Tom's No. 1 fan has to be his wife Connie who he married in '62. The two have two sons, 10 year-old Duncan and nine year-old Mike.

"Connie and I talk football all the time around the house," commented Moshimer. "And she is always telling me not to pass the ball.

And for the behind the scenes look at the Plymouth Salem coach, his wife Connie comments:

"It has been a great year and you just wouldn't believe how nervous Tom has been and could get.

"I always wind up telling him my impressions of the games and usually what is said in the stands about what is going on down on the field.

"The last two weeks of the year I even wrote on his lunch bags, 'Beat RU' and 'Beat Harrison.'

"I just covered the bags each day with these sayings and would you believe that for the first time I made a prediction on a game and it actually came true.

"The week of the Harrison game I wrote down on a piece a paper that Salem would beat Harrison, 28-7, and Tom just gave me that funny look.

Well Harrison did fall to Plymouth Salem and Tom Moshimer, 28-7, and it looks like Connie Moshimer can walk around the house all winter, spring and summer with a certain sort of grin on her face.

One of Moshimer's coaches Wayne Sparkman explains: "Tom did one hell of a teaching job with the w-sir-bone and everything.

"Tom got the kids to want to play football and all the second guessing by parents and certain coaches of yesteryear went by the wayside.

"Tom's favorite line two days before each game was 'Well boys, the hay's in the barn' and that was about it. I have never known anyone as knowledgeable or dedicated as Tom Moshimer," finished Sparkman.

The knowledge and dedication was there for Plymouth Salem in '74 and the man with that "pursue" was Tom Moshimer, the Observer and Eccentric's gridiron coach of the year.

Area fly tying contest deadline is Jan. 1 '75

A fly tying contest has been announced for all Detroit and suburban area tyers.

First prize will be an Orvis Madison bamboo fly rod, second prize a fly rod and third a fly tyer's chest.

Each contestant must submit nine flies; three dry flies of one pattern on number 14 dry fly hooks, three streamers of another pattern tied on size six streamer hooks, and three nymphs of a third pattern tied on No. 14 hooks.

Any patterns may be tied as long as each tyer submits three different patterns. Flies will be judged on balance and proportion, authenticity of pattern and tying experience.

Flies must be mounted upright on styrofoam or cork, identified as to pattern, and submitted in a suitable plastic or cardboard box labelled with the tyer's name, address and telephone number.

The contest will be judged by Frank Cupp and Art Newberg, professional fly tyers from Livonia and members of the Michigan Fly Fishing Club.

The contest is being sponsored by Main Stream, the Orvis shop in Farmington Hills and entries must be received there no later than Jan. 1, 1975.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

The die has been cast and now we can all sit by the sidelines and watch the action when John J. Carlo, executive director of Northville Downs, goes to court against Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley in a battle for summer dates.

Carlo filed his action late last week and is hoping the Appeals Court in Lansing will act very quickly. Matter of fact, the court will have to take some kind of action very soon since Northville Downs is slated to open 1975 racing activities in Michigan on Jan. 1 and that isn't that far away.

To us who are making plans for Christmas and New Year's, it appears that six weeks is a long time but that isn't true about courts that often take months to get around to a case.

Basically the suit is based on the fact that Shirley took away all summer dates from the track which pioneered night harness racing in Michigan, and also that the racing commissioner reneged on a promise to allot summer dates if the track went ahead with improvements to the grandstand and the construction of a new clubhouse.

CARLO CHARGES that Northville Downs and the Northville Driving Club, which owns the property, joined in an expansion program that cost almost $12 million with the expectation they would go along as usual with nine weeks of summer racing.

Now Northville Downs has the only completely glass enclosed, heated and air conditioned plant in the area and Shirley did take away the summer dates when he gave back-to-back seasons to Hazel Park and Wolverine Raceway.

The commissioner has refused comment on the suit pending advice from the assistant attorney general in charge of racing. So it appears it will be into the court room and make your own guess about what happens.

It has always been our understanding the racing commissioner had absolute authority over the conduct of all racing and that once he issued the dates for the next year, there could be no changes. Thus it will be interesting to see whether Carlo opens Northville Downs for the start of his winter racing meeting on Jan. 1 or stays close awaiting the outcome of the court hearing.

SHOULD THE scrappy Italian, who has been known to fight to the ends for what he considers right, refuse to open then the question arises as to whether the commissioner can ask Jackson Raceway to continue programs until the suit is settled.

And that raises another interesting point. Would Northville Downs lease the track to Jackson Raceway to take over dates originally awarded to the 'Downs? We don't think so.

If one thinks Carlo isn't strong minded, then he should remember Northville Downs lost an entire late winter meeting a few years back when John refused to open the doors due to a strike by the mutuel clerks union. And he never did, even though he left the track lavatories open for use of the pickets.

FROM HAZEL PARK comes word that Jack Van Berg has been honored as thoroughbred racing's man of the year in Michigan and will be honored at the annual March of Dimes dinner in January.

About the same time Van Berg received notification, he became ill and hasn't been around the track for several days. It will be recalled that Larry Snyder, who won all jockey honors in the Detroit area in 1973, was honored last January. The first from thoroughbred racing to receive such an award.

Hazel Park will be in business next Monday and then close down on Thanksgiving Day, following a policy adopted a year ago. This means the eager bettors will be able to try and pick their favorites daily through next Wednesday and then have a chance to sit down to Thanksgiving dinner and an afternoon in front of the tube before starting all over again on the following day.

OUT AT THE Jackson-Northville meeting, folks are talking about the sensational winning streak of Livonia auto dealer Bill Brown's Erlana's Valley in the rich pacing series.

Erlana's Valley, which won the event two years ago and then was in the race to the final night a year ago, has captured the first three legs in easy style. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether the track is dry or mushy, Erlana's Valley wins just the same.

And that must bring back some memories for Brown who likes to remember some of the great horses he had in past years. Royal Blackstone, still rated as one of the greatest of his time; Royal Melody, Royal Valley and Scotch Valley.

Scotch Valley, the most outstanding trotter ever in the Brown string, still holds track records at many of the area ovals and is best remembered for its ability to trot in the mud. The more mud, the better Scotch Valley trotted.

'75 Tigers to open with Baltimore

Early to open and early to close. That's the way it will go for the Tigers in their 1975 home season.

Opening day will be Tuesday, April 8, with the Baltimore Orioles giving the Tigers the initial test of their 75th American League campaign. Only twice have the Tigers lifted the curtain that early, opening April 6 in 1971 and April 8 in 1969.

The end of the home season comes in a weekend series with the Boston Red Sox Sept. 19, 20, and 21—after which the Tigers will play another week on the road. The Sept. 21 home closing is the earliest since 1961.

The Tigers will play their 81 home games on 78 dates, the same number as 1974, with 49 night dates (also the same), including one two-nighter, and two Sunday doubleheaders.

All three holidays at home (Memorial Day, Independence Day, and Labor Day) will be night games. There will be two Saturday-night contests, with the Kansas City Royals July 19 and the Orioles Sept. 13.

Starting times remain unchanged with night games at 8 p.m., afternoons (including doubleheaders) at 1:30, except Saturdays, which will be 2:15; and the lone scheduled two-nighter at 6:05.

"The Yellow Pages is the best prescription for curing profit problems!"

"We've used the Yellow Pages since we opened our pharmacy in East Detroit, and we keep using it. We like to keep our name before a constantly changing public," claims Joseph A. Sokal, Hennessy Pharmacy, 20803 Brock, East Detroit. "One year we used a coded telephone number in our ad and received approximately 100 calls per week on that line alone. Almost our entire advertising budget goes for the Yellow Pages."

"The Yellow Pages is a great friend to have—especially when a businessman is just getting started," says Michael Richardson, Dependable Battery Co., 13550 Dix Toledo Road, Southgate. "Two years ago we opened our battery shop and placed an ad in the Yellow Pages hoping to draw retail business to supplement our wholesale accounts. You can imagine our surprise when we got a large wholesale account that had located us through the Yellow Pages! Wholesale or retail, our Yellow Pages ad more than pays for itself."

"When I bought Warren Rustproofing, one of the first things I did was increase the Yellow Pages advertising. We are now in five different directories. We don't advertise in any other medium because we don't need to. Approximately 75% of our new business comes from the Yellow Pages. Our faith in the Yellow Pages has been rewarded. Although this year and the one before were supposed to be slow in retail sales, we've done fine."
Jim Malget, Warren Rustproofing, 25600 Van Dyke, Center Line.

"A little less than two years ago, I decided to open my own driver training school," explains Peggy Ostro, ABC Driving School, 542 West 8 Mile Road, Ferndale. "As quickly as I could, I took out a large ad in the Yellow Pages. Why? Because it's the best source of business I know. At least 90% of my business, and perhaps more during my first year, could be traced directly to my Yellow Pages ad. The Yellow Pages is the most efficient advertising medium I know."

Ski Heil

BILL CAMERON

What is a travel agent?

Some of us have this image of a portly, bespectacled gentleman, sitting behind a desk surrounded by travel posters that speak of the beauty of Hawaii or Tahiti or some other exotic place. I'd call this the "Robert Morley" image.

We've all seen or heard Mr. Morley speak about the "delights of London" and he always finishes by saying "or see your travel agent." I know several travel agents personally and they always seem to be "out of town" regularly, and I've had visions of them sitting in some posh hotel overlooking the blue Pacific, relaxing in the sun.

Why aren't they in their office writing out airline tickets? Isn't that what a travel agent does?

Whether you're a skier, a sun worshiper or just a plain old tourist, you'd be wise to use a travel agent if you're planning any kind of a trip in this country or abroad and the next several paragraphs will give you an idea why.

I just returned from a week-long trip to London and Scotland as a guest of the British Tourist Authority. The event was the first North American Workshop held at Gleneagles, Scotland for a select group of travel agents from the U.S. and Canada. In the past, representatives from the British travel industry have visited our country to sell us on the advantages of visiting Britain and this was a difficult task.

Therefore, the workshop idea, and believe me it was a workshop. Would you know where to stay in London? If you're interested in the theater wouldn't you prefer a hotel right in the theatre district or would you take a chance and get stuck a half hour away? In a nice hotel of course, but still a half hour away.

How about a tour of London? There are several tour operators, which one for you? How about the price of the hotel—you can pay $40-50 a day double at a lovely hotel if that's your bag, or $15-20 if it suits you.

A travel agent knows. Our group toured eight hotels a day. Agents do this constantly so that they have first hand knowledge of what each hotel has to offer in order to satisfy you, the customer. The B.T.A. also arranged lunch and dinner at various hotels in order that we could also sample the cuisine which is so important to travelers.

What does one do in London at night? The theater of course (tickets are inexpensive if you can get them). How about a supper club? This is one of the best deals in town—drink, food and entertainment for one price. I enjoyed Britains answer to the Osmond Brothers, the Norton Sisters at the London Room.

These kids received a standing ovation after their performance. This is just one of four restaurants owned by the Hanover Grand Corp. and each one of them offer something different. These can be arranged through a travel agent.

If you've a mind and make the right contact, you might indulge in a bit of gambling at one of the private casinos. You must be a member or a guest of a member. Several of us were guests of a member at a club and even if you don't gamble, it's an experience watching the action at the roulette and baccarat tables.

I'm sure there was a lot of Arab oil money wagered at several tables and it wasn't nickels and dimes. The black-jack tables seemed to attract us poor folks, which seems more of a part of our American heritage.

The only problem that you may find in London is getting a taxi late at night, particularly if it's raining. There again, your friendly travel agent can get you a car rental through one of several agencies.

Fortunately, for me, I had been in London on two previous occasions. For a first visit, one should plan on a week. There is so much to see there it takes a week and then you're only scratching the surface. There are so many places of historical significance in the English countryside, you really can't do justice in a one week trip.

For us it was on to Edinburgh and the famous Gleneagles Hotel about 50 miles northeast. If you're a golfer you're probably familiar with St. Andrews, the birthplace of golf and the two courses at Gleneagles, the Kings and Queens.

Gleneagles is fantastic. The countryside is rolling hills covered with heather. The hotel is magnificent with 400 staff for 400 guests. Shortly after our arrival, a Scotch Pipe Band marched up and down the back lawn, playing melodies that were stimulating, whether you were a native or not. What a welcome.

The serious work started the next day with appointments every half hour with individuals representing all phases of the British travel industry.

Borgess grad tabbed 'rugged runt' at Wayne

Largely overlooked among Wayne State University's set of defensive backs has been junior cornerback Gerald Sharon, a former Bishop Borgess High School athlete.

The 5-foot-10, 170 pound Sharon is the smallest of the starting quartet and was dubbed the "rugged runt" earlier in the season.

Wayne State's defensive backfield swiped 19 enemy passes in the first eight games with a school record of 25 steals within reach.

Sharon began the season as the team's strong safety but was shifted to cornerback on the short side where it is one-on-one coverage and a battle all the way.

EMU '75 football slate to sport night games

For the first time since 1965, and the first time ever in Rynearson Stadium, the Eastern Michigan University football team will engage in night football games during the 1975 season.

Three of the five scheduled home games next season will begin at 7:30 p.m. under the lights.

These contests are against Indiana State on Sept. 13, McNeese State on Sept. 27 and against Western Illinois on Oct. 25.

The lights were added to the stadium this summer as part of a working agreement between the university and the now defunct Detroit Wheels of the World Football League. The Wheels agreed to install the lights and additional seating on the east side of the stadium in return for use of the Rynearson facility for home games.

The 1965 Huron football team had three night games at the old Briggs Field, since torn down.

Years ago when the late Tom Halligan, one of the patriarchs of bowling in Michigan, was operating the Flint Recreation he used to ward off all critics of lane conditions by saying, "Wait til cold flying comes. When the snow starts flying things will be different."

Well, it's too bad old Tom wasn't around last week when the area was covered with its first snow fall of the season.

If he had been here he would have smiled for the simple reason that four perfect games were bowled before the fleecy white stuff melted.

The first came at Drakeshire Lanes, the new establishment in Farmington, and was the first on record there. Quentin Eathorne found the raneg for 12 strikes in a row.

The second came at Westland Bowl where Leo Sochski joined the "300 brigade." And the third was registered by Dennis Miller, who reached the goal at Orchard Lanes in Rochester, and the fourth was the work of Jerry Smith, in the Bel-Aire Lanes classic. It was the most productive week of the year for the honor scores.

THE CHANGE in the weather possibly helped the ladies in the Livonia Classic where the scores were higher than usual. When the final pin fell Madeline Donehue was winner with a 499-129-628 series that included a high single of 208-43-246.

Other single game winners were Dot Fulton with 221-34-255 and Louis Merriman with a 200-23-223.

Speaking of records, Arthur (Jim) Howard, an insulation contractor, has established a mark for the metropolitan Detroit area. He bowls in 13 leagues each week.

While doing most of his bowling at Hazel Park he competes in two leagues on Sunday, three on Monday, two on Tuesday, three on Wednesday, one on Thursday, two on Friday and sets Saturday aside for practice.

The record, according to the ABC statistics, is 17 leagues a week, bowled by Si Hewitt of Lincoln, Neb. in 1968-69.

THE UNUSUAL seems to be becoming the usual days along the suburban bowling front. For example there were three triplicates and ann all spare game reported during the week.

Rick Bovrovich, who carries a 168 average, turned in three identical games of 192 at Plaza Bowl in Plymouth, while Harold Butler, a member of the senior citizens league, had the all spare game of 183. The second triplicate was registered at Plymouth Bowl, when Ken Stewart matched his 140 average in three consecutive games. The fourth was reported when Jim Meak hit 185 at Country Lane.

Only one sharpshooter broke the 700 barrier during the week.

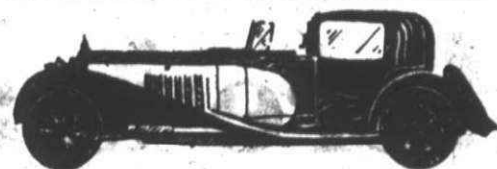

Bowling in the Westland Classic Preston Mc Eady put together games of 247, 259 and 200 for 706.

He was followed by Leo Scantamburlo with a 679 and Bill Walker with a 653.

Bentley took the first quarter against Huron, 8-6, the second, 10-4.

Area prep pigskins have been bounced around for 122 games, and out of those bounces comes the 1974 all-area gridiron selection.

The 22 man squad is comprised of the "blue chippers" from 14 high schools in a year that saw these teams compile an overall 70 win and 52 loss record.

Only two juniors broke into the senior dominated squad which saw five clubs place three players each on either the offensive or defensive team.

Two 9-0 clubs in state champion Plymouth Salem and runner-up Livonia Franklin along with Bentley, Garden City East and Bishop Borgess each put three players on the first team.

Livonia Franklin's Dan Quinn was selected the top prep of the season and Salem's Tom Moshimer took coach of the year honors.

The all-area offensive lineup is:

RICK VARTERASIAN (End): Franklin, an all-Norwest loop selection...broke school record of passes caught with 25 for 250 yards and four touchdowns...two of those six-pointers coming against North Farmington.

JOE BECSZELKO (End): Garden City East; No. 1 kick returner in the area...scored five touchdowns on returns...longest was 90 yards...All-Northwest selection...hauled in 30 passes and scored touchdowns on seven.

DAN QUINN (HB) Franklin; Broke every school record in rushing...pounded out 1,068 yards in 186 carries for 5.7 yards per carry...caught five passes for 69 yards...scored 12 touchdowns...converted 20 extra points...booted four field goals ranging from 18 to 34 yards.

BRUCE BOUDNEK (HB) Bentley; All-Suburban Eight pick...scored eight touchdowns...carried the ball 177 times for 938 yards for a 5.1 yard per carry...caught five passes for 91 yards.

JIM KOZLOWSKI (HB) Bishop Borgess; One of two juniors on 22 man card...Best back I've coached in 10 years" states Borgess coach Fred Mushinski...runs .047 in the 40...rushed for 1580 yards in 193 carries for 7.9 yards per attempt...scored 17 touchdowns...had games of 168,175,262,208,228,168 and 323 yards in a 6-2 season.

TIM DILLON (QB) Plymouth Salem; No. 1 triple option quarterback in the state...directed the 9-0 Rocks to state championship...carried the ball 522 yards in 90 carries...scored five touchdowns...completed 15 of 25 passes for 290 yards and two touchdowns...did not fumble once out of the triple option.

KEN BUCCILI (C) Stevenson; Two-way player for Spartans...was middle linebacker on defense...All-Inter Lakes...had 65 tackles...can bench press 325 pounds...Stevenson's strongest blocker.

GARY MacKINLEY (T), Bentley; Second-year two way player for the Bulldogs...All Suburban Eight...intercepted four passes.

MARK LAPHAM (T) Stevenson; Two-way performer for Spartans...All Inter-Lakes...voted outstanding blocker of the league...bench presses 250 pounds.

JIM LENART (G) Garden City East; Played entire season with broken hand...key to Panthers counter play...voted No. 1 blocker in East attack that went 6-3 for '74.

JOE BOISTURE (G) Bishop Borgess; Voted all-league guard in Catholic Double A...graded 89 per cent efficiency for blocking...leader in offensive blocks.

The all-area defensive unit is:

DAVE WHITE (T) Redford Union; Only member of 1-8 RU squad to make all-area...had 23 solo tackles and 47 assists despite fact he was doubled teamed in most games and tripled teamed by Thurston...runs a .049 in the 40 yard dash...Best middle guard to ever come out of RU...said coach Bob Atkins...stopped 10 touchdowns downfield.

JERRY BRINK (T) Plymouth Salem; Nose guard on defense and guard on offense...a 48 minute player in a state championship season...had 105 defensive points...33 solo tackles...39 assists...one safety and two recovered fumbles...Best nose-guard at Salem since Bob Clayton...said coach Moshimer.

DAVE EDWARDS (T) Plymouth Canton; Played '74 campaign with broken finger, broken thumb...unanimous selection to All-Western Six team...had 62 first hits and 28 tackles for 162 points.

Scientist claims

Clear, odorless gas threatens to destroy ultraviolet shield

By RICHARD GOLD

Commercials on television have been telling us for a long time that there is no living with body odor. Now it appears we must, or at least limit our use of deodorants to roll-on and squeeze types.

Although this introduction to what is becoming known as the "freon problem" is rather flippant, the problem is very grave as University of Michigan researcher Ralph J. Cicerone tells us.

Cicerone authored an article in Science magazine about the harmful effects of freon on the atmosphere. He was assisted by two other scientists at the University of Michigan's Space Physics Laboratory, Richard S. Stolarski and Stacy Walters.

The report followed research by scientists, Mario Molina and F.S. Rowland of the University of California and Dr. Michael McElroy of Harvard,

OF ALL THE material published on the problem, Cicerone's has been the most damning. Here in is a summary of his report.

Freon is a man-made gas, one of a group of chemicals known as chlorofluoromethanes. It is found most often in aerosol cans as a propellant and atomizes the content of the can into a spray. It is found in refrigeration units and air conditioners as well. It is the clear, odorless gas added to your car air conditioner when it is blowing hot air.

It is an inert substance, which means it does not react very readily with most chemical compounds. By itself it is harmless. Because it is inert, almost all of the freon produced over the last 20 years is still in the air. Over time it has collected and it is now slowly rising up into the atmosphere.

When it reaches the stratosphere, (the second layer of the atmosphere) it will react with ozone, a heavy form of oxygen.

Ozone is aggregated in a band in the stratosphere and acts like a shield preventing the potentially harmful ultraviolet rays from penetrating the atmosphere.

If the ozone is reduced or destroyed, more ultraviolet radiation will reach the earth's surface. The effect of this is manifold, and none of it is enticing.

SKIN CANCER will rise dramatically, plants that react to sunlight will be damaged or killed, and plankton (basic food of the ocean's food chain) will be destroyed.

More precisely, when freon reaches the stratosphere, it is broken down into its constituent parts. One of these chemicals is chlorine, the agent that destroys the ozone. "Everything points to the gases remaining stable until they slowly diffuse upward into the ozone shield," explains Cicerone.

So far, most of the freon has not reached the ozone layer. It is still rising through the lower portions of the atmosphere. In recent years there has been some reduction in the amount of ozone in the atmosphere, but it is not yet significant.

Cicerone is predicting, however, that in 10 or 15 years great amounts will have wafted up into the ozone.

EVEN MORE frightening is that Cicerone has calculated the current amount of freon already produced is sufficient to do catastrophic or fatal harm. No more need be manufactured to have this calamitous effect on the atmosphere.

The major source of freon is the spray can, used for cosmetic products, automobile products and home use. But the list is virtually endless and it is estimated at least 500 different types of products use freon propelled sprays.

The other major source of freon is discarded refrigerators and freezers. After discarded for a period of time, the freon escapes.

One of the major reasons for rejection of the supersonic transport (SST) was it would reduce the ozone content of the upper part of the atmosphere. Exhaust emissions from the planes' nitrogen oxides, would react with the ozone. This was the basic environmentalist argument against the SST and in part why the project was tabled.

Industry spokesmen have termed Cicerone's statements as "most hypothetical," and would like further study on the problem.

It would, of course, be impossible to stop freon production immediately, due to commercial and political pressures. Even if production of the chemical were stopped it would be months or years before present inventory of freon products was cleaned out.

"When looking at the freon business we're talking about a multi-billion dollar venture worldwide. That involves a lot of people's jobs, a lot of people's inventions and patents, livelihoods and plans."

THERE WILL necessarily be disputes over whether the substance should be controlled, and whether anyone can present enough evidence to justify control.

"Whether you believe the effect is serious or real, you have to admit right now anything that would put people out of work will be regarded very skeptically," said Cicerone.

"The production of freon began about 20 years ago and has doubled every four or five years since that time." Currently it is estimated world wide production is between one and two million tons a year.

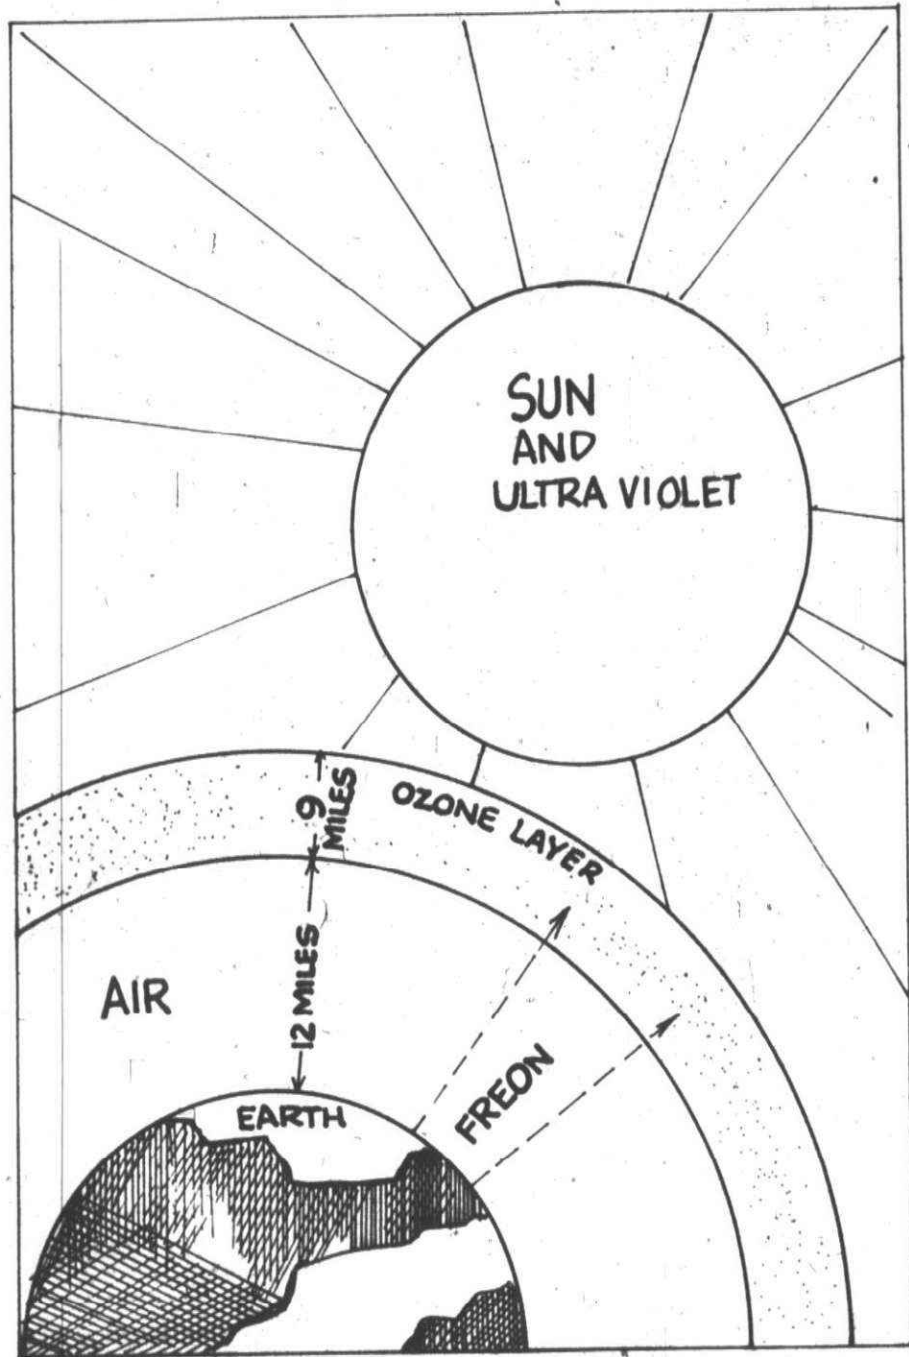

The implications of this are very serious because partial destruction of the ozone blanket is sufficient to cause great or fatal harm to all organisms.

The argument on the SST was based on a one or two per cent reduction in the ozone layer. Scientists dealing with the freon problem are talking about a 10 to 30 per cent reduction in ozone content by the year 2000, and this includes possibility of an immediate production stoppage.

McElroy suggests it is quite possible the ozone band would be decreased

U-M scientist claims freon poses catastrophic threat to earth

ed by 30 per cent by 2000 if production is not stopped soon. Cicerone is slightly more conservative, but he estimates at least a 10 per cent reduction by 1990 if production is not stopped immediately.

Most scientists are in agreement if ozone should be depleted, it would take years for it to be regenerated. The atmospheric purifying process is long and complex. Many scientist suggest 100 years would be a reasonable figure.

IN WAYNE and Oakland counties, little if nothing has been done. The cities of Livonia, Southfield, Farmington, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Garden City and Westland were contacted. Few officials this newspaper talked to even knew of the problem or actually understood it, and none had any legislative action in the wings.

The Michigan Municipal League reported only two communities have dealt with the problem in any depth whatsoever. These were Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, and neither yet has an ordinance prohibiting the sale of aerosol products.

In Ypsilanti, at a city council meeting last month, the freon topic was raised and a motion by Human Rights Party council member Harold Baize was made to prohibit the sale of aerosol products in the city. It was defeated by a 5-4 vote.

In Ann Arbor, city attorney Edwin Pear said the matter had been discussed but no action was planned until the national Academy of Science panel reports back on the problem.

MANY QUESTIONS would be raised about the legality of such action.

Pear was in accord with city attorneys this reporter talked to. It appears there are problems of interstate commerce, and what is the proper domain of the state or federal government.

Another reason given by municipal officials against an aerosol ordinance was it would not be effective. Merchants in neighboring communities would still sell the banned products.

"The approach is too piecemeal," said Pear. "What we need is state, or better yet federal action. He concurred with other attorneys that at best the use of local ordinances to ban spray products could serve as symbolic protest—if nothing else.

AT THE NATIONAL level, little is happening.

Congressman Marvin Esch (R-2nd District) has asked the matter be studied by Congress. He has asked Rep. John Davis, head of the Science, Research, and Development subcommittee in the house to hold hearings immediately. Davis has responded there is more pressing business at hand.

It is possible, however, the subcommittee will consider it before the end of year.

Explained Ed Dooley, an Esch spokesman: "There is so much preparation involved in hearings of scientific nature that it would be unrealistic to expect immediate action." He is hopeful that before January something will be done in Congress to start the hearings.

Dooley said he and Esch will have a better understanding of what will happen when Congress reconvenes.

In the meantime Freon production continues full tilt, increasing at a rate of 21 per cent annually, a testament to the importance of smelling nice.

Michigan tops in snowmobiling

Snowmobiling in Michigan is expected to continue to be an increasingly popular sport.

Its popularity makes the state tops in the nation, with the number of registered snowmobiles approaching 400,000 as the 1974-75 season gets underway.

Now the number of registered snowmobiles surpasses the total of licensed motorcycles in Michigan by more than 85,000 vehicles, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Despite the decline in snowmobile sales last year because of gas shortage fears, the state's snowmobile industry is expecting an improved sales season this winter.

FIGURES indicate that last year's death toll of 33 persons in snowmobile accidents resulted when the vehicles were on highways or highway shoulders, primarily in collisions with other motor vehicles.

Darkness was also a factor in more than 75 per cent of last season's fatal snowmobile accidents, most occurring between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m.

The most potentially dangerous situation for a snowmobiler is to operate his machine on or near a highway from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m., according to the Auto Club.

THREE NEARBY state parks are included in the 6.3 million acres of public land available in the state for snowmobiling.

Brighton and Island Lake, both near Brighton, and Proud Lake near Milford are three of 70 state parks and recreation areas open to the public.

This year the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is not leasing any private land in southern Michigan for open country snowmobiling as it has during the two past seasons.

Forest City omits dividend

The uncertainty of the building industry was given as the reason for cancellation of the semi-annual common stock dividend by Forest City Enterprises.

The company's board of directors voted to pay the dividend on preferred stock, but omit it on common and Class B common stock.

Albert B. Ratner, president, said while cash flow for the six months and total year will be strong, the general economic conditions lead the company to believe it best at this time to conserve cash.

The company's last dividend on common and Class B common stock was paid July 1.

Figures are not yet available for the nine months which ended Oct. 31. Ratner said the second six months ending January 1975 will be better than the first six months of the current business year.

Dividend declared

Manufacturers National Corporation, parent company of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, Manufacturers Bank of Livonia, Salline Savings Bank and Manucor Leasing, Inc., declared a quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents per share to be paid Dec. 18, to shareholders of record on Nov. 29.

Bugles, cigars once Plymouth made

A stockyard, an automobile manufacturer, two cigar makers, a producer of mole traps, a bugle factory—these and many other interesting enterprises were once part of the Plymouth business community.

None of the firms is in existence today. Death of the founder, declining sales due to changing needs, or inability to meet competition of large national firms were probably among the reasons for their extinction.

One of the busiest places in Plymouth more than 100 years ago was John Kellogg's Ashery. In operation from 1850 to 1867, it was located on the north side of Mill Street, just east of the fork which runs westerly to Phoenix. The plant employed four men who converted hardwood ashes into potash from which huge bars of hard, yellow soap were made.

In the spring, farmers and householders hauled their winter's accumulation of wood ashes to the plant and received bars of soap in exchange. The bars, more than a foot in length when made, shrunk to one-half their original size when aged. The Ashery wholesaled the finished product to merchants in Detroit.

Prior to 1860, A.A. Shafer opened an iron foundry at the intersection of Ann Arbor Street and Penniman, about where John Gaffield's Photo Studio is now located. The Shafer foundry manufactured plow points and other iron work articles for western Wayne and eastern Washtenaw counties. It went out of business sometime prior to 1916.

Plymouth also had a brewery for a few years during its early days. Operated by Fred Dohmstreich, it was located east of the village near Hardenberg's Grist Mill. Dohmstreich, who was born in Germany in 1828, set up the brewery here on his farm about 1860. In 1862, the place became Wild-ey's Cheese Factory, which continued in business until 1876.

On Feb. 1, 1899, the "Plymouth Mail" carried a front page advertisement featuring a mole trap. "DEAD SHOT ON MOLES," it read. "If your lawn is being destroyed by moles, send $2.50 to W.N. Wherry, Plymouth, Michigan, for one of the above traps. They are sure to catch them. J.C. Stellwagen, merchant at Wayne, Michigan, caught twenty-nine in less than one yard of space."

Wherry had operated a bicycle livery and repair business in Plymouth since 1886, and was an accomplished taxidermist on the side. His "famous self-setting Wherry Mole Trap" was not patented until 1895, sixteen years after the "Plymouth Mail" ad appeared. The traps were made in Wherry's shop on Dodge Street, at the rear of his home on Main Street. They were shipped all over the U.S. and Canada. In 1898, 5,000 of the devices were reported ready for the market.

By 1903, Wherry must have found a way to cut his costs. At any rate, the Montgomery Ward catalog for that year offered the Wherry trap for 67 cents each, or $7.80 per dozen. Wherry was still in business as late as 1907.

Plymouth was also served by a gravestone maker during the late 1800s. W.W. Hoyt established the Hoyt Monument Works, in 1870, on Main Street near the old high school. Hoyt, a prominent citizen of the community, was Township Supervisor from 1891 to 1896, when Plymouth and Northville were in the same township. He was also president of the village, chairman of the Wayne County Republican Committee, and a member of the State Tax Commission. (His contemporaries were, no doubt, reminded of Daniel DeFoe's remark about the certainty of death and taxes).

In the 1890s, Plymouth was a hog, sheep and cattle center, and a stockyard was located on the north side of the railroad tracks, midway between the cheese factory and the freight house. The interbolted pens had a ramp leading to the stock cars. It was usually surrounded, on Saturdays, by young Plymouthites attracted by the bellowing of the animals.

Circa 1900. A.A. Shafer's Iron Foundry was on Ann Arbor Trail near the apex of Kellogg Park, opposite where Saxton's is located. Shafer Foundry was listed in 1860 business directory. The building to the left sold farm machinery. Note trolley tracks. In early days Ann Arbor Trail was called Ann Arbor Street.

Plymouth grad Ed Scott is Toledo's 'tough guy'

Tri-captain Ed Scott of the University of Toledo varsity football team is a solid, if not spectacular football player.

The senior linebacker from Plymouth has not missed a quarter of action in three varsity seasons. Considering Scott's position that is an amazing feat because the chance of injury as a linebacker has to be greater than any position.

Scott is currently enjoying his best season at Toledo in a 5-3 showing by the Rockets. The Plymouth High grad is the leading tackler in the Mid-American Conference with 87 solo tackles and 74 assisted tackles.

He has been the Toledo nominee for "MAC defensive Player of the Week" five times out of eight and has captured that honor once.

Scott is also the defensive leader in "extra efforts" which includes fumble recoveries and fumbles forced and has been in on a total of 537 tackles in now his third year.

In the early 1890s, the Plymouth Rock Mineral Springs Company was situated at one of the bends of the Rouge River, near the present man-made Wilcox Lake. The spring was on a farm owned by H.H. Peck. About 1893, Peck sold his property to Dr. M.V.B. Saunders of Detroit who formed the company. The doctor sold the spring water for $1 (later 75 cents) a gallon. Saunders' letterhead announced that the water was "a positive specific for kidney and other bladder troubles" and that it would cure "after all other remedies fail." One wonders whether the spring still flows.

In 1891, a cheese factory, owned by brothers Harry and Daniel Jolliffe, began operations in Plymouth on the south side of the railroad tracks, just west of Starkweather Avenue (then called Oak Street). The output was about 100 tons of cheese per season. About 1900, the factory, a sizable building, was moved to another location along the tracks just east of Holbrook.

Eventually the Jolliffe cheese plant was sold to Fred M. Warner of Farmington. Warner, a successful farmer, businessman and politician, was governor of Michigan from 1905 to 1911. Although considered a conservative, more progressive measures for the general welfare are said to have been enacted during Warner's governorship than during any previous administration. In addition to the cheese factory he acquired in Plymouth, Warner owned eight others before he retired from business about 1907.

Stan DeLaHaye, Sunset District, Boy Scouts of America. Re: Requesting permission to hold Annual Winter Event at the Township Recreational Site on Feb. 1, 1975. Mr. Burke moved approval for the Sunset District of Boy Scouts of America to hold their Annual Winter Event at the Township Recreational Site on Feb. 1, 1975. Supported by Mr. Ash and carried unanimously.

City of Plymouth, Requesting Township to share cost of Traffic Signal at Brookside-Hartsough and Sheldon Road with City of Plymouth and Plymouth Community Schools. Mrs. Holmes moved approval for the Township of Plymouth to share the cost of a Traffic Signal at Brookside-Hartsough and Sheldon Road jointly with the City of Plymouth and the Plymouth Community Schools. Supported by Mr. Burke.

Mrs. Reva Mundorf, 44472 Brookside, felt that this light should be paid for by the Safety Millage rather than out of taxes. Mrs. Richardson commented that the street lights which hand in the middle of Ann Arbor Road between Lincoln and Sheldon Roads are being paid for by the Township of Plymouth, and the Township has not asked for a contribution from the City of Plymouth, therefore, it should not be necessary for the Township to always share in requests of this nature. Mrs. Holmes commented that the Plymouth Community Schools and the City of Plymouth should be notified that inasmuch as the Safety Millage did carry that future programs for safety should come out of that millage. The following roll call vote was taken: Yes: G. Burke, E. Holmes, No: F. Millington, G. Overholt, R. Ash, H. Richardson, J. D. McLaren. The motion failed 2-5.

Donald Morgan, Township Attorney. Requesting Board's authorization to consult & confer with the Board, Planning Commission, Township Planner and Township Engineer to draft a proposed ordinance implementing appropriate procedures for administering Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act. Mr. Millington wondered why the Township should be spending money for a study where there are no farms, most of the farmland in the Township having been purchased by developers. Mr. Loyd Sharland, 48175 N. Territorial, stated that, in his opinion, this bill is not giving anything to the farmer but only delaying the tax, this tax becoming a lien against the property. Mr. Ash felt that the ordinance portion has only to do with the Open Space Plan, such open space as the recreation site. Mr. Millington suggested that the Board ask Mr. Morgan for a written report on the purpose of this ordinance. Mr. Millington moved that this item be tabled until a later date. Supported by Mr. Ash and carried unanimously.

Helen Richardson, Clerk - Transfer of funds. Mr. Millington moved that the Board approve the transfer of funds as requested by the Clerk. Supported by Mrs. Holmes and carried unanimously.

Brender-Hamill & Associates, Re: Ridgewood Drive Sanitary sewer. Mr. Millington asked how many people wished to hook into this sewer? Mr. McLaren commented that a survey was done in July of 1973 and out of 33 responses, 9 wished to hook up, 17 did not and 7 had not responded. Mr. Ash moved that the DPW Supt. be authorized to survey the residents on Ridgewood Drive to determine the desirability of a sanitary sewer on this artery. Supported by Mr. Millington and carried unanimously.

Michigan Department of Treasury, Lansing, Mich. Re: Requesting resolution designating a central mailing address for the Township of Plymouth. Mrs. Richardson offered the following resolution: Resolved, that the Township of Plymouth designate the Plymouth Township Hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan, 48170 as the official central mailing address. Supported by Mr. Burke and carried unanimously.

Brender-Hamill & Associates, Re: Recommending acceptance of Utilities in Trailwood Subdivision No. 2. Mr. Burke moved to approve the recommendation of the Township Engineer to accept the Utilities (Sanitary Sewer and Water) in Trailwood Subdivision No. 2. Supported by Mrs. Richardson and carried unanimously. Mr. Overholt moved to adjourn the meeting. Supported by Mrs. Holmes. Supervisor McLaren adjourned the meeting at 10:00 P.M.

For equal facilities Money counts in sport battle

WESTLAND—Hit 'em where it hurts! That's the philosophy of Anne Harbison, Wayne-Westland school board trustee.

And since she feels the vulnerable part of the school district is its budget, she decided to head straight for the jugular in pressing her demands for more girls athletics in the school program.

"It's really a shame that we just can't do things for the children because it's the best thing to do for them," Mrs. Harbison said. "But what you have to do is mention budgets and threaten not to pass them because you disagree with administration priorities. Then you make people sit up and listen to what you have to say."

"When it came time for budget hearings I kept questioning why spending for girls was so far below athletic spending for boys. I didn't approve of that and I tried to impress upon the board that it's senseless to have the philosophy of equality in sports if you're not willing to fund for equality."

HAVING BEEN active in sports herself and having raised four sons who were sports oriented, Mrs. Harbison contends sports are just as valuable to girls as they are to boys.

"What really got me going on the issue was receiving information when I was attending school board conferences," she said. "It seemed that at every one I attended someone raised the question of the direction of girls athletics. When I came back I wanted to know where Wayne-Westland stood."

Since Mrs. Harbison is the first woman to sit on the board since 1940 ("I think the only thing they were interested in allocating to girls then was jump ropes," she said), she worried that her interest might be viewed solely as a women's liberation topic.

But she was soon joined in the fight by Jerry McGrath, another board member.

"Jerry started raising Questions because his daughter was in sports in John Glenn," she said.

Key to Mrs. Harbison's arguments were the budget figures for the past two school years which report that $100,362 was spent on boys athletics while the paltry sum of $16,412 was spent on girls.

Part of the problem, Mrs. Harbison felt, is that the athletic budget is made up by the system's athletic directors, none of which are women.

"We have a few women coaches but they don't feel they're getting a fair shake because they say the athletic directors aren't listening to them," she said.

She also feels that money will not necessarily lead to equality for the girls.

"It's not just money but it's scheduling too, and having women in the decision-making part of the field."

"I know that some sports are more expensive than others and that we're never going to have equality in the amount of dollars spent, but we ought to have equality in terms of gym and pool use and in the number of team sports."

Since Mrs. Harbison's demand for more athletics, she feels that the district has made "great strides" in attaining activities for girls.

"Our budget is up 30 per cent for girls athletics over last year," she said. "And our sports programs, especially the intramural programs, have really gotten off the ground."

Previously, girls could only choose volleyball and softball in intramural play. They now have gymnastics, basketball and track. In team sports Wayne-Westland has girls competing in tennis, swimming and track.

EVEN THOUGH Mrs. Harbison picked up one supporter in McGrath, she had her detractors.

"I had trouble getting information from Gary Green who then served as athletics coordinator for the district," Mrs. Harbison recalled. "He was very defensive of the program and his job. He didn't want to answer my questions."

"But once I got the figures down in black and white it was easy to show the discrepancies in the program," she said.

Green has returned to the classroom and the district has yet to name his successor.

In addition to more activities for girls both in the areas of intramural play and team sports, Mrs. Harbison is also able to count a few other successes.

"In this last contract we approved pay raises for more women coaches than for men. Before, they were underpaid," she said.

Women coaches are now sitting on a committee which determines what coaches in various sports will earn.

But she would also like to see the district make strides in other related directions.

"I think we ought to have a female athletic director at the secondary level," she said. "We have qualified women right in our own district."

"But the district has to show a little initiative. If Wayne-Westland is never going to hire women to the upper levels of athletics then the women aren't going to bother to take graduate classes because they could put the time to better use."

"If women aren't involved in the decision making, change won't come quickly. We need a woman in leadership on the inside to bring proposals to the board."

PART OF THE REASON why Mrs. Harbison is so adamant about her sports program is that she is a fighter, but the other reason is that she genuinely feels that sports are good for girls.

"I think there's a lot of interest and there always has been," she said. "Sports are healthy, happy and productive activities. They're an avenue for the boundless energy of youth."

"And they offer a sense of success which is really something that students need. Even if they don't have their math mastered, at least they have something."

"Competition and learning to win and lose is healthy. And a lot of girls have the ability and the desire to engage in sports. They need the chance to develop this and they deserve their share of the tax dollar as much as anyone else," she said.

NEW CAMPUS? This building, constructed nearly 50 years ago, is one of 45 located at the former Wayne County Child Development Center, Northville. Members of the County Review Committee recently toured the grounds prior to making a recommendation for future uses for the property.

Proposals vie for county OK

By DENNY COFFMAN

Twelve widely ranging proposals for using the Child Development Center at Five Mile and Sheldon Roads, Northville, are being evaluated by a review committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The committee recently toured the center's buildings and grounds in preparation for recommending three of the proposals to the county public works committee.

It is also studying the county auditor's property inventory of the center to determine the value of the facility which has been closed since Oct. 18.

BUT MOST members already feel the property should not be divided or greatly altered.

Said committee member Francis Bennett of the Wayne County Planning Commission: "The consensus is the land is not to be split up or sold in pieces, unless some extremely creative, imaginative proposal makes it feasible."

The 800-acre site includes 45 buildings on rolling hills and farm land.

THE CENTER is virtually a self-sufficient community of shops, kitchens, bowling alleys, swimming pool and other amenities used by its former child residents.

The brick buildings, constructed in 1926, have foot-thick plaster walls, brick exteriors, hardwood floors, and ceramic tiled lavatories. They are in generally excellent condition, with few, if any, cracked walls or windows.

Residents of the center used to milk their own cows, chop their own wood, make maple syrup, bread, and even their own furniture.

There are shops for printing, wood-working, cooking, sewing; even a barber and beauty shop, and fire truck.

The center had 252 employees, most of whom have been transferred to other county departments. An estimated 20 to 25 are unemployed since the center was closed.

PROPOSED USES for the property are varied and include the following: Canton-Northville-Plymouth Family YMCA;

Jefferson-Chalmers Citizens District Council and Project Redirection (Detroit);

New Morning School, Northville; City of Northville; Northville Public Schools; Schoolcraft College and Wayne

State University (consortium); Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service;

Wayne County Department of Health;

Wayne County Planning Commission;

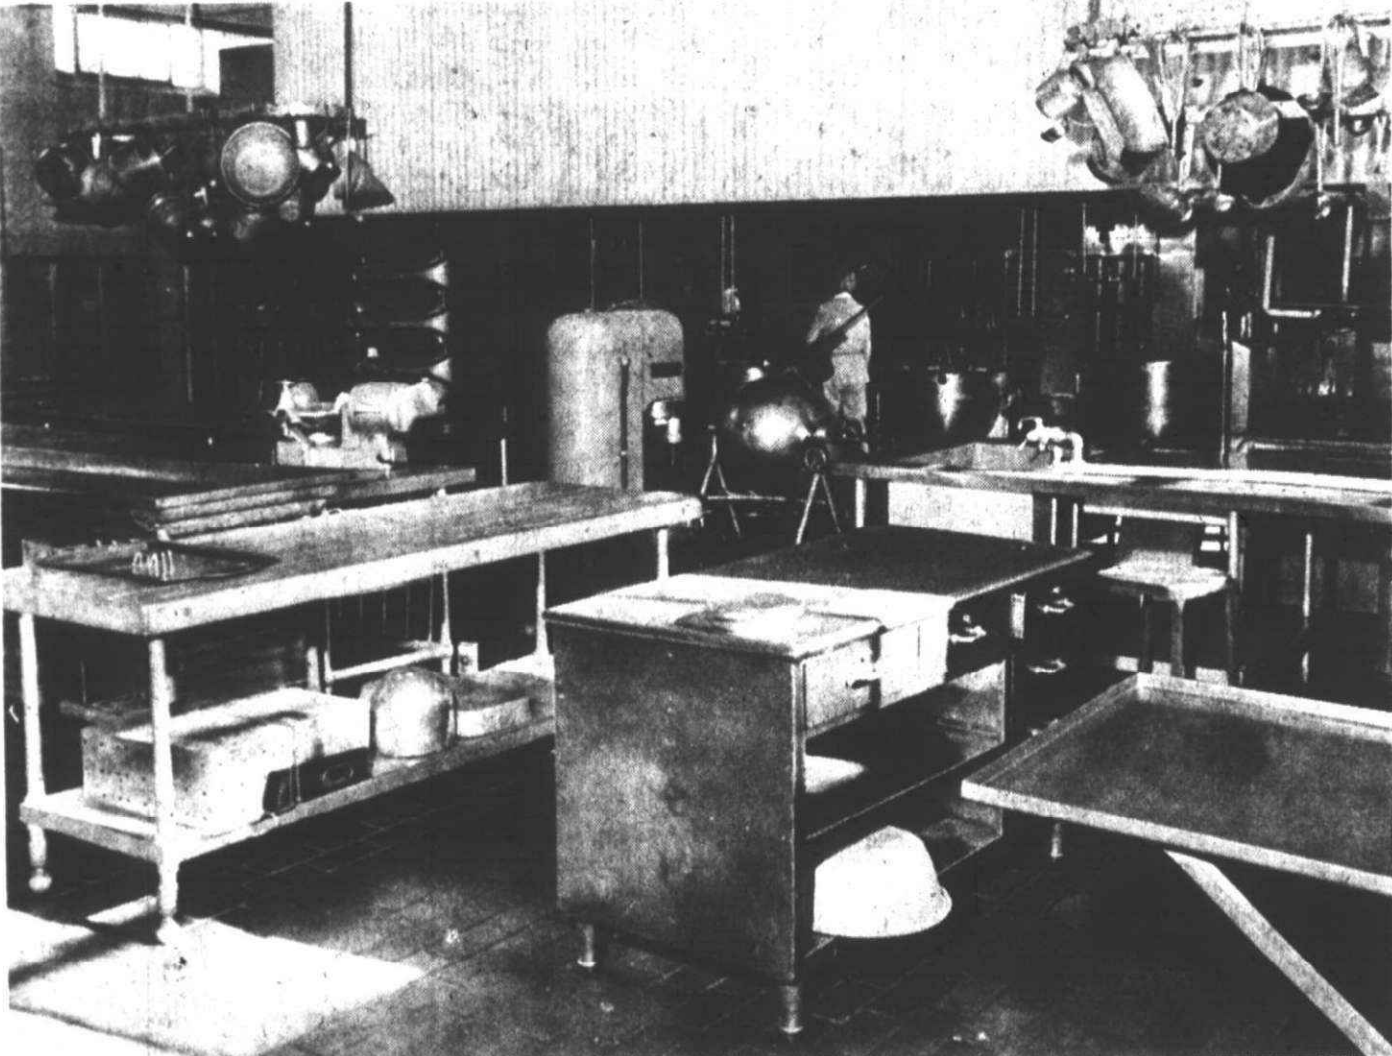

Wayne County Sheriff; The Montessori School; and; Hospital (submitted by Mrs. Anna Kidman).

"Some of these proposals will cost the county a great deal," said Bennett. "Some will cost nothing. Some will serve some segments of the county population and not others."

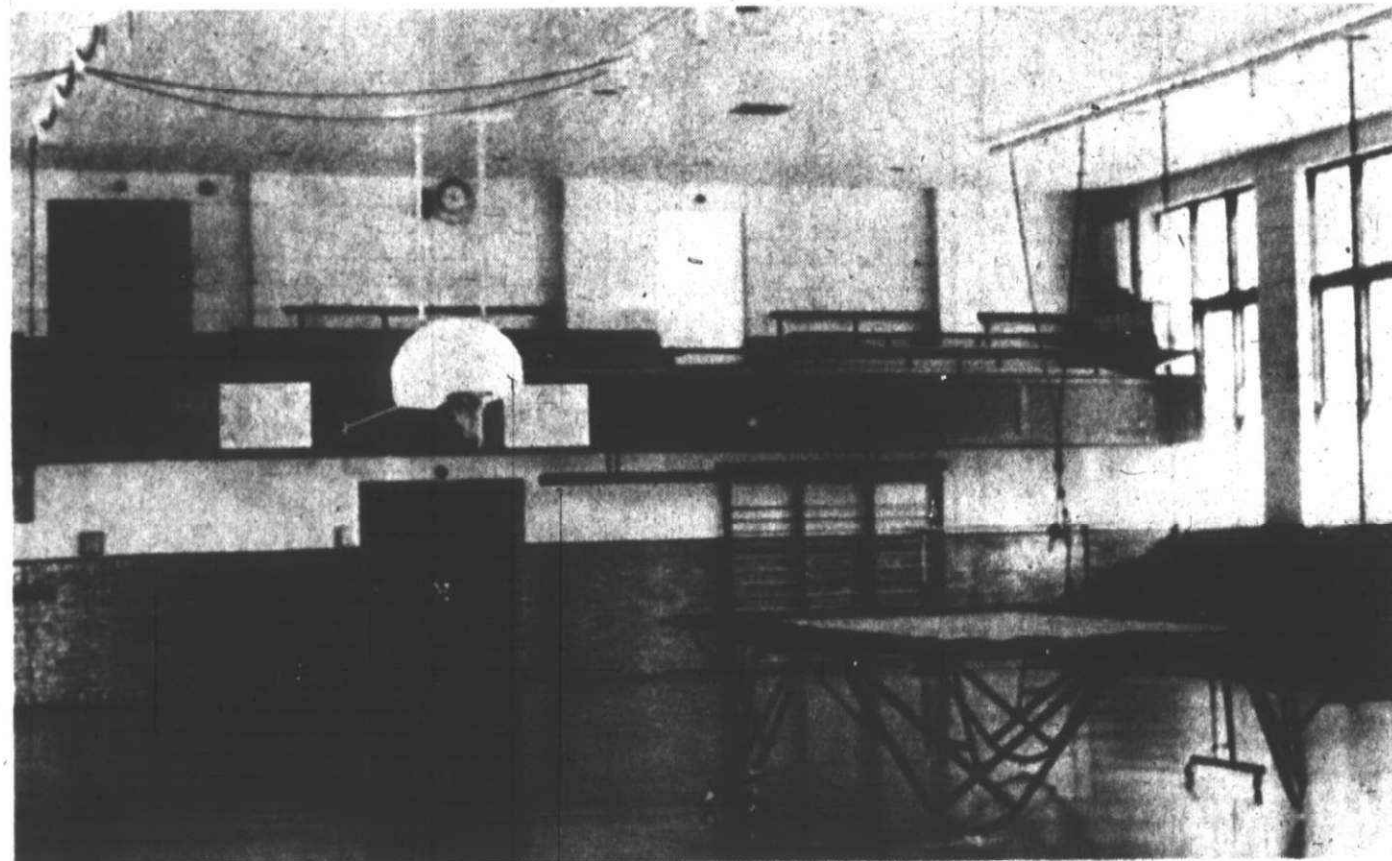

"We will have to determine which of them meet the county's goals. An advocate for each proposal will have an opportunity to speak."

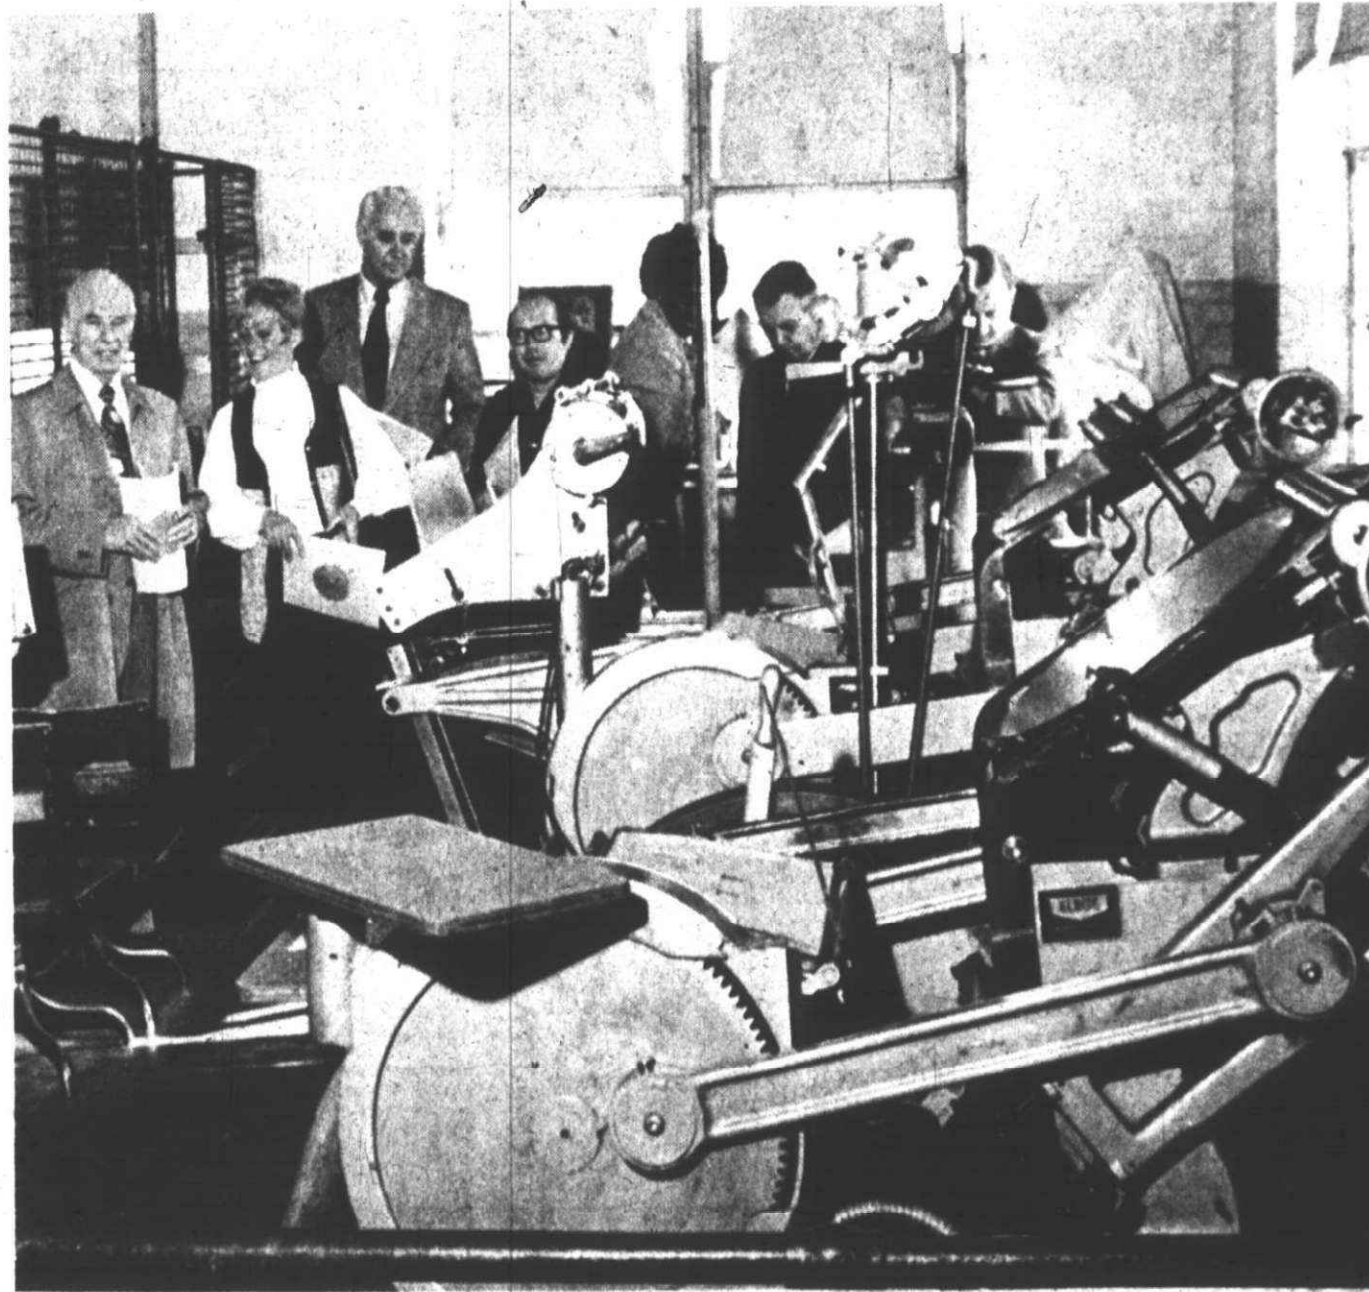

A FULLY equipped dental office, although a bit dated, is in excellent operating condition.

ONCE BUSTLING, this kitchen at the Wayne County Child Development Center has been closed since Oct. 18.

CHILDRENS' VOICES once echoed in this gymnasium at the Child Development Center, but no more.

MEMBERS OF the review committee for the Wayne County Child Development Center inspect a print shop once used by residents of the center.

Organizations help Special families adopt foreign-born children

By MARGARET MILLER

"It's like watching a flower open."
Joy is evident as Mrs. Don Driesbach of Livonia talks about watching her tiny Vietnamese daughter, Suzanne, blossom.
"We were asked when she was three days old if we would accept her. What a silly question!"
With a fond glance at his daughter, Ron Hayes of Westland describes the adoption of Kimberley, who was born in Korea.

BOTH ARE DELIGHTED to be in the growing company of families adopting children of foreign birth.
And, because such adoptions represent special problems and such families often need a little extra moral support, both are active in separate organizations designed to help.

The two groups are different in name and scope but really very much alike in aim.
Hayes is coordinating a group that has the backing of the Wayne County Department of Social Services.

It is meant for adoptive parents of any foreign-born children, regardless of nationality, who are residents of Wayne County. Still in the organizational stage, the group will have its next meeting Saturday, Nov. 23, at 1 p.m. in the International Institute, 111 E. Kirby, Detroit.

Millie Driesbach belongs to an organization called Adopted Parents of Asian Children which has some 150 family members, most in the metropolitan Detroit area.

That group has been organized nearly a year and has held two general meetings in the Bloomfield area. A January gathering is scheduled in Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church of Livonia.

THE THREAD JOINING the members of the two organizations in spirit is the realization of children's needs in underdeveloped areas and the determination to help them and the families that bring them here.

Hayes emphasized that the group he's heading—"somebody had to volunteer"—is going to be open to parents who are adopting youngsters in all nationality groups, because children are starting to come to this country from South America.

"We are interested first in bringing together families of children like these," Hayes said.

"We can share information—when you have a problem, it's good to know someone who has been in the same situation," he said.

The group wants to get the foreign-born children together for programs to help them to better appreciate their own ethnic backgrounds.

Group members also want to keep in closer touch with foreign orphanages, especially in Korea and Vietnam, to help them by trying to provide medication and better food for the children still there.

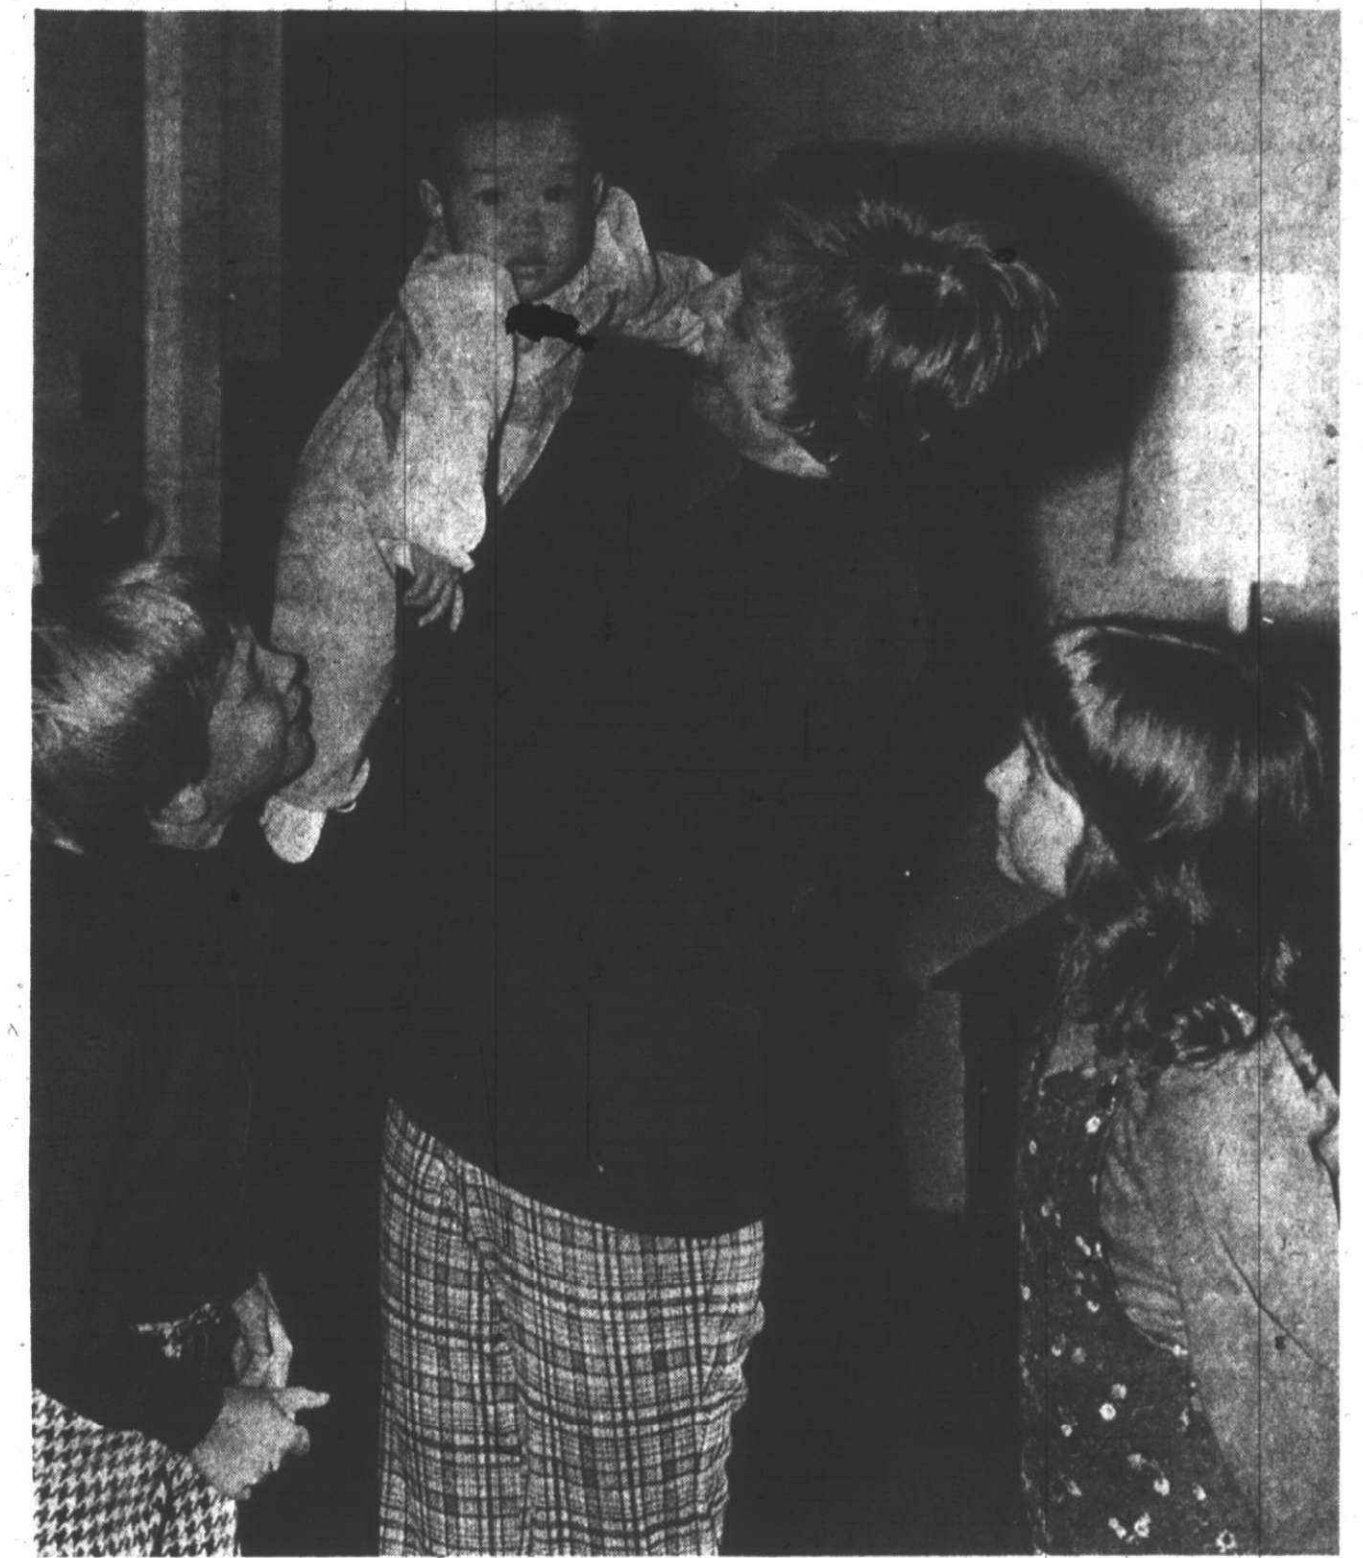

FOR THE HAYES CLAN, thoughts of adopting an Asian child began some time ago.

"I had served in Korea and had seen what happened to children there," the Ford employee said. "And we had two boys and wanted a girl, and my wife, Mary, was adopted as a child, and everything just seemed to point to adopting a little girl from Korea."

Hayes began by getting in touch with his former commanding officer, who put him in touch with the Holt Agency, which has handled many adoptions of Oriental children.

The Hayes knew about Kimberley since the day she was picked up on a Korean street, and they said they indeed wanted her to be their daughter.

Even so, it took 19 months from the time the decision was made until the happy day in August 1973 when Kimberley arrived.

MILLIE DRIESBACH holds chubby Suzanne, born in Vietnam, high in the air while Dan and Julie look on. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

There were physical problems at first, because the baby had diarrhea for a long time and her adoptive parents would have liked to know other parents in similar circumstances.

But now Kim is a lively toddler, very healthy and much-adored by big brothers Kenneth, 5, and Christopher, 4.

IN ORGANIZING the new group, Hayes plans to work closely with similar organizations, including the Adopted Parents of Asian Children.

"We used the word adopted rather than adoptive because we feel the children adopt us," said Mrs. Nancy Fox of Troy, a leader of the organization which Don and Millie Driesbach joined.

"We have three main aims," she added. "One is social—we want to get the parents together and give the children a chance to grow up together and help all the children involved, both natural and adoptive, to accept each other.

"We also want to be of service from an informational standpoint, both for parents with children there and for those wondering how to get started adopting an Asian child."

"And we want to raise funds, to ship drugs, clothing and medical supplies, as well as money, to orphanages in Asia."

Mrs. Fox said the organization probably will be opened to include parents who adopt children from other areas, especially South America.

THE DRIESBACHS began their efforts to get Suzanne because "our other two children are adopted and I had seen on television some pictures from Vietnam that really disturbed me," Mrs. Driesbach said.

They made the first move in July 1973, and sent in a formal application in November.

Suzanne, five-months-old, thin and unable to hold her head up, arrived Aug. 2 this year.

Since then she's become a chubby, smiling baby, definitely the pet of 10-year-old Julie and Dan, 7, as well as the joy of her American parents.

There are two misconceptions the parents' organizations are trying hard to dispel, Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Driesbach said.

"We hear people say that with all the poverty in this country there shouldn't be so much attention given to Oriental children," Mrs. Fox said. "And we hear from people who worry about the many physical problems of these children."

"But we know the poverty in the areas where these children are born is like nothing to be found here. The average weight of a baby in Vietnam is four pounds, and a great many die."

"Those who survive are the strong ones. And, sure, they do have many problems from a health standpoint. But nothing that cannot be cured, because they have to pass an examination to enter this country. Nothing that some TLC (tender loving care) and proper medication won't take care of."

BOTH RON HAYES and Millie Driesbach are emphatic that a goal of their organizations is to interest more families in foreign adoptions.

"It's a long, difficult process," Mrs. Driesbach said, "but it's worth it. There are so many children who need homes."

And, as Hayes put it, "the hardest part is to get people interested—once they do and they see the kids there's no problem."

Both organizational representatives will be glad to answer questions from all those interested in this area. The Hayes live at 7551 Randy Drive, Westland, and the Driesbachs at 35233 Pinetree, Livonia.

Tall corner cupboard ends kitchen clutter

Kitchen clutter can be organized with the addition of a tall, narrow collection of shelves, built of one by 12-inch boards and tucked into an idle corner.

The tall unit is two feet wide and about 12 inches deep. A butcher block or similar work counter extends out 10 inches, and is attached to the side boards 40 inches above the floor.

An electrical outlet installed in the wall above the counter makes this a handy place for using the blender, toaster or other small appliances.

Shelf compartments above the counter are varied in size and shape to hold the appliances, bowls and other items that will be used here. Sketching a number of different arrangements on graph paper will suggest the most pleasing pattern.

A vertical wine rack for five or six bottles and a set of drawers for linens and utensils go below the work counter, compacting a large amount of storage into two square feet of floor space.

WORK counter, appliance storage and wine rack fit compactly in two-foot wide shelf arrangement.

Lattice lends garden look

A breakfast nook or small family room can become a sunny, cheerful garden room without the turmoil of structural remodeling.

Begin with four by four-inch western wood posts in each corner, connected around the perimeter with four by four's flush to the ceiling. One wall and the ceiling are papered with colorful, floral wallpaper.

The other walls are painted, picking up the dominant color of the wallpaper. One of the painted walls is covered with diagonal wood latticework, giving the room the feeling of a garden pavilion.

White Christmas theme suggested

Dreaming of a white Christmas? You can express your sentiments with a snowy-white assemblage of flowers and candles for a buffet or table centerpiece.

Simply group white candle sticks with a low arrangement of white carnations or roses. Keep the theme going elsewhere in the room with pots of white poinsettias.

Keep them fresh

If you put up your Christmas wreaths and garlands early, try misting the greenery occasionally with the type of fine water sprayer sold for house plants, suggests the Society of American Florists. This will help keep the holiday evergreens from drying out.

Avoid wetting decorations containing decorative lights.

Home & Garden

It is important to structure real estate investment transactions as "tax-free exchanges" and thereby avoid the imposition at the time of the capital gains tax, says Prof. Karl G. Pearson of The University of Michigan.

Pearson, faculty member of the U-M Graduate School of Business Administration and director of the university's real estate education program, pointed out that if an owner sells income property at a price substantially above what he paid for it, he is subject to a substantial capital gains tax. "If, on the other hand, you would exchange it for another income property on an even basis, your capital gain tax would be deferred," he explained. "Whenever a tax can be deferred, in effect money is borrowed from the U.S. Treasury without having to pay any interest on it. Should you die without having disposed of the property, this deferred tax will never have to be paid.

"IF YOU ARE holding your present income property at a capital gain, you may exchange it for another without incurring immediate tax liability. You thereby get to use the entire value of your present property with which to acquire a new property.

"But if you had sold your present income property first, then you would have had available for reinvestment only the amount left after paying tax on the gain."

Owners of residential income property may wish to engage in a "tax-free exchange" for a leased business property, Pearson noted. Scattered income properties may be similarly exchanged for a larger consolidated income property, vacant land may be exchanged for improved land, farm/ranch property may be exchanged for city income property.

Other tax-free exchange possibilities: appreciation potential property for property providing immediate returns; speculative gain property for long-term gain property; undepreciable land for depreciable property; mineral rights for a hotel property; ownership in business property for a 30-year leasehold in business property.

"SO LONG AS these exchanges are on an even basis," Pearson explained, "no capital gain tax would be imposed at the time. If the exchange is not on an even basis, the differential is called 'boot,' and it is taxable to the recipient. In the exchange, the cost basis of the old property is carried forward to the new.

"This tax advantage is available under Section 1031 of the Internal Revenue Code, which provides that no gain is to be recognized—i.e., taxed—if certain business or investment property is exchanged for property of a like kind. Like means like nature, not like grade.

"It is therefore not necessary to exchange an apartment house for another apartment house, or an office building for an office building...this means only that the property exchanged and the property acquired must be held for investment or for use in a trade or a business."

THE LOOK OF TROWEL-applied plaster is now available in wall board. For Spanish or Mediterranean furniture it creates a perfect background. It also goes well with the English cottage image.

Clean bulbs are brighter

The energy crisis has made every homeowner aware of the need to conserve power.

Although you turn off lights when you don't need them, did you know that blackened electric light bulbs burn 20 per cent less efficiently than new ones? And dusty shades and glass fixtures can absorb as much as 1/4 of the bulb's light.

Electric bulbs, shades and fixtures should be dusted as often as you dust your room. Because of the grease present in all dust, a flick of a dust cloth is not enough.

Some spray cleaners may be used or a sudsy dish-washing detergent will also work.

Disconnect lamp plug. Remove shade and reflecting bowls. Clean bulb, reflector and shade thoroughly. Polish with a soft cloth until dry.

Check all electrical outlets and replace plugs that are worn.

Pineapple expresses hospitality

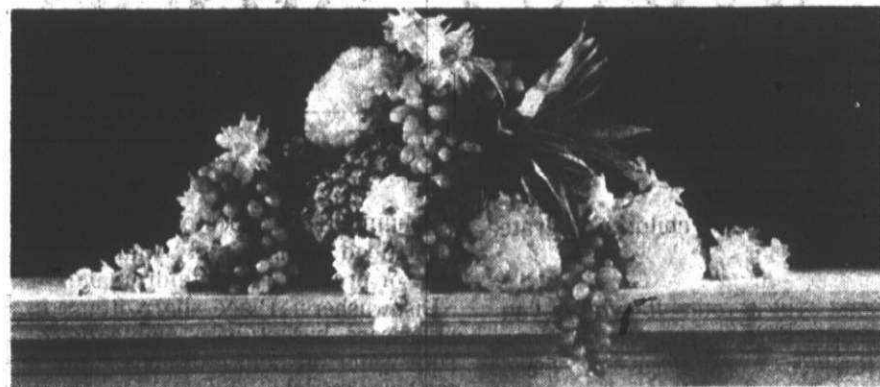

Bejeweled with flowers and set on a pedestal, a pineapple makes an eye-catching centerpiece that says, "Welcome, guests."

Flowers and pineapples, both symbols of hospitality, make a particularly appropriate holiday decoration when combined. With its elegant silhouette and natural materials, this centerpiece will look equally inviting on a modern glass table or an antique buffet.

To assemble the centerpiece you will need: a glass flower vase with a pedestal, a pineapple, seven to eight small green apples, a few clusters of grapes snipped from a bunch, a selection of small scale flowers, toothpicks and florists' foam.

FOR A RICH, jewel-like effect for the centerpiece, the flowers chosen could be a combination of miniature red roses and lavender chrysanthemums. For a more muted effect, yellow roses and copper chrysanthemums will cast a golden glow, subtly revealing the contrasting textures and forms of the arrangement.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS combine for an elegant Thanksgiving mantle arrangement. Pom pom and smaller yellow chrysanthemums complement the pineapple and graceful bunches of pale yellow grapes.

Begin by filling the vase with florists' foam, then place the pineapple in the vase, anchoring it firmly with toothpicks, or with a kitchen skewer.

Arrange small green apples in a ring around the base of the pineapple, stems out, anchoring firmly with toothpicks.

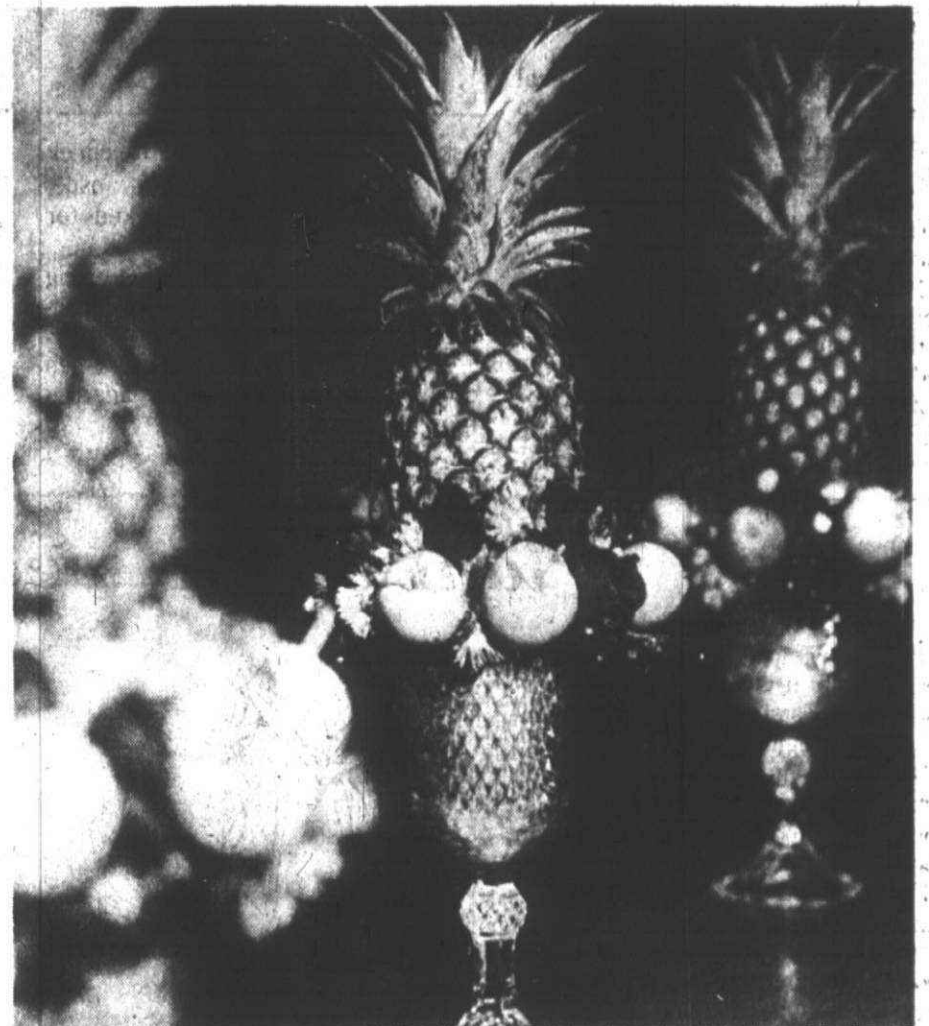

Fasten two or three small clusters of grapes between the apples, allowing them to hang gracefully over the rim of the vase.

TO COMPLETE the centerpiece, arrange flowers in a circle around the pineapple, forming a wreath just above the fruit.

Place each flower individually, trimming the stem to 1 1/2 to two inches and secure the flower to the pineapple with a toothpick through the stem. For a hard-to-place flower, try winding a short length of wire around the toothpick and flower stem before inserting in the centerpiece.

This arrangement is especially dramatic when done in triplicate. It is a festive complement to any holiday buffet setting.

THE PINEAPPLE, symbol of hospitality, makes a striking table decoration when combined with fruit and flowers.

Evergreens: Mulch or cultivate?

Should evergreens planted in the fall be cultivated or mulched around the base?

It's a good idea to mulch all newly-planted evergreens. Water them good, then apply your mulch of sawdust, wood chips, leaf mold or compost, or whatever material you have on hand.

Some people like the cultivated look around the base of evergreens but loosening the soil can disturb the roots and do more harm than good.

Never let evergreens go into the winter with dry soil. On sunny days of winter, the sun causes the plants to give off water. If none is available in the soil, moisture is lost from the foliage and that's why many evergreens are brown by the time spring rolls around.

EVERGREENS such as pyramidal arborvitae and Scotch pine turn a rusty brown and lose their foliage. At this time of year, it's only normal shedding and is nothing to worry about. Sometimes drought and poor soils will cause premature shedding.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

When evergreens turn brown all over, inside and outside, then you can be pretty sure that it's not normal. The plants are dying from one of many possible causes, such as lack of fibrous root system, (after being dug), planted at the wrong season, lack of moisture in soil or perhaps insect injury, such as ants forming tunnels around the base of the plants.

It IS EASY to grow edible mushrooms in your cellar?

It's not as simple as it sounds, although it is possible and many gardeners do it each year.

You use composted manure packed in six-inch boxes. Buy pure culture spawn from your seed house, and inoculate the soil by sprinkling over the material. Then cover lightly with rotted manure or compost, keeping the surface moist.

Grow in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. You can buy prepared flats or boxes of compost with the spawn already planted.

Don't expect to get rich on the project, but you can have a lot of fun.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We raised several bushels of potatoes this year. How should they be stored?"

Answer: Keep them in a cool cellar, in burlap sacks or slat crates, rather than in solid boxes. Do not let light reach them as it causes green skins. Greened potatoes are poisonous and should not be eaten.

GREEN THUMB BONUS: Having trouble with your African violets? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my bulletin, "How to Raise African Violets for Year-Round Beauty."

Safety suggestions for household appliances

Appliance manufacturers remind us that built-in safety features are part of the answer to operating appliances safely. The user should follow instructions and use common sense too. Some appliances may have critical safety warnings printed directly on them and more safety directions in the owner's manual. Follow them. The following are some safety tips offered by a leading appliance manufacturer:

1. Be sure the appliance fits the space and that it is secure, steady, on a firm foundation, and ventilation provided if necessary.
2. Know if fuel supply is adequate. As a rule of thumb, most appliances should operate on a separate circuit.

Ask a qualified electrician to check your house electrical system, especially if it hasn't been checked for some time.

3. Don't clip off the grounding prong of a three-prong plug. Have wall receptacles changed instead.
4. Keep appliances repaired. When dropped or bumped, safety features may be broken also.
5. Don't hunt for a gas leak with a lighted match. You may find one. Call the gas company first.

6. Don't let small children operate appliances.
7. Don't "fix it yourself" unless you are sure you know how.
8. Replace worn cords or loose plugs.
9. Don't use a drawer or door as a stepladder.

SPECIAL APPLIANCES need special care:

Dehumidifiers: Locate above basement flood levels. Empty water regularly or provide adequate drainage.

Dishwashers: Place sharp items in silverware basket with points down. Turn water off before disconnecting a portable model.

Disposers: When retrieving objects, turn off the power switch and use a wooden tool, not your hand. Never put metal, rubber, or cloth into the disposer.

Ranges: Keep pot handles turned inward, away from children and kitchen traffic. Avoid hot pan handles by using pots sized to match heating elements.

ments. Use aluminum foil only as the owner's manual recommends. Do not use water on grease fires. Smother with a lid or use a recommended extinguisher.

Refrigerators and freezers: Remove the door or securely lock, tape with glass fiber tape, or chain the door of abandoned refrigerators or freezers. When in operation, do not touch refrigerator coils.

Washers and dryers: Keep lint filters clean. Do not overload washers. Do not reach into the tub until the appliance stops. Use only recommended laundry cleaning aids.

Plant of the week

Fatschedera lizei is a hybrid evergreen shrub. It is named after its parent plants, Fatsia japonica and Hedix helix (English ivy). Originating in France in 1911, this hybrid will thrive in difficult conditions and in poor light say Michigan State University horticulturists. Flowering in the autumn, Fatschedera lizei is characterized by its deeply lobed leathery leaves. The strong shoots, growing eight to 10 feet long, may need support. Pinch back occasionally to induce branching. There is a variegated leaved variety but it is much less vigorous and requires more care. MSU horticulturists recommend the following conditions for proper maintenance of Fatschedera lizei: SOIL should consist of equal parts perlite or vermiculite, good garden soil and peat or humus. If mixing your own soil be sure to sterilize it to destroy harmful disease organisms. Bake the moist potting soil in a 180 to 250-degree F oven for 45 minutes to an hour.

FATSHEDERA LIZEI

WATER—Keep the soil evenly moist but not constantly wet. This is a delicate balance. If the soil is too wet the roots will rot and if the soil is allowed to become too dry they will easily burn and shrivel. Feed regularly during the growing season. TEMPERATURES in the home can range between 40 and 45 degrees F at night and 55 to 60 degrees during the day. Fatschedera lizei will tolerate slightly higher temperatures and has been found quite suitable for average home conditions. LIGHT—Bright light or full sun is needed for the plant to bloom. A place near a south window will provide the longest duration of sunlight. An east window is adequate. The plant will survive in less light but don't expect it to flower. PROPAGATION is by stem tip and leaf bud cuttings.

Wall cracks? Don't panic

If you find cracks in your walls and ceiling, don't reach for the panic button. Applying crack material is just about as easy as spreading butter in July. The days of mixing powder with water and an overnight wait before sanding and painting are gone. Just clean out the crack with a pointed tool, apply a special ready-mixed paste and paint over immediately.

Colonial custom suggested for dried flowers

If you are having problems arranging dried flowers in a small container, try the colonial custom of filling the container with sand, suggests the Society of American Florists. The sand will hold the slender flower stems in place and will add stability to the container.

Ready-mixed patching material is available now in tubes like toothpaste, in cartridges for a caulking gun, or in cans. One of the easier ways to patch hairline cracks is with a plaster pencil that "draws" the repair along the crack. If your problem is popped nails in wallboard, hammer them back with a nail setting end or a hammer, then spread the paste with the blade of a putty knife. For the big holes, apply two or more coats of patching material, allowing each to dry thoroughly before proceeding. Your paint and hardware store or department can advise on paint and materials.

Make your own

A popular material for Christmas wreaths this year is straw, wired securely to form a wreath and wrapped with velvet or plaid ribbon. Flowers, fresh or dried, can be added for more interest.

People who buy and people who sell get together in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Buyers and sellers are "strange" people. Strange to each other, that is. People with lots of different needs and wants, people who need to get together. They need to get together in the quickest, least expensive and most effective way possible—the Observer & Eccentric Want Ads.

Say you need a buyer for a bunch of baby basset hounds, or a really good home for a litter of antiques...How do you meet those unknown admirers with an eye for your special goods? How do you keep track of sellers with garage sales, and owners of autos and pets to trade? It's easy -- when you know where buyers and sellers get together best—the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

It's easy to get double buying and selling results, too. Double-Action Ads bring people together from all over Wayne and Oakland Counties. These suburban communities include: Birmingham, Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Rochester, Avon Twp., Southfield and Troy in Oakland County; Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Canton Twp., Redford Twp., and Westland in Wayne County. Smart buyers and sellers place a Double Action Family Want Ad (non business) of 15 words or less in two consecutive issues, with no changes in copy and no cancellations -- and they pay only $6. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

When you have something to sell...when you have something to buy...you've got a lot in common in the Observer & Eccentric Classified Want Ads.

Good insulation pays for itself

Good insulation is the best way to save heat in winter and keep it out in summer. And the better the application, the more you'll save in heating/cooling costs.

To protect yourself against rapidly rising fuel costs, be sure you have a minimum of R19 insulation in your attic. You can save as much as 30% a year on your heating/cooling costs!

It will take our men just a few hours to blow clean, highly effective Owens-Corning Fiberglas insulation into every inch of your attic. With absolutely no mess... no bother for you!

RELOCATING...DOESN'T HAVE TO BE DISLOCATING

We belong to RELO, a national real estate organization whose job it is to relocate you physically without relocating you mentally.

And this we can do. Through our association with RELO, we can help relocate you to at least 6,500 different communities throughout the country.

All you have to do is contact any one of our offices, and we'll take it from there.

But remember one thing. If we can relocate you from coast to coast with a minimum of woe, imagine what we can do anywhere around Detroit and its environs.

Oxford Estates

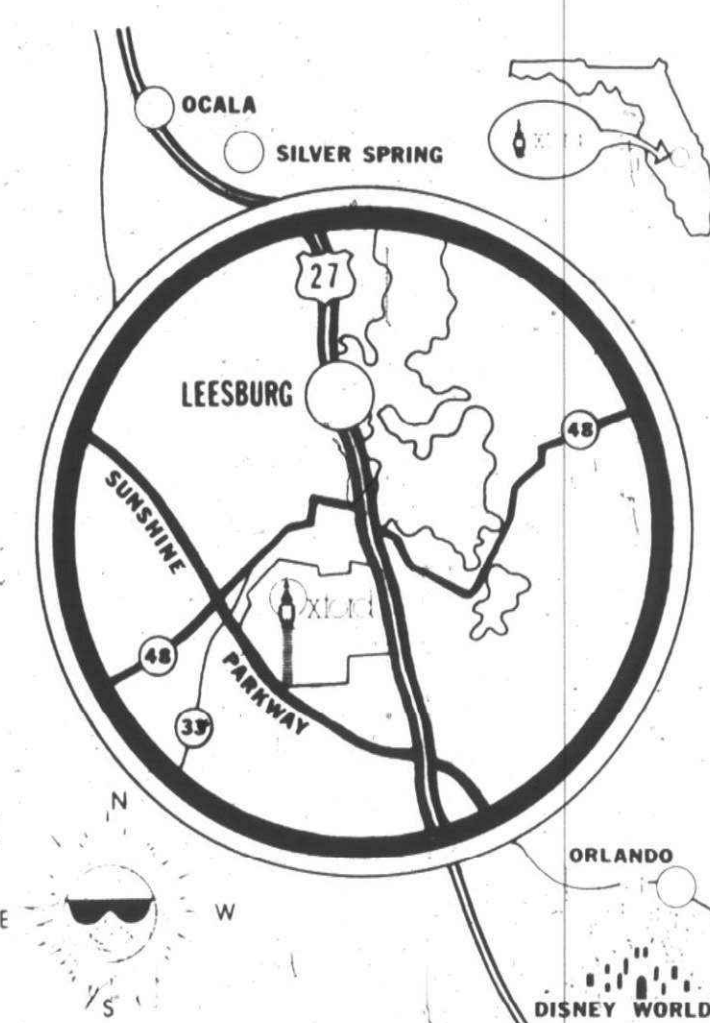

a great concept in retirement living is coming to life.

Out of a concern for the quality of retirement living that is available to America's retired persons, Oxford Estates is being developed in the heartland of Florida's lake region and citrus country. Set in the natural beauty of majestic live oaks, fragrant orange trees, meadows, lakes and rivers, Oxford Estates offers retired persons a pleasant atmosphere for great living. Its location in central Florida off Highway 27 and the Sunshine Parkway makes Oxford Estates readily accessible to several outstanding attractions such as Disney World, Silver Springs, Cape Canaveral, St. Augustine, Sea World, Daytona Beach, the Gulf of Mexico, Busch Gardens, and many others. A commitment by the Oxford leaders to providing total care and concern for members of the community is reflected in the emphasis upon programs and facilities designed to meet the Oxford leaders to providing total care and concern for members of the community is reflected in the emphasis upon programs and facilities designed to meet the of people. The village-like community has a full range of housing opportunities - both mobile and permanent - including luxurious single and double-wide mobile homes and efficiency and duplex garden apartments. What's especially unique about Oxford Estates is its commitment to offering privacy, security, and beauty at very economical costs. Dr. G. A. Gough, president of Oxford Estates, comments, "Above all, we believe that retired persons should not have to sacrifice the quality and comfort of living to which they have become accustomed during their working careers. Because Oxford Estates is a non-profit foundation, we are able to offer housing at prices below normal retail costs." The quality of Oxford Estates is reflected in its high caliber of leadership. The Board of Trustees includes: Dr. G. A. Gough, college administrator, psychologist, and former pastor. Dr. Kenneth S. Armstrong, president of John Wesley College at Owoeso, Michigan, an innovator in education and Christian ministries. C. Dean Wilmoth, Regional Dealers' Relations Manager for General Motors Acceptance Corporation, Kansas City, Missouri. Dr. Valdemar Christensen, chairman, of the Science Division at Point Loma College in San Diego, California. Dr. Galal S. Gough, medical doctor, Montebello, California. The Board of Trustees and the staff which has joined in the development and operation of Oxford Estates believes Retirement is a great time for living if you're living at the right place.
